

B. RIDDEL & CO.
PUBLISHERS AND PROPRIETORS Publication Office, Fifth Street, near Smithfield

THURSDAY MORNING, JUNE 6, 1861

We are able to state authoritatively that our Editor, Mr. HARRIS, has neither signed nor retracted an appointment at Washington, as has been stated by several of the city papers.

The Southern Mail.
On the 31st ult., the United States mails were withdrawn from all the rebel States, except Tennessee and Western Virginia.

It is a cruel plan. It is both a river and railroad route, to which are added the water and the land routes, and the consequence is a complete blockade.

There is no difficulty in finding arguments, kind, cogent and conclusive, why there should be a National Army here.

There is one feature of this matter which will make it highly agreeable to the Government at this time, and that is the fact that the rebels are not only unable to supply their own needs, but are also unable to supply the needs of the Government.

Transferring this heavy duty from the resources of the loyal States to those of the rebels, will have a double effect for good.
First, it will deprive the rebels of the means of supplying their own needs, and second, it will supply the needs of the Government.

Whether such a thing may be done at the present time, or whether it may be done at a later date, is a question which is not within the scope of this article.

Military Notices.
THE COMMITTEE ON HOUSE AFFAIRS, in a report to the House of Representatives, on June 5, 1861, has reported favorably on a bill to authorize the President to employ a certain number of soldiers.
