PITTSBURGH:
FRIDAY MORNING, JUNE 28.

HIGHLY IMPORTANT NEWS.

WASHINGTON, June 25, 1861.

The Rebels at Manassas Junction—Their Threats and their Weakness.

The Star of this evening has a telegraphic despatch from Alexandria, dated to-day, which states that a reliable citizen of a neighboring county of Virginia had arrived there, having been held a prisoner at Manassas Junction for three days in the forepart of last week. He was kept there for three days with five other prisoners. In all that time he was neither given a piece of bread nor a drop of water, though repeatedly begging piteously for both. He saw but two buckets of water carried around the camp to the soldiers, in the vicinity of the hut in which he was confined, in the course of the whole three days. His estimate of the force encamped at the Junction, on Sunday last, is ten thousand. Two thousand more were said to have arrived from Richmond between Sunday and Tuesday.

On being liberated, he made for the Potomac, (to escape into Maryland,) taking the Dumfries road, which he found obstructed by numerous felled trees, at low down as a mile below Bluntly Springs, over Cedar Run—a point five miles from the Junction. He was examined by three very pompous fellows, Wm. Fercher Miles, of South Carolina, being chief among them. Miles, on dismissing him, said that they expected to be in Washington in a fortnight, and, if satisfied him there, would surely hang him.

While being examined, he heard them conversing among themselves about the immensity of their forces, perfectly with the design of impressing him with the idea that it was overwhelming. He reports that full a fourth of all the troops he saw there are armed with shot guns, and a portion are wholly without arms. Apparently. He saw but two companies well drilled regiments. On the whole, what he saw of the camp at the Junction did not serve to impress him with the belief that Beauregard would venture to move upon Washington with the means at his command for its assault.

Plan of Attack on Washington.

A document was received this morning by Gen. Mansfield, from a true Union man, whose name is prudently suppressed while he is in his present position. The paper contained information drawn from a Secessionist, whose caution was overcome by the impression that he was in conversation with a Confederate. It reveals a plan for the capture of the city. The rebel force is to be divided into three divisions. One of these is to occupy the attention of our troops opposite Washington. While this is done, another column crosses the Potomac, near Occoquan, and marches through Maryland upon the city, while the third column, strengthened by an uprising of the rebel forces in Baltimore, approaches the city from the north. These three columns are under the command respectively of Davis, Beauregard and Lee. Some delay has occurred by a misunderstanding between Lee and Davis, caused by a jealousy on the part of Lee, growing out of the promotion of Beauregard, instead of himself, to a position which Lee claimed as justly coming to himself. This is the statement coming to Gen. Mansfield.

The Kentucky Treaty.

A dispatch from Grafton, where Gen. McClellan is now stationed, intimates that the recent interview of Gen. McClellan with Gen. Buckner, of Kentucky, since which the latter has published a statement of an agreement as to the neutrality of that State, was purely personal in its character, and held at the solicitation of the Kentucky general, and that he has entirely misconstrued the terms of the agreement.

Rebellious Baltimore.

Col. McCann says that the people of Baltimore gave the Thirty-seventh Regiment a very cool reception. Everybody in the streets looked scowling. Not a cheer, waving handkerchiefs or flag greeted them. At the Cannon House the Regiment halted, on the supposition that it was to be quartered in the building belonging to the city, and the Stars and Stripes were flung out. Their muskets were loaded, but not capped.

A Captain of the Second Wisconsin Regiment which arrived this morning, reports, that although at some points they had a hearty reception, at others they experienced very different treatment, and once a pistol ball came unpleasantly near the Regimental Quartermaster's ear.

A "Green" Yankee.

Trains commence running regularly, to-day, by order of the War Department, out to the camps, over the Loudon and Hampshire road, which has been put in good condition for a few miles from town. The telegraph wires were cut over in that vicinity, yesterday, and an innocent man was arrested, but released afterwards. It turns out that a Captain "Green," of one of the Connecticut regiments, did the mischief. The wire, laid down upon the ground and over the bushes and rocks, was the newly-invented Boger's cord, and Captain Green had not before seen it. As he returned to camp, after a stroll of observation, he suddenly stumbled upon this wire, which he mistook for a hoax. Believing that the enemy had contrived to lay this down, for the purpose of blowing up the camp, he drew sword and cut the cord in five places, and bore into camp a long piece of the wire, as a trophy of his sharpness and timely discovery.

Patriotic Clerks.

A joke was perpetrated in the Post Office Department a day or two since, which served a good purpose. A newly appointed head of one of the divisions conceived the idea of testing the board of loyalty of a number of his old clerks in such a manner as would leave no doubt on his mind as to their real disposition toward the Government. Assuming a grave and solemn demeanor, he proceeded round, and announced, with appropriate emphasis, that the War Department having made a requisition on that Department for all the able bodied men in it, by virtue of the imminent danger of an attack upon the city, it became his painful duty to announce that the clerks in the division of which he was head were expected to arm themselves and report to Gen. McDowell at Arlington, on Monday morning, 24th, at 6 o'clock. Had a thunderbolt fallen from the skies and dropped among them no greater consternation could have ensued. With blanched cheeks and quivering lips, some protested that they were lame, others were too old; others again were almost blind; and a number sat mute under the terrible announcement, completely dumb-founded. A few, about a sixteenth part of the whole number, responded nobly that they were ready and willing.

Miscellaneous.

The President, Mrs. Lincoln, Mrs. Grimsley, and Hon. Mr. Schuyler Colfax, attended, this afternoon, by invitation, at the camp of the 79th Highland Guard, the funeral of a private, who was buried with military honors and the customary Hungarian obsequies, which were very impressive. The President afterward reviewed the Thirty-Seventh New York Regiment, and was most enthusiastically cheered.

The Post-Office Department is in receipt of specimen numbers of the new design for postage stamps. They are printed in two colors, and are decided improvements on the old plan. They will be ready for delivery in August.

Secretary Welles has decided to strike from the rolls the name of every naval officer who resigns in time of war, whether on or off duty. This rule was applied, to-day, in the case of Lieut. Chas. W., of Maryland, whose resignation, the other day, while on leave, was reported.

The Secretary of War has not yet commenced writing his report to Congress. He gave notice to-day that after to-morrow he would see no one for several days, excepting upon important official business.

Nearly seventy thousand rations are issued daily. The business of the commissary-department is very large, and involves immense labor. In view of this the complaints are but few and trifling.

A messenger reached the city to-night, from Fredrville, where a portion of Col. Stone's command is located. The New York Ninth is there, and in good health. There had been no skirmishing with the rebels, although the regiment occupied the corner of four roads, where the enemy were most likely to be seen. The other portion of Col. Stone's command is at Point of Rocks, ten miles this side of Harper's Ferry.

Two steamers left the navy yard last evening, with shot and shells, bound down the river. The Powhatan lies in the stream. The Pensacola is rapidly being got ready for sea. The Ordnance Department is engaged night and day turning out shells, arms, percussion caps, etc., etc. A gentleman from Virginia claimed two or three negroes there from the Commandant, this morning. Capt. Dahlgren referred him to the Secretary of the Navy.

Major-General Dix has arrived, and we learn, despite the contradiction of a contemporary, that he is to be placed in command of the North-Eastern Division, headquarters at Arlington House. The report that he is to take stock in any Company scheme is a slander. He stands in the foremost rank of those who are determined to drive rebellion to caves and rocks before they receive flags of truce, or negotiate other treaties than those based on submission.

Lord Lyons, the British Minister, has been negotiating for a costly residence in Philadelphia, and proposes to reside there till our national difficulties are settled. It is also reported that other foreign ministers will follow his example. The Baltimore papers gave currency, some time ago, to a report that that city had been selected for the above purpose. Wherever they go, it will be a very wise decision not to go to Baltimore. They will probably soon feel that there is no use for a change at all, and stay where they are.

Secession in Southern California.—It appears from California who received in Washington on Monday, is the effect that the people of that State were about to proclaim the southern portion of it below 34.30 a separate State, and to ally themselves with the Southern Confederacy. It is said that a strong party in New Mexico, Arizona and Nevada Territory, is in favor of the project, and, if carried, to accept it. It is probable that the Government will take vigorous measures to suppress this treasonable movement in the Golden State.

The Rumors of a Proposed Compromise.

The N. Y. World, whose Washington correspondent, on Saturday last, first set this ball a-rolling, thus decisively speaks out against the statements both of its own correspondent and others—and winds up by giving a note from some Nominis Umbra, (in which the letter "W" is alone visible) designed to give a quietus to this foolish business for the present:

The rumors of a compromise proposed, or to be proposed, to the Government at Washington, to which one of our correspondents alluded at length last Saturday, have been seized upon by the Tribune and Herald, revamped, and published, along with the statement that Hon. R. M. T. Hunter, of Virginia, and Hon. James A. Bayard, of Delaware, have been down here all along in this city, and, in the secrecy of close coaches and back parlors," are cooking up a feasible plan of compromise.

—We do not believe there is the slightest foundation for any of these stories. Even from the statements of our "occasional correspondent" we have explicitly withdrawn our credence, supported though they were by the names of men not easily deceived. Much less do we credit these silly dupe and simplifications. The statement with which our sheet accompanies its story, that the Administration intends no vigorous military movement, or that it has listened or will listen to any proposition of compromise until this rebellion is crushed to dust, is either ignorant or malicious.

Since the above was written we have received the following note, abundantly confirming the opinions expressed above:

TO THE EDITOR OF THE WORLD:

Since speaking with you this morning in relation to the reported propositions of "compromise," my convictions that The World ought to emphatically correct the misapprehensions of its correspondent, are strengthened. The reports by which he has been misled are idle and baseless; are disturbing the public mind, and distressing the popular sensibility. There is not the semblance or shadow of truth in any one of these demoralizing rumors.

You know what my sources of information are, and whether I speak unadvisedly in saying that, so far as the President, his cabinet, and the veteran general-in-chief are concerned, this war, wantonly declared by insurgent States and recklessly waged
