Progress of the War.

It is not remarkable that a feeling of impatience should manifest liself in the present arborated and state of the papular mind at what seems to be the slowness of the government and of the Commander-in-Chief. Several considerations conspire to produce this feeling. One is a passionate patriotism, which looks more to the end than is the means. Those who include in this feeling want to see the reciels flogged and driven back, or compelled to submit, right away. They are for irreating them as an energetic body of police would freat a band of rioters—rush in and put them down or disperse them at once. Those Gum Boats.

We find the following paragraph in the New York Tribune:

The Sun of $250,000 in specie was sent from Washington to Ginerianst on Sunday last to partially pay for and fit out the gun boats bought their. The gun carriages for these vessels are to be finished on the 20th of this month and sent on. Capt. Cook, of the Ordanice Department, in superintending their construction. They will carry 64-pound guns."

This advertisement was not on the Mississippi. This advertisement was not on the Mississippi. This advertisement was not published in any western paper, as far as we can learn, and probably not in any paper outside of Washington. Still, our bost-builders got to hear of .i., and were all agog for the chance of building the boats. Upon inquiry at the chance of building the boats. Upon inquiry at Washington they were told that the specifications would be furnished in due season to the Assistant Quartermaster General here, upon examination of which they could file their bids. The specifications, however, have never been received here, and now we learn, by the paragraph above quoted, that the Quartermaster General has been buying the boats (or some of them) at Ginefannati, expending a quarter of a million in the purchase.

If any of these boats are to be built, our Plitsburgh boat-builders are fairly entitled to the opportunity, at least, of bidding for them; and if they are not to be built, and the government prefers to buy steamboats, and turn them into gun-beats by taking their cabins off and putting the machinery in the holls, the owners of steamboats at Plitsburgh should have as good a chance of stelling their boats to the government as those at Cincinnati.

We sak the attention of our representatives in Congress to this matter. We are tired of seeing Plitsburgh continually ignored by the seeing Plitsburgh continually ignored by the goulerned have a support to the Southern account, and they hope for the success of seeing Plitsburgh continually ignored by the gentlemen know that the United States Government.
