BELLINGHAM'S CELEBRATED
STIMULATING ONGUENT,
For the Whiskers and Hair.
The subscribers take pleasure in announcing to the Citizens of the United States, that they have obtained the agency for, and are now enabled to offer to the American public, the above justly celebrated and world renowned article.
THE STIMULATING ONGUENT
Is prepared by DR. G. P. BELLINGHAM, an eminent physician of London, and is warranted to bring out a thick set of
WHISKERS OR A MUSTACHE
in from three to six weeks. This article is the only one of the kind used by the French, and in London and Paris it is in general use.
It is a beautiful, economical, soothing, yet stimulating compound, acting as if by magic upon the roots, causing a beautiful growth of luxuriant hair. If applied to the scalp, it will cure baldness, and cause to spring up in place of the bald spots a fine growth of new hair. Applied according to directions, it will turn red or tawny hair dark, and restore grey hair to its original color, leaving it soft, smooth and flexible. The "ONGUENT" is an indispensable article in every gentleman's toilet, and after one week's use they would not for any consideration be without it.
The subscribers are the only Agents for the article in the United States, to whom all orders must be addressed.
Price One Dollar a box—for sale by all Druggists and Dealers; or a box of the "Onguent," (warranted to have the desired effect,) will be sent to any who desire it, by mail (direct,) securely packed, on receipt of price and postage, $1 13. Apply to our address,

LATEST FROM THE SEAT OF WAR.

WASHINGTON, July 15, 1861.

The Pirate "Jeff. Davis"—Her Doings and her Prospects.

The pirate Jeff. Davis appears to have been recently doing what might be called a rushing business. This vessel, a full-rigged brig, is supposed to be the former slaver Echo. If so she has changed her name, but not her nature. She carries four guns in the waist, and one pivot gun. This pirate, on the 9th, boarded the Mary Goodall, but finding her cargo to be British property, allowed her to go unpillered, except by the impressment of some seamen and the theft of a supply of water. In return for this, the pirate put on board the Mary Goodall three captains of vessels previously captured and sent South. When last seen, the Jeff. Davis was boarding another vessel. A vessel has been sent from Washington to notify Commander Stringham of the doings of the pirate.

A fleet of revenue cutters and gun-boats was also ordered to be despatched from New York in quest of the daring privateer. The command of the fleet was confided to Captain Howard, and the cutters Jackson, Crawford and Varina went promptly to sea, in tow of the steamboat Mercury. The Hamilton, Lieut. J. G. Bennett, Jr., will also start in pursuit of the pirate, provided her guns arrive in time. The gun-boat Iroquois, one of the fastest in the navy, will also start on the Echo errand, so we shall soon have armed vessels in pursuit of the Jeff. Davis before many hours. The prospect of encountering and capturing the piratical craft is very encouraging.

Down the Potomac.

Since the death of Capt. Ward the Freeborn has been under the command of First Lieutenant Lowry. Saturday afternoon Lieutenant Lowry stood within a hundred and fifty yards of Mathias Point, and treated the secession troops, which were visible peeping through the neighboring bushes and woods, to about twenty shells, some of which fell, evidently, among them, scattering them in different directions. Three shells struck a house, tearing big holes through it. It is clear that there is no battery whatever at Mathias Point.

At Acquia Creek the enemy were found to be busy at their batteries.

An infernal machine, designed by the rebels to blow up the Pawnee and the vessels of the Potomac flotilla, which was set adrift near Acquia Creek, was picked up on the 7th inst., floating toward the Pawnee. The following description of the article has been sent to the Navy Department: Two large eighty-gallon oil casks, perfectly watertight, acting as buoys, connected with twenty-five fathoms of three-inch rope, buoyed with large quantities of cork, every two feet, secured to casks by iron bandles. In a heavy bum of boiler iron, fitted with a brass lap, and filled with powder, is suspended to the casks six feet under water. On top of the cask is a copper box, with tube in it, gutta percha tube in the centre of the box, and then betrayed him to the rebels, which a platform with a great length of fuse coiled away, occupying the middle of the cask.

It was intended by the contrivers of this weapon of civilized warfare, that the shock of a collision would light the fuse. The machine was first discovered by the Pawnee on Sunday, while lying off Acquia Creek, in company with the Freeborn and two or three other vessels. The commander of the former, on seeing the object floating toward the fleet, sent out a small boat's crew to make an investigation. The machine was transferred to the Freeborn and brought to the Navy Yard to-day, where it attracted the attention of hundreds of curious but cautious spectators.

The Advance.

We are still holding our breaths, and controlling our impatience in the best way we can, says a correspondent of the Tribune. How long we must remain thus curbed and breathless is yet matter of doubt, but we are sure enough that it cannot be very long. There are some here who anticipate the beginning of the movement to-night, or to-morrow morning, but this is not possible. Nothing more than a slight advance of a regiment or two from Alexandria will probably take place. The general advance cannot commence until the regiments which are to take part in it are all disposed together in their respective brigades and divisions upon the other side of the river. This has not yet, in all cases, been accomplished, although nearly all might have been done a week ago, or earlier. The present slight delays are due to other causes than the non-assemblage of troops. I believe that certain intelligence from Gen. Patterson is now waited for, as the signal for departure. But, in any event, no person need be surprised to learn, at any moment, of the vigorous invasion of Eastern Virginia by our army. A breath from the West may start it, and, once set in motion, its course can be checked by no ordinary obstacles.

Arrest of Female Secessionists in Virginia.

Lieut. Upton, who was on a scouting party in the vicinity of the house occupied by the Misses Scott, who are rampant secessionists, and who captured Capt. Goodwin, of the Connecticut regiment, entered their house and asked for a drink of water. The young ladies desired to know who he was. He informed them that he was a secessionist, and desired to know whether there were any in that vicinity. They informed him that there were plenty, and gave him the names of several whom he could rely upon. He took the names of several. Soon after this, however, some of our pickets came in, and the young ladies began to "smell a rat." He then told them that they were prisoners, and that they must go with him to Gen. Tyler's quarters. After arriving there the General took them into his private room, and gave them a thorough examination. He desired to know what had been done with young Goodwin. They assured the General that they did not know, but supposed he was at Richmond. They pretended to tell every thing they knew in regard to affairs in the rebel camp, but it was perfectly apparent to General Tyler that they did not tell truth. He informed them that he should hold them prisoners until certain Goodwin had been returned. When my informant left the young ladies were a good deal alarmed.

They are quite pretty, and very prepossessing in their manners.

The correspondent of the Commercial Advertiser, writes on Saturday:

"The two Misses Scott, who were said to have seduced an officer of one of the Connecticut regiments into their house and then betrayed him to the rebels, were arrested last night, and brought into camp. They were released to-day by order of the President, it being found that the officer was not enticed, but accompanied them of his own volition.

The Kansas Senatorship.

F. P. Stanton arrived here to-day from Kansas, bearing a commission from the Governor to fill the vacancy in the Senate supposed to be created by Gen. Lane's acceptance of a Brigadier's commission in the army. Mr. Lane says he has not accepted the appointment, but admits that when he does his seat will be vacated. Mr. Stanton insists that he has, and states that Mr. Lane earnestly solicited the appointment, that he has it now in his pocket, that he took the oath of office, and has that also in his pocket. That he issued a proclamation to the people of Kansas, in which he announced his appointment and signed to his official capacity as Brigadier General, and that these acts stop him from denying that he has accepted the appointment. The whole controversy thus turns on a question of fact.

Resurgent Reports to Retreat.

An intelligent contraband was brought before General Scott to-day and detailed much valuable information. He entered the federal lines last night, escaping from his master, an Alabamian, who had whipped him severely. He says that there were five regiments yesterday morning immediately in and around Fairfax Court House, with eighteen pieces of field artillery in all, and twelve pieces in a battery. The three most advanced regiments are from South Carolina. From the Court House back to Centreville the woods are lined with dismounted guns. Their baggage, &c., from Fairfax station, has been carried back to Manassas Junction, and they are all now bivouac
