PITTSBURGH:

SATURDAY MORNING, JUNE 1, 1861.

FOURTH PAGE.—Interesting Religious Intelligence; Miscellaneous Advertisements, etc.

Ex-Speaker, Ex-Governor Banks.

The appointment of this gentleman to the office of Major-General and head of the Quartermaster's Department will give universal satisfaction. Gov. Banks is one of the most energetic man living, as well as a man of inflexible integrity and firmness, and extraordinary administrative ability. No fear need now be entertained but that the army under the immediate care of the General Government will be well taken care of; but there is every reason to apprehend that fat jobs will be scarce.

Col. Fremont has also been made a Major General. This, like the other, is a capital appointment, and one that will greatly increase the confidence of the country in a successful and glorious result. His heroic career from early youth is known to all. Thus is Mr. Lincoln, who has cast to himself, gathering around him the best talent of the country, and with Napoleonic sagacity, putting the right man in the right places. The country put the right man in the right place when it elected him.

But let us not glory in our sagacity. Our delegates at Chicago were guided by a higher wisdom than their own when they selected him. He who knew what was coming gave us a man for the times, as he gave Joseph to Egypt. When the King of Egypt saw the earth fall to yield its increase, and at the same time looked with generous pride upon his full garners—filled through the vigorous exertions of the noble Hebrew youth—he might have boasted, "I appointed that man," for he did do so; but Joseph himself did not look at it in that light. His message to his father was, "God hath made me ruler of all Egypt." This is the safer and wiser view.

Harper's Ferry Invested.

Things are so progressing that the rebels at Harper's Ferry must very soon evacuate the place or be captured. A defense on their part will be out of the question; and unless they leave soon, a retreat will be equally impracticable. As quietly and as irresistibly as the tide rises and begirdles some little knoll on a low strand, the federal forces are coming in through every avenue. Grafton is now firmly occupied by the troops of Ohio and Western Virginia; Pennsylvanians are pouring across Maryland by way of Hagerstown, Frederick, and probably Cumberland. The troops at the Relay House can be thrown forward on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad in a few hours; while, from the South side of the Potomac, the Federal troops, already in Virginia, can advance rapidly by the Manassas Gap Railroad and cut them off in the rear. If we might form our judgment from the tone of the newspapers of Virginia, we should say that they would be some hard fighting in that State; but when we see how the chivalry are scudding about, we are strongly inclined to come to a different opinion. Scott advances so steadily, and makes every step gained so secure, that the rebels have no chance to make a successful fight.

THE BAPTISTS ON THE WAR.

The Baptists Union Convention, representing all the Free States and some of the Slave States convened in Brooklyn on Wednesday last. We have before us the views of the Convention upon the present crisis, in a report, which was almost unanimously adopted, and which is one of the strongest and most eloquent utterances we have seen. We select two resolutions from amongst eight, which well express the essence of the entire report:

Resolved, That the wondrous uprising in strangest harmony and largest self-sacrifice of the whole North, to assert and vindicate the national unity, is cause of grateful amazement and grateful acknowledgment to the God who sways all hearts and orders all events; and the resergent patriotism, wisely cherished and directed, may, in God's blessed discipline, correct evils that seemed growing chronic, and irremediable, in the national character.

Resolved, That what was bought at Bunker Hill, Valley Forge and Yorktown was not, with our consent, sold at Montgomery; that we dispute the legality of the bargain, and in the strength of the Lord God of our fathers still hope to contest, through this generation if need be, the feasibility of the transfer.

Slavery is not in express terms condemned; but in the preamble the Southern dogma that it is the corner stone of our national and social system is severely denounced.

Treason as Bad as the Worst.

Such, and no less, is the Utopianism of men like Ex-Governor Morehead, of Kentucky—who writes a long letter the other day in the Louisville Journal, in which he declares that if the Union shall undertake to subjugate the rebels, the duty of Kentucky will be to take up arms against it.

Now, the people have borne this treasonable cant quite long enough. It might be borne with a degree of patience, as long as we were deceived as to its meaning; for we interpreted it charitably, as we took it for granted that men like Ex-Governor Morehead were, as they pretended, obliged to guard their position carefully against a suspicion of surrendering the just rights of their States, and they meant no more than this, however equivocal some of their deliverances might sound to the ears of loyal men in the North.

We never doubted that when the question arose between the rights of the nation and the assumptions of a rebellion, they would finally be found in open and unqualified support of their country. But is this so have been invariably received. Not one of these conditional Union men has stopped short of flagitious treason; noises stopped by Government force, as they have been in Maryland, in their weak and helpless drifting before the tide of rebellion.

These men have been; and will be, so long as there is a debatable State left, the most dangerous and pernicious class of traitors in the country.

DEATH OF MRS. MCKINNEY.—In another column will be found the announcement of the death of Elizabeth Riddle McKinney, wife of Rev. David McKinney, D.D., editor of the Presbyterian Banner. She expired on Thursday, at the residence of her husband, near Brinkley, in the forty-first year of her age. We sincerely sympathize with our editorial brother and neighbor in the affliction ever consequent upon the loss of a devoted and faithful partner.

Miguel A. Otero.

Against the appointment of this gentleman, the N. Y. "Tribune" thus enters a strong protest:

We cannot permit the appointment of Miguel A. Otero as Secretary of the Territory of New Mexico to pass without recording our earnest protest against it. A more ready, unscrupulous tool of Slavery-extending Democracy was not in the land, up to the hour that showed the handwriting on the wall. That Mr. Otero is now a Free-Soiler, and will be so long as our side is uppermost, we do not doubt; but, should the tide at any time set in heavily against us, we confidently expect to see him rat again, and commend himself to the Slave Power by superhuman exertions to re-establish its sway over the Debatable Land. In other words, he may be counted on so long as we do not need him, and will desert and betray us whenever we do. We wish to have all the credit of such appointments monopolized by those who recommend them, while we record our protest against taking any avoidable risk on a matter so important, so vital, as that of Freedom or Slavery for New Mexico.

A LACK OF CONFIDENCE.—As a significant indication of southern confidence in the insecurity of affairs in that section, we may mention the fact that within a few days past we have received from parties residing in slave States, thousands of dollars intrusted to us for sale keeping. This shows in language stronger than words can express it, what some of our southern friends think of us and of the Government under which we live. We received one single draft for $10,000.—Scientific American.

The Philadelphia "Press" on the British Proclamation and the Sentiment of the British People.

Never very friendly in its tone towards the British Government, the "Press" always manifests the best understanding toward the British people—with, of course, the exception of certain classes, and, occasionally, of certain interests, especially the privileged, or governing, of the former, and the cotton-spinning of the latter. On Thursday, in an article which the writer prefaces with a remark which shows that he had prepared himself by reading the leading London journals, up to the 15th inst., there is the following summing-up of the testimony:

"We are now able to declare that, as we have anticipated from the first, the general feeling in 'the old country' is almost overwhelmingly on the side of the United States, its volunteers, and its active Government. It was not to be expected that England, which made such a magnificent pecuniary sacrifice in 1834, (One Hundred Million Dollars to liberate a comparatively small number of slaves in the West India Islands,) possibly could side with the South, avowedly confederated not only to maintain but to extend Slavery. Were the cotton interest five times greater than it is,—were ten millions of people directly dependent on it instead of two—we still think that nothing could induce the people of England to sympathize, actively or silently, with the South."

After quoting an analysis of the Proclamation which her Ministers "have made Queen Victoria issue"—the writer, with whom we are throughout in most cordial harmony of sentiment on this question, goes on to remark:

This, most certainly, is not what the people of England desire. They are governed by a band of Aristocrats, who, more or less, dislike the republican institutions of the United States, and would gladly see them prostrated. The misfortune is, that the leading politicians who alone can overthrow the Palmerston Government are not less aristocratic. If these gentlemen do not think fit to challenge the Anti-Union policy of Palmerston and Company, the people—save by a movement akin to Revolution—have no means of having their own feelings and wishes in favor of the North made manifest. The British public have no voice in the nomination of their rulers, who dislike the Americans because they have.

Could the voice of England be heard, it would speak trumpet-tongued to the world in sympathy with the United States. The cold-blooded State-papers of the British Ministry do not express the feeling of the British people.

How They will Fight.

Writing from Richmond on Monday last, a correspondent of N. Y. "Tribune" gives the following admonitions:

There are two opinions here in regard to meeting the enemy. One is to let him advance to the interior of the State, and thus lull him into a sense of security, in order the better to annihilate him at the most unexpected moment; another is to repel invasion immediately.

Be prepared for all these contingencies. Be also prepared to meet—not soldiers, but murderers, freebooters, pirates, fiends, frantic with a lust of blood, chuckling with delight at the thought of scalping, disemboweling, killing thrice and thrice over their enemy. Be prepared for treachery, arson, for all horrors, sins, and crimes. Be prepared for meeting the scum of humanity, who, in times of peace, raise murderous hands against legislators in their seats in the Senate, and who, in time of war, will pile murder upon assassination, and crime upon crime. Let your commanding officers not expose themselves unnecessarily. One of the special efforts of the "Chivalry" will be to shoot down the commanding officers. As in Europe, insane regicides thought themselves able to upset a Government by aiming at the breast of a ruler, so in the South, the guilty fools think they can upset an army by aiming at the head of the commander.

Though I solemnly reiterate and confirm all I have said about the intrinsic weakness of the South, in a military, pecuniary, intellectual, political, moral, and general sense, yet remember—for God's sake, remember—that despair gives strength, and that the South is in despair. I endeavor to get at the truth, not to overrate the resources of the South, but also not to underrate the sort of diabolical inspiration which it derives from its wickedness and despair.

Ellsworth's Last Speech.

At nine o'clock in the evening, on the 23d of May, having marshaled his Zouaves in line of battle, before marching for Alexandria, our Colonel, says one, thus addressed us:

"Boys, no doubt you felt surprised on hearing my orders to be in readiness at a moment's notice, but I will explain all as far as I am allowed. Yesterday forenoon I understood that a movement was to be made against Alexandria. Of course I was on the qui vive. I went to see Gen. Mansfield, the Commander at Washington, and told him that I would consider it as a personal affront if he would not allow us to have the right of the line, which is our due, as the first volunteer regiment sworn in for the war. All that I can tell you is to prepare yourselves for a nice little sail, and at the end of it a skirmish. Go to your tents, lie down and take your rest till two o'clock, when the boat will arrive, and we go forward to victory or death. When we reach the place of destination act as men; do nothing to shame the regiment; show the enemy that you are men as well as soldiers, and that you will treat them with kindness until they force you to use violence. In fact, I want you to kill them with kindness. Go to your tents and do as I tell you."

Quarrelling over the Spoils.

Secession has not produced a political millennium in Virginia. Politicians are still demagogues, and not patriots, and "the spoils" are fought for as bitterly as in the old Union. Witness the following from the Richmond "Examiner":

"But while the spirit of the people is high as it can be the complaint against the State authorities is deep. The most odious and most abject submissionists of the late political struggle get all the good prizes—get all the places which decency, necessity, and the actual safety of the State would require to be distributed elsewhere. The whole machinery of the war and the Government falls, day after day, more and more into the hands of men who have utterly denied the State's right to secede, and who have constantly denounced her present position. All who have done anything to create the Southern Confederacy are proscribed, and tabooed and disfranchised. We have yet to hear of a single original champion of the South who has been treated with common consideration or ordinary politeness. The men are southern, the masters were northern, till it was profitable to be something else."

An Albany Red-Tapist Pointedly Answered.

Adjutant General Read telegraphed from Albany, New York, to Colonel Wood, of the Fourteenth Regiment, as follows:

"Public rumor says your regiment is in Washington. If this is so, by what authority are you there?"

Col. Wood replied by telegraph in the following peculiarly emphatic style:

"Public rumor is right. We are here by authority of the President of the United States!"

The last message was to the point.

GENERAL ORDERS, No. 13.

HEAD QUARTERS,
Harrisburg, May 23, 1861.

In mustering companies, inspecting and enlisting recruits for the "Reserve Volunteer Corps of this Commonwealth," the officers and surgeons assigned to such duty are required to conform strictly to the directions of paragraphs 1135 and 1299 U. S. Army regulations, (see copy annexed,) excepting that the maximum age of the rank and file shall be forty-five years.

By order of the Commander-in-Chief,

JOHN A. WRIGHT,
Aid-de-camp.

No. 1135. In passing a recruit the medical officer is to examine him stripped; to see that he has free use of all his limbs; that his chest is ample; that his hearing, vision and speech are perfect; that he has no tumors, or ulcerated or extensively cicatrized legs; no rupture or chronic cutaneous affection; that he has not received any contusion or wound of the head that may impair his faculties; that he is not a drunkard; is not subject to convulsions; and has no infectious disorder, nor any other that may unfit him for military service.

No. 1299. Any free white male person above the age of eighteen and under thirty-five years, being at least five feet four and a half inches high, effective, able-bodied, sober, free from disease, of good character and habits, and with a competent knowledge of the English language, may be enlisted. This regulation, so far as respects the HEIGHT and AGE of the recruit, shall not extend to musicians or to soldiers who may re-enlist, or have served honestly and faithfully a previous enlistment in the army. my23-1w

TO CONTRACTORS FOR SUPPLIES.

We hereby give notice to all those who may be contracting to furnish supplies to the State, under the recent appropriation of three millions, that, having received the power under that Act of appointing inspectors of all supplies, and other power also in reference to the settlement of claims, which was not delegated to us under the previous Act of April 12th, we shall hold every contractor to the most rigid accountability in the settlement of his claims, and the inspection of his supplies must be of that character which shall prevent any imposition upon the State, and protect the volunteers who have so nobly responded to its call; and no supplies will be paid for until they have been inspected by officers who shall have been duly appointed for that purpose.

HENRY D. MOORE,
State Treasurer.
