PITTSBURGH: SATURDAY MORNING, MAY 25.

IMPORTANT FROM WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, May 22, 1861.

Flotilla for the Potomac.

The Government put into commission to-day the steam flotilla for the Potomac river and the adjacent waters. This fleet is headed by the U. S. steamer Freeborn, Capt. Ward, which is known as the flag ship. There are four other vessels, now afloat, of light draft and heavy guns, intended to chase and capture all pirates and other Secession violators of the laws of the country. The officers on the Freeborn are Lieut. Cash and Messrs. Lee and Gray, master's mates. She brought six passengers yesterday—Senators Wade, Chandler and Morrill; Mr. Nicolay, the President's private secretary; Mr. Dinsmore, of New York, and Mr. Pettit, of Pennsylvania, who had been on a flying visit to Fortress Monroe and the blockading squadron.

Gen. Scott stated yesterday, that sixty thousand men were wanted along the banks of the Ohio. This seems to do away with the idea that an attack is soon to be made on Harper's Ferry.

Affairs at Norfolk.

A resident of Norfolk, just arrived, declares that there are four hundred cannon mounted on the Banks of the river, and that the batteries extend for miles below the city. He boasts that the guns are of the heaviest calibre and most improved construction, and commanded by the best army and navy officers of the old Federal Union. They believe the combined fleets of the world could not capture Norfolk by sea. He adds that Old Point Comfort was also so securely fortified as to be impregnable to an attack.

The steamers of the bay route from Baltimore to Norfolk have resumed their trips. They land, however, at Old Point, and passengers, cannot get across to Norfolk without a pass from Fortress Monroe or the commander of the blockading squadron.

The Vote on Secession in Virginia.

To make it a dead certainty, the Virginia soldiers voted for secession yesterday, Gen. Lee having issued orders as "precautionary" against election fears, and that "military exigencies" might prevent them from voting on Thursday. In Alexandria the vote stood 133 in favor, 2 against, and 4 refusing to vote. The vote was followed by a ratification meeting last night, whereat professed Union men urged unanimous secession as a peace measure to prevent Government troops from filling the State.

The Star has positive information that a majority of the Secession troops within fifty miles of Washington refused to take the oath of hostility to the United States. So did a large fraction of the Harper's Ferry troops.

Provisions for the Rebels Stopped.

Colonel Ellsworth having discovered that provisions were surreptitiously conveyed from Baltimore by water to Marlboro, and thence across Maryland to the Alexandria Ferry, by which they were put in possession of the secessionists, took, last evening, one hundred Zouaves, and, marching down six or eight miles, blockaded all the roads in the vicinity. He found undoubted evidence of the regular transportation of supplies, and learned that the last wagon load was carried across early yesterday morning. During the night and this morning, some of the inhabitants attempted to start off, apparently to spread a warning, but they were prevented. The Colonel remained on this duty until 2 o'clock to-day, and made himself acquainted with all the routes used for these purposes. Hereafter there will be no more aid and comfort furnished Alexandria in this manner.

The Seizure of the Telegraph Offices.

The announcement of the seizure of the telegraph offices is regarded as a master stroke of policy. Two weeks ago, Colonel James Cameron, brother of the Secretary of War, was commissioned by the Government to carry the plan into operation. How efficiently he performed his important duty, the result fully testifies. Mr. Cameron, who has returned here, visited all the principal cities in the free States, and so arranged the matter as to have all the principal offices taken possession of at the same hour. By this act the Government will, without doubt, have information of immense value at this time.

President Lincoln.

The President, while seated in his new barouche, with Mr. Cameron, awaiting Mr. Chase, at the Treasury Department, yesterday, to proceed to the funeral of Col. Vosburgh, espied, on the steps of that building, a poor-looking, deformed young man, with crutches, whom he called to his side and questioned as to his condition. The lad responded promptly to the Presidential queries, and, with tears of joy, pocketed a gold piece which Mr. Lincoln gave him—probably the first he had ever possessed. Such acts of liberality and disinterested charity are frequently practised by our Executive, who can never look upon distress without attempting to relieve it.

No Arms for the Rebels.

Dispatches by the Persia state that the agents of the Rebel Government have explored Europe in vain for arms, munitions, or money, to be had in exchange for their bonds. Mr. Dudley Mann had sought an interview with Mr. George Peabody, with the hope of negotiating an interview, but had been politely but firmly repulsed. In no case had they found their securities markable at the largest discount they could offer as a temptation.

Opinions Held at the South.

A member of Congress who spent the Spring at the South, and traveled from Florida to Kentucky, says the following general beliefs prevail everywhere: That the North is cowardly; that the great cities are controlled by mobs, with a strong undercurrent for the South; that Mr. Lincoln unresisted, would march away and liberate the slaves; that Mr. Lincoln is a drunkard; that England and France will raise the blockade; that Louis Napoleon is a friend of the South; that Republican institutions are of short duration—an idea fostered by the leaders; that there is still much talk of attacking Washington; much talk of privateering and eagerness to enlist; that if the blockade be impervious, provisions will soon be scarce and dear; that travelers, of necessity, are guarded in their talk; that the South is stronger, in a military point, than is thought here; that Wm. H. Wall, a wealthy merchant at Key West, an Englishman by birth, is loud for secession in Florida. He is in the habit of Summering in New York. His residence is at Kinderhook. There is a curious inquiry as to how they talk at the North.

No Steps but Sure Ones.

There is no probability that the secessionists will invade from Harper's Ferry until a forward movement is made by the Government. The Virginians greatly desire to pretend to assume the defensive. If this be true, they will wait a good while. I have it from the very highest source that the conclusion arrived at by all military authorities is, that no decided advance movement by land should be made for weeks, perhaps months to come. The impatience of the country must be restrained until the arrival of the proper time for the commencement of operations. As telegraphed yesterday, General Scott means, when he begins, to make a clean sweep, and retrace no step. He will bide his time, but when he marches, the whole South will know and feel it.

All Ready.

Gen. Mansfield issued orders, to-day, quite late in the afternoon, for all the troops to load their guns, and supply themselves with fifteen rounds of cartridge. The order was promptly carried out, and to-night all the soldiers within Gen. Mansfield's military district sleep on their loaded arms, with fixed bayonets. There is much anxiety at the several camps to know the cause of this order, but no one except the commanding officers know anything of it.

The New York Twelfth Regiment have notice of marching orders.

The Loyalty of Kentucky.

A gentleman of this city, who has recently returned from a visit to Kentucky, where he has a large acquaintance, informs us that the loyalty of that State is unquestionable. The great majority of her people are as devoted to the Union as the citizens of Pennsylvania, and they are determined not only to resist the machinations of the Secessionists to the bitter end, but perfectly willing that we should march our armies over her soil, if such a movement is necessary for the triumph of our cause.

A Patriotic Lady.

Mrs. Cooley, an old lady from East Tennessee, arrived here yesterday, traveling a distance of about 1,600 miles for the purpose of seeing the President and his Cabinet in relation to our national troubles. She reports a terrible state of affairs in her section of the State; says there are but few Union men, and that they are daily in dread of being murdered by the infuriated mobs continually rising there. Mrs. C. hopes to return immediately, and, by telling the truth, to convince many of her neighbors of the errors of their ways. She is delighted with her visit, and says the people of Tennessee have no conception of the great unanimity and determination of the Northern people.

Thomas Francis Meagher.

A very decided movement is being made in favor of the appointment of Thomas Francis Meagher to a high military position under the present Administration. The President, having recognized the German leaders, is now disposed to turn his attention to these glorious sons of the Emerald Isle who have so freely volunteered their services in this crisis. What better representative of these men could be found than Thomas Francis Meagher?

Hon. Charles Francis Adams.

The selection of this distinguished American as minister at the Court of St. James was a most fortunate event. He goes there as the Benjamin Franklin of our era, and will, I predict, be equal to his grandfather and his father. He has a part to act possibly more important than those in which they were both so conspicuous.

Miscellany.

Each day evinces that a collision must soon take place at or near Fortress Monroe. Gen. Butler has gone there with a large additional force. The idea of attacking Harper's Ferry is abandoned for the present. The Virginians are planting heavy batteries along the Potomac. A large number of Southern troops are assembling there. The chances of England's recognizing the Southern Confederacy seem diminishing; the same is true regarding France. Affairs at Washington are vigorously progressing towards sustaining the Union at all hazards, even against a foreign recognition of the Southern Confederacy, at the risk of a war with Europe.

All the troops are getting very anxious for a brush with the rebels. The splendid men of Rhode Island and the stalwart Michiganders are very desirous of showing Southerners the scum of Northern society, as they denominate Northern soldiers. There are now thirty two strong regiments under arms here, the New York Second, one thousand strong, arriving yesterday, making some 36,000 troops.

A deserter from the rebel camp at Alexandria states that the troops are badly fed, and that two hundred will desert if they can get a chance.

From Baltimore.

General Cadwallader's troops seized fifteen hundred muskets and four thousand pikes secreted in the Eighth ward, Baltimore, yesterday, and took them to Fort McHenry. This caused much excitement, but no serious opposition. The Eighth ward is known as the "Bloody Eighth," and is cognomened "Limerick." It is filled with Democratic secession Irish. It is supposed the arms were stored for their use in case of secession emeute. Some boxes were marked Virginia muskets. It is understood seizures of other arms of a similar kind will be made in a few days. Gen. Scott says he cannot have disunion enemies in arms in his rear.

VALUABLE IMPROVEMENT In Steam and Atmospheric Hammers.

LETTERS PATENT were granted on Sept. 4th, 1860, to Thomas Beach, for a very simple and efficient improvement in Steam and Atmospheric Hammers, whereby the full stroke of the hammer is obtained, no matter what be the thickness of the mass of iron to be hammered—thereby effecting a great increase of power where large pieces of metal are to be operated upon, and a corresponding saving of expense. The subscribers are owners of said patent, and are desirous of selling rights to use said improvement, as well as territory under said patent. A model of said improvement is left at the office of Messrs. Bakewell & Cushing, Attorneys at Law, corner of Grant and Diamond streets, where parties interested may call and see it, and learn also the terms of license sale, &c. P. F. MEDICAL NOTICE. DR. J. GOUCHER, A GRADUATE OF THE UNIVERSITY OF NEW YORK; and Student of Professor Valentine Mott; also, an Hospital Student of Prof. N. R. Smith, of Baltimore, has located himself at 107 FIFTH STREET, First door below the Cathedral, Pittsburgh, Pa., where he will give prompt attention to the examination and treatment of disease, in which he has had twenty years' experience. In treating disease, ELECTRICITY is one of the remedies resorted to. The investigations of Philosophers and Chemists clearly demonstrate that the electrical current is identical with the nervous fluid, or if not identical, will subserve the same purpose. This being so, there should be a constant development of electricity for the sustentation of life. Each organ should be supplied with its allotted share, that life may progress with the activity necessary to health. If there is a derangement of the nerves leading to any particular organ, by which the nervous force is supplied, that organ will necessarily become diseased. Thus, if the fluid is diminished, the organ decreases in action; while, if the quantity is too great, other symptoms will manifest themselves which would be indicative of an opposite electrical treatment. If the voltaic current in its proper application is really a substitute for the nervous fluid, then is Electricity the true agent with which to assist nature. The Doctor would not have the afflicted infer that he deprecates the curative powers of other remedies, but will use of Materia Medica whatever practical science has determined to be the most effectual in removing disease. Particular attention paid to DISEASES OF THROAT, LIVER, SPINE and DYSPEPSIA. Terms invariably cash. mh23:ly
