VALUABLE IMPROVEMENT
In Steam and Atmospheric Hammers.
LETTERS PATENT were granted on Sept. 4th, 1860, to Thomas Beach, for a very simple and efficient improvement in Steam and Atmospheric Hammers, whereby the full stroke of the hammer is obtained, no matter what be the thickness of the mass of iron to be hammered—thereby adding a great increase of power where large masses of metal are to be operated upon, and a corresponding saving of expense.
The inventions are owners of said patent, and are desirous of selling rights to use said improvement as well as territory under said patent. A model of said improvement is now at the office of Messrs. Baker well & Cushing, Attorneys at Law, corner of Grant and Diamond streets, where persons interested may call and see it, and learn what the terms of Beach's sales, &c., are.

Pittsburgh Gazette.

PUBLISHED DAILY AND WEEKLY BY
S. RIDDLE & CO.,
FIFTH STREET, LEGUE WHITEFIELD.

PITTSBURGH:

SATURDAY MORNING, AUG. 10, 1861.

LATEST FROM WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, August 7, 1861.

Fugitive Slaves.

We understand that numbers of slaves daily flock within Gen. Banks' lines, chiefly from Virginia. Many have been returned, the masters uniformly representing themselves to be Union men. Gen. Banks is, we believe, still acting under Gen. Patterson's orders on this subject. It is said by observers of the scenes attending these renditions that no servants are more distasteful to both officers and soldiery, and that it is rapidly making abolitionists. In some cases fugitives have been secretly provided with means of escape.

Rumors of a Rebel Advance.

Several "specials" and rumors and one or two strong hints have stirred us for life through the heat of to-day, but have failed to excite the residents or increase the speed of those joining in the exodus. It has been rumored during the day that the rebels were closer upon our lines than they have been since the occupation of Alexandria, but accepting parties report the utter falsity of the rumors.

Quite a large number of rebels, however, are believed to be encamped some seven miles from the city, on the left of the Chain Bridge. That they contemplate any movement in the direction of the Potomac is not for a moment believed. Due precautions have been taken notwithstanding the general belief. This morning at sunrise four regiments marched up the river road with only their haversacks and arms, leaving their camp equipage, baggage, &c., under sufficient guard. This change in their camping position is thought to be occasioned by the report of some Federal officers who reconnoitered yesterday in the vicinity of Great Falls. They ascended a hill, from whence they are said to have seen a considerable body of troops, some thousands at least, encamped on the Virginia side, supposed to be a part of Johnston's command. These latter seemed to be about two miles from the river and about one mile and a quarter above Great Falls, exactly opposite to an alleged fording place. The ford, which is impassable for wagons or artillery, has to be approached from the Virginia side through a narrow defile cut through rock for a mile at that point, and the ford itself is by no means wide. It was also noticed that evenen seemed to be at work felling trees between the troops and the river. It is likewise stated that this last news was ran along the chain of pickets from Great Falls to Tennallytown, near this city, which may have hastened the change of camp somewhat.

The River Lined With Pickets.

An unbroken chain of pickets now extend along the Potomac from Harper's Ferry to Washington. There is a flying report that the troops that marched this morning expect to be joined by other regiments from Gen. McCall's command, and by one or more batteries of rifled guns. It has been understood for some days, however, that General McClellan has been preparing to aggregate as far as possible the troops belonging to each general command together, and these movements look as though they were in fulfillment of that end. So far as General McCall's command is concerned, they have been up the river for some time.

Operations of the Blockading Squadron.

The Navy Department has intelligence that the St. Lawrence, Capt. Purviance, on her way to Charleston, where she arrived on the 27th ult., captured a vessel sailing under English colors, and, putting a prize master and crew on board, sent her to Hampton Roads.

The Navy Department also has intelligence of the recapture, on the 3d inst., after a long chase by the frigate Wabash, Capt. Marcer, of the American schooner Mary Alice, a prize to the Rebel privateer Dixie, captured in lat. 29° 12', and lon. 77° 10'. She was ordered to New York in charge of a prize master. On the same day the Wabash intercepted the brigantine Sarah Star, an American-built vessel, under English colors, from Wilmington, N. C., with a cargo of naval stores. She belonged to a person named Monroe, formerly of Rhode Island. She was sent to New York.

Rebel Outrages in Virginia.

The ravages and outrages of the rebels in the part of Fairfax county, Virginia, which they have recovered, since the battle of Bull Run, are almost incredible. All the male residents, regardless of age, who decline to enroll themselves in the rebel army, are seized and sent as prisoners to Manassas or Richmond. Neither age, nor infirmity, nor sex, affords any security against insult or abuse. A resident of Vienna, who exerted himself in succoring the wounded in the affair near that point some two weeks ago, and brought the dead to Alexandria in his wagon, has been seized and imprisoned for his humanity, and his little son, only eight years old, is kept a prisoner in the rebel camp, and not allowed to see even his mother, for having expressed the hope that the treatment of his father would be avenged.

Soldiers' Pay.

There is an impression abroad that the soldiers' pay has been increased four dollars per month. It is not so. Each House of Congress adopted a provision to increase the pay of soldiers, sailors, and marines four dollars per month, but their action was not united on the same bill. The result, however, was concurrent action on another bill at a later period, which has become a law, increasing the pay two dollars a month.

The Force Increasing.

Recruits for the several regiments come in daily in squads, so as to keep them all up to the standard in numerical strength. The War Department M'Clellan adds applicants who desire to get regiments accepted and companies mustered in.

From the Rebel Camp.

A private letter from Culpepper Court House states that there are twelve hundred rebel troops sick at that place; it adds that every man in that county has been impressed into the rebel service.

Navigation Unobstructed.

A government steamer came up the Potomac to-day and reports all quiet. The rebels are making no demonstration against the navigation of the river.

Illinois Volunteers.

Hon. Owen Lovejoy, of Illinois, has received authority to raise a regiment of infantry; and Judge Dickey, of the same Congressional District, is authorized to raise a regiment of cavalry. That Judge is a very conservative man.

The Western Gun-Boats.

Jas. B. Eads, of St. Louis, has been awarded the contract for building seven gun-boats, to be done at Cairo, on the 5th of October, at $89,000 each. He is to forfeit $200 per day for each day over the time in which he agrees to deliver them.

Building a Fort.

The Indiana Seventeenth and Ohio Eighth, Col. Haskell, are building a fort on Round Top Hill, a part of Savage Mountain, which commands the turnpike and Great Pass through the Alleghenies from Grafton to Romney.

Another Flag of Truce.

Another flag of truce, borne by Capt. Jones, of the rebel army, came out on Tuesday. It was met by the escorts of Col. M'Cunn's brigade, near Alexandria, and received by the commander of the brigade. The bearer of the flag brought also about three hundred letters from the Union prisoners at Richmond and Manassas to their friends here. They state that they are closely watched, but are kindly treated. The valuables taken from the body of Col. Cameron, including his watch, signet ring and daguerreotypes of his wife and daughter, were also brought to Col. M'Cunn, with the information that the grave of Col. Cameron had been carefully marked, so that his friends may eventually recover the body.

Gen. Lyon.

The telegraphic rumor of the death of Gen. Lyon is not credited here, nor are any serious apprehensions entertained about the result of any engagement between him and Governor Jackson's forces. It is known that Governor Jackson has about sixteen thousand troops, few of them, however, well armed. General Lyon has about six thousand men, and double the amount of artillery that Governor Jackson has.

Col. John S. Phelps, who recently left the scene of the reported conflict, and is familiar with all preliminaries, is confident that Gens. Lyon and Sigel will be able to maintain their position, even against the heavy odds in favor of the attacking forces.

An entrance into Southwestern Missouri has become a necessity on the part of Governor Jackson, as there is no subsistence in Northwestern Arkansas for the body of troops he has with him.

The menaced attack upon Bird's Point and St. Louis by the rebels is only a feint to prevent reinforcements being sent to Gen. Lyon and Gen Sigel.

The Rebel Force at Manassas--The Mention by Senators.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—Intelligence has just been received from Mississippi Junction to the effect that the rebel troops at that point number over sixty thousand men. There is a great scarcity of water, and the supplies are drawn into camp in hogsheads from a distance of several miles.

The wife of John Hart, late Superintendent of Public Printing, left this city a day or two since, to join her husband in Richmond. She has been engaged for some time past in transporting letters for the rebels.

It is rumored that Senators Breckinridge and Powell and Representative Burnett, of Kentucky, will resign their seats in Congress. They are quite disgusted with the Union result of the election in their State.

The Rebel Force on the Potomac.

A boat has just arrived here from Mathias Point, bringing important news. The rebels are again planting batteries at the Point, with the evident intention of cutting off communication with Washington by the Potomac river.

Several slaves deserted from the rebel camp, and took refuge on board a Federal vessel lying off the Point.

The officers of the Potomac flotilla say that if a single regiment were landed at Mathias Point to cut down the woods, the rebels could easily be driven out.

The Point is the most important place on the Potomac, and it was the last request of the late Captain Ward that measures might be taken for its efficient protection.

Everything was quiet on the Virginia side of the Potomac last night.

Senator Breckinridge, of Ky., Vallandigham, of Ohio, and Mr. Faulkner, late American Minister at Paris, are at Baltimore. Mr. Faulkner goes to Martinsburg, Virginia, to-day.

From Quincy.

QUINCY, Aug. 7.—The Hannibal and St. Joseph train going West, this morning, was fired into by rebels about six miles from Palmyra. The force could not be estimated, as they were concealed; but sixty shots struck the locomotive, and about a dozen passed through the coaches. No passengers were injured, the engineer, however, received a slight scratch from a bullet on the side of his head.

The telegraph line is cut several miles from Palmyra, and at least in one other place, farther west.

Captains Burnap's and Palmer's companies of cavalry marched into Missouri, yesterday morning, fully equipped.

The Battle Near Springfield.

Rumors were rife in town yesterday afternoon of an engagement between the forces under Gen. Lyon and the rebel troops, near Springfield. From Mr. G. C. Clark, the correspondent of the Chicago Tribune, who came in last evening on the down train from Rolla, we obtain the following particulars, up to Saturday evening. The stage left Springfield Sunday morning and was thirty-six hours in reaching Rolla. The particulars of the fight were brought in by passengers and were also confirmed by letters to which Mr. Clark obtained access.

Gen. Lyon left his camp, near Springfield, on Thursday, in pursuit of the rebels, who fled before him. That evening Lyon encamped in the vicinity of Eyrel Creek. On Friday he advanced to Dug Spring, and obtained intelligence of the enemy. Dug Spring is about nineteen miles South-west of Springfield. A fight took place on Friday, between the hours of four and six p. m. A party of Lyon's cavalry, consisting of twenty-seven men, were crossing a neck of high land, partially enclosed on the east by a valley, and when descending the hill were ambushed and a large force of the enemy's infantry, variously estimated at from two thousand to four thousand men. The little body of cavalry being unable to ascend the hill and secure their retreat, resolved to cut their way through. They performed prodigies of valor. A general stampede of the enemy occurred. Five of the cavalry were killed, among them was the Lieutenant, the commander of the cavalry. The Lieutenant, whose name we did not learn, killed eight of the rebels. The cavalry regained their camp with a loss of only five men. Meantime the rebel force appeared in large numbers moving along the valley. General Lyon's artillery threw shot and shell among them, and they were put to flight. Lyon's infantry were not engaged. Yesterday morning them took possession of the battle field, while the rebels retreated southward to a point called McCulloch's Store on the Fayetteville road.

Another account, from a passenger who comes through from Rolla, places the number of the cavalry engaged at forty men. He states the number of the rebels at 2,000, from which our men so heroically extricated themselves, the disparity of force unexampled in the history of the war. The number of rebels found dead on the battle field amounted to forty, and some forty-four of their wounded were picked up.

General Lyon is said to be encamped there, and his camp is in close proximity to the rebels. A battle was momentarily expected. Springfield was in a state of great excitement. Only two companies of infantry, two cannon, and 600 Home Guards were left in the city. Lyon's force is about 8,000, and the rebels' is estimated at 15,000.

SEMI-OFFICIAL ACCOUNT OF THE BATTLE AT DUG SPRING.

SPRINGFIELD, Aug. 3.—Another battle has been fought in the southwest, preliminary to a general engagement, which is momentarily expected.

On Friday, the 2d inst., Gen. Lyon, hearing that Ben. McCulloch and his Southern horde were approaching to give him battle, ordered his men under arms and marched out to meet him. On approaching a ravine, known as Dug Spring, the enemy was discovered in large force and marshaled in battle array. Our force was 8,000, that of Ben McCulloch 15,000. The engagement was opened by Lyon's artillery, which was promptly replied to by the enemy.

After some hard fighting, in which the artillery of Lyon proved its superiority, the enemy retreated with a loss of forty killed and forty-four wounded. Our loss is eight killed and thirty wounded. We took eighty stand of arms, fifteen horses and wagons, and other trophies.

The advantages of cavalry were exhibited in this contest. During the engagement, a small squad of dragoons made a sudden charge upon a column of the enemy, some 4,000 strong. The suddenness of the onset created a stampede among the infantry, and our boys cut their way through them, and came back with a loss of five of their number. Upon examining the dead several of their heads were found cloven entirely through.

The enemy retired some miles during the night, and Lyon took possession of the field.

We expect a fight to-morrow (Saturday) as the enemy have been largely reinforced. Will write you again.—St. Louis Democrat.

From Sandy Hook, Md.

SANDY HOOK, August 7.—Secession cavalry are frequently seen in the vicinity of the ferry in small squads; yesterday eleven were reported to have been discovered near Bolivar Heights. A corporal's guard was immediately sent out to capture them, but have not yet reported.

Great efforts are making by the rebel commanders at Manassas Junction to station a large stock of supplies, which would seem to indicate a forward movement in this direction. It is also considerably believed that General Johnston is now a short distance north of the Junction, and may be on his way to locate at Charlestown, where scouts are known to have been frequently seen of late.

THE OFFICERS AND CREW OF THE PETREL.—Philadelphia, Wednesday, August 7.—The following are the names of the officers of the pirate ship Petrel, brought here: Captain Wm. Jeffry, of South Carolina; (and not Grimsley, as at first stated;) Lieut. R. M. Harvey, of North Carolina; Frieseneister, August Peyrous, of France. Nearly all the crew are Irishmen, who state that they were out of work. The St. Lawrence was slightly damaged. The crew were heavily ironed. They were lodged to-night in Moyamensing prison.
