weary men were set at it again, having had but little sleep or food, while they had to contend against continued accessions of fresh troops, especially Johnston's division, who were brought by railroad from the mountains, while others poured in by railroad from the direction of Rich mond. No men ever fought more brave than did ours on that occasion: but long-continued labor and excitement were out their nervous energy, and caused that panic which stonished and grieved us all. In this way the thing can be easily accounted for on physiological principles. It is said that Sherman's battery, having exhausted its ammunition, started shing can be easily accounted for on physiological principles. It is said that Sherman's batteries. One of the Michigan men returned to camp the property of the constitute of the terminal part of the panic having chausted its ammunition, started back to replenish, and that the movement was misconstrued by the other troops into a retreat; and the panic having thence communicated to the teamsters, everything conspired to lead to a general stampede. Still we now know that the rout was not as disorderly as was at first reported.

Nothing has occurred to weaken our confidence in the bravery of our troops. Already are those overtasked and unfortunate men pleading to be led back, that they may have an opportunity to wipe out what they feel to be a stigms, but which, when all the circumstances are considered, is no dishonor. There is a limit to human endurance: and that erhaustion which was out the muscular strength will at the same time prostrate that nervous energy, which constitutes the courage of the solder. Even the Fire Zounves of New York, who wheeled upon and annihilated a splendid troop of pursuing cavalry, came straggling in like frightence of the terminal propriate of the propriate of the terminal propriate of the p the most gloomy and disheartening news was coming hourly over the telegraph, we had in regiments, the 2th and 11th, left this city for the seat of war in the highest spirits. Colonel Black leaves to-day, we believe, with his new of the 21st started to capture a battery at the month of Scenew Couch about 13 miles from Black leaves to-day, we believe, with his new fregiment, and many of the Heme Guards are ready to go, if needed. This reverse, like the bombardment of Samter, only served to exhibit the indomitable energy of the American people; and although the war may be rendered more fierce and protracted by this partial triumph of the rebels opened fire upon us from two pieces, and tearing down the fences, this quas were placed in position, and our forces wheeled into line on the trouble is only the more likely to be rooted out.

Heauth of the Slaviholders' War.

I the lattery as supposed to be supported by about 13 miles from the reached to built with a must round men with the fire built was supposed to be supported by about 100 men. When we reached the bill where the buttery was planted, the reached the bill where the buttery was planted in position, and our forces wheeled into line on the brow of the hill in such a manuer as to bring out the fire to bear upon the enemy, while we had partial triumpt of the bill where the buttery was supposed to be supported by about 100 men. When we reached the bill where the buttery was planted in position, and our forces wheeled into line on the brow of the hill in such a manuer as to bring out the force to bear upon the enemy, while we had partial protection from theirs by a fence on the tup of the hill.

We were seriously annoyed by a flanking first strets, of the width of betty lest, under the Act of May I.

making the more likely to be rooted out.

Results of the Slavsholders War.

Having log prepared for rebellion and contemplated the probabilities of war, looking of course for a favorable issue, according to the calculations of men who had laid every train of o'rumstance that foresight could suggest and the follest opportunity give scope for, to ensure success, the slaveholders raised the banner of revolt as soon as the result of the last President title lection was known. Rightly they judged, by the verdict of the country judged, by the verdict of the countr the government of the United States would not obstruct the progress of freedom and favor the aggressions of elavory. To reverse this vertication war. They had counted largely on a "diversion" in their favor by sympathisers in the North. They seemed to have confidently laid the flattering unotion to their souls that they elill in with the balance of the Platt Ohio, under Col. Nihey; the boys were then so exhausted many friends. That those who had so their votes with them in every division, those who had exer been pliant and submissive tools in their hands, should refuse to be rebels and traitors with them, was beyond all their powers of belief. But clearly this was one result of the war they had begun, which, though lying near est to them, they had not foreseen—that their old friends were friends no longer. These friends became their enemies—and the bitterest and most dangerous of their enemies, too. Hear what one, who currainly would not have written in such a sigle six months ago, has lately said in reference to the results of the rebellion:

Facte are stern teachers, and those who cannot understand the philosophy of the schools, read rapidly the inexvashe logic of vertex.

The Fight at Manasas Junction.
Since the smoke of the battle has in some degree cleared away, and we can get a wider and clearer view of things, the aspect is far more obserful and satisfactory than it was yesterday, we shall not criticize the conduct of Gen. Scotting sending 40,000 men to fight with 60,000 atrough entreached. We think he was not aware of the number of men or the strength of the fortifications at Manasasa Junction; but be that as it may, the victory on our side would still have been complete had Gen. Patterson kept Gen. Johnston in piky until the fight at Wasnasasa Vasover.

In the battle on Sunday the secession forces were decidedly worsted; and on Monday the wary men were set at it again, having had but it is may, the victory of the fight at wary men were set at it again, having had but it was proved to the woods—say half a mile from where our batteries had been stationed—one of their men, who sat on a stump eating a brille gun shot.
