PITTSBURGH:
SATURDAY MORNING, AUG. 17, 1861.

LATEST FROM THE SEAT OF WAR.

WASHINGTON, August 14, 1861.

Preparations for an Attack Upon the Union Lines.

It has been ascertained that the rebel Gen. Magruder, of Newport notoriety, left Yorktown a few days ago with about seven thousand of the rebel forces there, and went in the direction of Richmond. It is supposed they were to join the column of Beauregard in front of Washington. There are many evidences that the rebels are concentrating between here and Richmond nearly all the troops they have in Virginia. This is construed into a preparation on their part for an attack upon our lines here.

Arrest of an Ex-Department Clerk.

Mr. Flowers, an ex-Department Clerk, arrested on his way South, left an insulting letter for his landlord, threatening to return with Davis and have him and other Yankees hung.

East Tennessee Matters.

Senator Johnson, Congressman Maynard, and other Tennesseans had an interview with the President yesterday, and with Secretary Cameron to-day, relating to East Tennessee. That loyal section will soon receive aid.

Camps of Rendezvous and Instruction.

An order has been issued from the War Department establishing camps of rendezvous and instruction at New York, Harrisburg, Pittsburgh and Cincinnati. Every volunteer is to be mustered in as soon as enrolled, and sent to the camp of rendezvous as soon as mustered in, the expense of transportation to be borne by the Government. The War Department reserves the right to attach soldiers or companies to other regiments, in case that for which they were enrolled be not ready at the time fixed.

Another Brigadier.

Ex-Gov. Denver was appointed a Brigadier General to-day.

A Loan to the Rebel Government.

A rumor is current that Mr. Corcoran, the celebrated banker and money lender here, who has amassed an immense fortune out of the United States Government, has proposed to aid the rebels by loaning them money. What he will be able to lend them will be but a drop in the bucket full of their needs. But the act would be that of a viper trying to sting to death the bosom in which it was warmed into life.

Col. Vaxnham Dead.

Col. Farnham, of the Zouaves, died at the Infirmary in the city this evening, at eight o'clock.

Want of Powder Among the Rebels.

A slave who had come to Manassas with his master, from the Chattahoochee, Florida, escaped a week since, and came within our lines. His master was a private in the Quartermaster's Department, and he heard him say on Tuesday before the battle, that sixty-five thousand rations had been given out that day. Two troops during Friday and Saturday, he says, arrived at the rate of two or three thousand a day. He states that the rebels were short of powder, and that no ordinary offence was so severely punished as a waste of it.

Extending Outposts.

Col. McLeod Murphy's Regiment moved yesterday from Alexandria College to Hunter's Church, a point two miles north-northwest of Bailey's Crossroad. This movement will place Murphy's pickets in close proximity to those of the rebels.

Consuls Appointed.

James E. Wharton, formerly editor of the Wheeling Intelligencer, has been appointed Consul to the Fejee Islands, and Mr. Alfred Caldwell, the present editor of the Intelligencer, has been appointed Consul to Honolulu.

Commercial Agent at Curacoa.

Richard R. Morse, of Iowa, was, to-day, appointed Commercial Agent at Curacoa, in place of Moses Jesurun. This removal was made because Mr. Jesurun failed to protest against the admission to the port of Curacoa of the pirate steamer Sumter.

The Secretary of State will demand of the Government of the Netherlands an explanation of the admission of the pirate steamer Sumter to the port of Curacoa.

Gen. Lee in Western Virginia.

Senator Carlile, who has just arrived from Western Virginia, states that the rebel forces under Lee had crossed Cheat river in two bodies, five thousand by the road from Staunton, and another body by the road from Lewisburg. They were within fifteen miles of Gen. Rosecrans' position, near Cheat Mountain Pass, which commands the two roads.

Trouble in the Seventy-Ninth.

The Seventy-Ninth Regiment was put under arrest this afternoon. A week since, it is said, an order was read to the regiment to proceed to New York soon, to remain at Beedloe's Island for two months to recruit. The order was recently countermanded. The assignment of the regiment to the Sickles' Brigade was another cause for dissatisfaction. Some of their regiment were opposed to their officers, and on Tuesday the men were paid off, and the drunkenness consequent upon this resulted in the open mutiny of the whole violent. This morning the Provost Marshal proceeded to the camp with two batteries of artillery, a squadron of cavalry, and two companies of infantry, all regulars, and took possession. A proclamation by the Colonel, and-in-Chief was then read to the regiment. It recited the facts in relation to the disorderly conduct for several days; that they had been exhorted to return to obedience, but having refused, the authorities could only treat them as mutineers; that the ringleaders, if not killed, would be dealt with according to military law. It then commanded them to lay down their arms, stating that those who refused would be shot down. The order was obeyed, and the mutineers were taken into custody and put into their proper quarters. The men marched from their camp across the eastern branch of the new camp. The ringleaders, 37 in number, are in the guard-house in the city.

The Trouble at Potosi.

Reports were current throughout the city yesterday of an attack made by the Secessionists on Potosi, on Saturday evening. It was alleged that the Home Guards were routed and several of their number killed; that the three bridges were burned and a quantity of lead captured.

Later accounts from the passengers direct from that place put an entirely different face on the affair. The Secessionists were routed and put to flight by the Home Guards---less than one-fifth of them in number. It appears that an attack had been threatened, and many of the citizens thought from various indications it would be made Saturday night, when the inhabitants were in bed. Instead of this, the rebels, comprising some seventy or eighty mounted men, made a rapid charge, before dark, down the main street, sounding the war-whoop by way of intimidation. The attack was made between the hours of 6 and 7 p. m., at a time when the rebels safely inferred that the Home Guards would be at supper, as their drill took place nearly an hour later. Consequently there were but fourteen Home Guards present at their headquarters. The rebels halted in front of the building and fired, wounding six of the Home Guards. The Guards returned the fire briskly, sending three volleys, and wounding several of the rebels, when the latter scampered away in the direction of the depot. The Home Guards rallied, and chased the fugitives, who, it was feared, would attempt to fire the bridges and destroy property, but they were again fired upon and completely routed. A portion fled in the direction of Liberty township, and a part toward Belleview. Two rebels were killed, three wounded, and two, it is reported, were captured. One of their horses was killed. Fifteen to twenty rifles were taken, besides three navy revolvers and several Arkansas Bowie knives.

It is reported that another attack on Potosi was threatened to take place last (Sunday) evening, but from the preparation made by the Home Guard it is thought the undertaking had better be postponed. Another surprise is out of the question, and the result, under any circumstances, cannot fail to turn out unfavorably to the rebels.---St. Louis Democrat, Aug. 13.

FROM CAIRO.

Gen. Pillow Retreating Down the River.

CAIRO, Aug. 12---8 P. M.---The rumor brought last night that Pillow had commenced a movement from New Madrid, having broken up his camp there, on Saturday, is contradicted by later news, to-day---that the intended movement has been countermanded, and the troops at New Madrid are now on the move to Memphis by river. The intelligence first received is believed to be reliable, and the later movement is a change in the rebel plans. Certainly Pillow had procured the digging and cleaning of wells on the road towards Charleston, and had made provision for forage; and the anticipation of his coming had produced the effect noted in Charleston on the removal of its inhabitants. If Pillow has gone down instead of up the river, it may be that he made the change to avoid possible interference with his fleet of steamers by the gun-boats that he knew had passed the bar at New Albany.

These gun-boats have just arrived here to-night. They are the light-draught, remodeled steamers Conestoga, A. O. Tyler, and Lexington, strengthened, built into compartments, with caulked ceilings, and their bulwarks carried up all round with twelve-inch timber. Their armament consists of heavy guns, 32's and 24's. Lieut. Phelps, U. S. N., comes down in charge of the fleet. Commander Rodgers, U. S. N., will arrive, probably, to-night. He is a son of Commodore Rodgers, and is a gallant officer. The arrival of this long-expected fleet caused great sensation here, and the levee was crowded as they steamed down past the city and returned. The former names of these steamers will probably be exchanged for others, more significant, and dating from their new career.

Gen. Jackson was seen at Pillow's Camp on Friday afternoon. The ushered and fugitive ex-Governor of Missouri had an unhappy and anxious look.

Several fugitive slaves belonging to "Union men" near Charleston were sent back to their owners on Saturday, with a guard of men from Col. Lawler's camp, four miles distant, and the owners assured that the presence of the Federal troops meant only the maintenance of law and order and no interference with their institutions.

Within a day or two several outrages have been committed on Union men in the vicinity of Commerce, Mo., in retaliation for the seizure of rebel stores and mules at Price's Landing. Several have been driven over into Illinois with their families, leaving all their possessions. The reign of terror in that vicinity is extreme.

LATER.

Pillow Back at New Madrid.

CAIRO, August 13---9 p. m.---Up to this morning it seemed settled that Gen. Pillow had evacuated New Madrid, but news brought this afternoon by scouts establishes his return, and makes his movement a feint, as he certainly took his force on board the steamers and went down the river, but returned the same night---Sunday evening. He released on Saturday night several of our scouts, taken prisoners, and with the intention, it is now believed, of having them bring to our lines the news of his movement towards Memphis, which they did. He is again at New Madrid. The country in the vicinity of Charleston is full of his scouts.

Sergeant Carson, of Chicago, now an orderly in Gen. Prentiss' Staff, on a scouting expedition to-day, brought in three prisoners, scouts from Pillow's army. They are Sergeant F. A. Gayden, of Montgomery's Mississippi Cavalry, and two noted Missouri secessionists; one a man named Jake Goodin, more familiarly known as "Blackhawk," residing near Charleston, who has been prominent in the persecution of Union men; and the other is D. D. Harris, who lives near Bird's Point. All were finely armed and mounted, and their capture by Carson is deemed a most brilliant act. They say they were a portion of Pillow's advance, and our own scouts corroborate it.

The gun-boats are lying at Mound City. The Conestoga, Capt. Dubbs, will prove the fastest steamer on the river. The three carry 10 heavy guns, mostly 32's; six of the guns are 64's. They will serve under Commodore Rodgers as a River Guard. Their sailing masters are old and experienced river captains. For scouting and covering the landing and transports of troops they will prove extremely useful.

Late reports announce the enemy getting bolder, and the secessionists organizing more openly in the vicinity of Cape Girardeau. A company of rebel cavalry have been committing depredations on Union men near Price's Landing.

At Bird's Point all the heavy guns will be in place on barbette carriages by the middle of the week. All apprehensions of an attack are removed. The works there are very strong.---Dispatch to Chicago Tribune.

The Fight at Springfield.

ST. LOUIS, August 14, 1861.

I went out on the Southwest road to meet the train from Rolla; this evening, but the Rolla train missed connection, and I have not much additional to report. The disposition of Lyon's forces are said to have been admirable. It is the opinion of military men here that he did not intend to attack, but was forced to do so to prevent the enemy getting in his rear with their superior force, and cutting off his reinforcements and supplies. That he intercepted them in their march for that purpose, seems to be clear, though from the imperfect description of the field nothing certain is known. Great credit is awarded to Sigel for his share in the engagement; and confidence is felt that if retreat is necessary, he is the man to conduct it. It is thought that as soon as his reinforcements reach him, he will advance upon the rear of McCulloch's army and drive them out of the State.

Gen. Fremont is acting with great energy and determination, and there is perfect confidence that he will be able to take the city through the ranks with safety to all but the secessionists, who defy the law. He is preparing reinforcements to go, if needed, and to whomsoever calls. Secessionists deny the death of McCulloch, and say that it is a Union lie to offset the death of Lyon; but it is believed here that both McCulloch and Price were killed, or mortally wounded. The destruction of the rebel baggage and camp was complete. There is a great anxiety to hear the names of the wounded and killed, as many of them are from this city. Gen. Fremont says that the releasing of prisoners, and with the intention, it is now believed, of having them bring to our lines the news of his movement towards Memphis, which they did.
