Pittsburgh Gazette.

PUBLISHED DAILY AND WEEKLY BY
E. RIDDLE & CO.,
FIFTH STREET, ABOVE SMITHFIELD.
PITTSBURGH:
FRIDAY MORNING, JUNE 21.

HIGHLY IMPORTANT NEWS.

WASHINGTON, June 19, 1861.

Reported Retreat from Manassas.

Some of the officials across the river confirm the report, which reached them this morning, to the effect that a large number of rebel troops had retreated from Manassas Junction in the direction of Acquia Creek. This is undoubtedly true. Gen. Beauregard anticipates that it is the design of the Federal forces to move on Richmond from several points, and the Potomac river, via Acquia Creek, is believed to be one of them. The decrease of rebel forces at Manassas, by this movement, will no doubt be supplied by reinforcements from the Harper's Ferry column.

A gentleman who has received information from Richmond, states that the troops there are drilling in bayonet practice, most of the time, preferring to adopt that mode of warfare, after making the first charge. He further states that the rebel troops will ultimately fall back on Richmond, for the defense of that city.

The Sawyer Projectile.

A correspondent of the New York Times writes from Fortress Monroe:

An exhibition of the Sawyer projectile took place yesterday at the Rip Raps. Your correspondent had the honor of being one of the party invited to witness the performance of the gun, in the presence of Major General Butler, Col. De Russey, of the Ordnance Department; Major Myers, the Inspector of the system of signal flags; Mr. Sawyer, the inventor of the projectile; Mr. Lathrop, of Pennsylvania; Mr. R. S. Tweet, of the Buffalo Commercial Advertiser; Col. Barnard, of New York, and other gentlemen.

The gun was brought from New York recently in the Constellation, in connection with the Naval Brigade. It was placed on the unfinished fortification at the Rip Raps, known as Fort Calhoun, which commands the shore up and down in the direction of Sewell's Point. Here it was proposed to test the projectile, and learn the exact range and location of the secession batteries. The gun was fired eleven times, with the following results, viz: Seven shots fell short; three shots passed over the point, and one struck the water about 50 yards beyond the point. The nearest distance hit was 2,980 yards; the greatest distance hit was 4,800; this ricochetting the shell into the water at Hampton Roads, over and beyond Sewell's Point!

The shell weighed, charged, 43 pounds. The shot weighs 53 pounds.

During the firing there was evidently some surprise and excitement on "De Ole Virginny Shore." People about there didn't seem to understand it; couldn't tell who threw the first brick, nor where it came from. "A man on horseback," perhaps, as Mrs. Partington would say, the "Admiral on the romancers, James and Cushing both saw—appeared suddenly on this side of Sewell's Point, riding violently along to where the shell struck; accompanied by a soldier with his sword at the ready. Then was something in the wind besides smoke, and something else in the sand besides clams. What! came another shell, and horseman and soldier withdrew at "double quick." The shot struck near where there were signs of a secession flag and tent. The trees flew as the shell exploded, revealing the tent, or shed, or house, to considerable advantage.

A little after sundown the Union party returned to Fortress Monroe. That Sewell's point can be hit from Fort Calhoun is now au fait accompli. That Sawyer's projectile can do it is now equally patent. It will undoubtedly soon be tested again when your correspondent will be "there to see."

The Cruise of the Resolute.

The Resolute, Lieut. Budd commanding, arrived to-day from down the river, where she has been cruising at her own station, between the Wicomoco Bay and the mouth of the Potomac, except when, for the sake of a brush, she comes up stream. She brings, as prize, a Baltimore schooner, the Buena Vista, laden with a valuable cargo of sugar, hams, and coffee, which she captured at St. Mary's.

The Buena Vista was boarded yesterday while rounding Point Lookout by the Reliance, but as her papers seemed right, and no arms or ammunition were found on board, she was permitted to proceed. When captured by the Resolute, she was, her captain states, about to discharge her cargo at St. Mary's, but Lieut. Budd having learned that Baltimore vessels are in the habit of clearing for that point and afterward discharging their cargoes at Conè and Tangier Islands, opposite, on the Virginia shore, determined to seize her, notwithstanding her papers showed that she had passed the inspection of the Reliance the day before. Her captain and crew feel confident that the arrival of the owner from the Secession Department; Major Myers, the inventor of the system of signal flags; Mr. Sawyer, the inventor of the projectile; Mr. Lathrop, of Pennsylvania; Mr. R. S. Tweet, of the Buffalo Commercial Advertiser; Col. Barnard, of New York, and other gentlemen.

The gun was brought from New York recently in the Constellation, in connection with the Naval Brigade. It was placed on the unfinished fortification at the Rip Raps, known as Fort Calhoun, which commands the shore up and down in the direction of Sewell's Point. Here it was proposed to test the projectile, and learn the exact range and location of the secession batteries. The gun was fired eleven times, with the following results, viz: Seven shots fell short; three shots passed over the point, and one struck the water about 50 yards beyond the point. The nearest distance hit was 2,980 yards; the greatest distance hit was 4,800; this ricochetting the shell into the water at Hampton Roads, over and beyond Sewell's Point!

The shell weighed, charged, 43 pounds. The shot weighs 53 pounds.

During the firing there was evidently some surprise and excitement on "De Ole Virginny Shore." People about there didn't seem to understand it; couldn't tell who threw the first brick, nor where it came from. "A man on horseback," perhaps, as Mrs. Partington would say, the "Admiral on the romancers, James and Cushing both saw—appeared suddenly on this side of Sewell's Point, riding violently along to where the shell struck; accompanied by a soldier with his sword at the ready. Then was something in the wind besides smoke, and something else in the sand besides clams. What! came another shell, and horseman and soldier withdrew at "double quick." The shot struck near where there were signs of a secession flag and tent. The trees flew as the shell exploded, revealing the tent, or shed, or house, to considerable advantage.

A little after sundown the Union party returned to Fortress Monroe. That Sewell's point can be hit from Fort Calhoun is now au fait accompli. That Sawyer's projectile can do it is now equally patent. It will undoubtedly soon be tested again when your correspondent will be "there to see."
