Pittsburgh Gazette.

PITTSBURGH:

THURSDAY MORNING, SEPT. 26, 1861.

Republican County Executive Committee.

The members of the Republican Executive Committee of Allegheny County will meet at the Law Office of THOMAS F. WILSON, No. 146 Fourth street, Pittsburgh, on SATURDAY, September 28th, 1861, at 10 o'clock, A. M. Punctual attendance is requested.

JOHN F. DRAVO, Chairman.

THOS. F. WILSON, Sec'y.

Whereas——Therefore, Resolved.

"After the 'Whereas' lay a good foundation of falsehood, as the premises upon which further conclusions may be tried—and then go on to the conclusions. Of course, write the illative particle at the end of your preamble. The conclusions which follow, called 'resolutions,' had better, for the present, be guarded and circumspect in expression, veiling the intensity of their treasonable spirit and meaning in plausible words of peace and love of the Union."

Such a receipt as the foregoing may surely be found in some "Book of Instructions" in the hands of the self-styled Democracy—whereby the leaders thereof have arranged the programmes of most of their late meetings, conventions, and so forth, if we may judge by the uniformity of the course they have taken. Swift once wrote a receipt for the composition of an epic poem, and we do not see why some other ingenious person might not have thought of writing a receipt for getting up a set of resolutions for a bogus democratic meeting.

Accustomed, as we have long been, to the hardy exploits of political hacks in the ways of lying, we confess that certain of that class known as the bogus Democracy, who are irretrievably bound over in the bonds of sympathy and fraternity to their old allies and masters, the Rebels, have now and then, of late, ventured on such feats of hardihood in untruth, so far distancing in this respect all previous experience—as fairly to take us by surprise. We do not in this refer to the inveterate shamelessness of those "lingering few," miscalled Democratic, but really traitor, newspapers, which, in the great tolerance of the Northern people, have been permitted to prolong their dying in various parts of the country. In the tedium of that process, they, as a matter of course, adhere to their lying. It had served them so long, they could not lose their faith in it.

Lean as they are now, all of them, in days gone by some of them had increased their substance and waxed fat in rich pastures—and all their growth, their fat and their substance, was conditioned on this great capacity, this faculty, for lying. Hence, so far as these newspapers are concerned—and these have been daily or weekly sympathising with the rebels from the beginning until now—we have no further note to make of them, the inveteracy of the chronic disease they are now happily dying of being fully understood. As in so many other mortal things, in them too the ruling passion is strong even in death.

But what, as we have owned, has been a matter of surprise to us beyond all the mendacity of Day Books, Journals of Commerce, and all other such, whether already dead, or only dying, is—that amid the mighty demonstrations of the loyalty of the people in all parts of the North, even so many as three or four traitors could be assembled together at a few points, and having got over the initial difficulty of finding one another out and actually meeting, that still they would have sufficient audacity to make any such demonstrations as some of the late caucus and committee meetings of so-called Democratic politicians have ventured upon.

Nor have these been confined to only one or two localities. In our own State of Pennsylvania, in Ohio, New York and elsewhere, we have seen these things—significant or insignificant, whatever they are. But perhaps it would have been unreasonable to have expected less than what we have had, and are having. We are little content, but we are not in the least alarmed. We know well that it is the old leaven of party, which, after being hidden for several months past, is heaving and frothing here and there. Hackneyed partizans, fearing they should be laid on the shelf to spoil, and be overlooked entirely, if not treated with the juster attention of being otherwise dismissed, that is to say, getting out into the cold in the condition of shot rubbish, have been making these spasmodic efforts after life and power, exciting our attention and surprising us with their effrontery.

But vainly will they try to resume their power—"Othello's occupation's gone!" No man, no set of men, no power can work as leaven of disloyalty in the loyal masses of the free people of these States,—for now at length are the people fully aroused, and woe to the traitors who will stand up before them self-convicted of treason.

Another Lexington for History.

How shall we speak of this Lexington of our days? Certainly, whatever event bears that name cannot be passed by in silence. Whether it be a victory or a defeat, for its very name's sake, if for no other reason, it is sure to be much spoken of. There was a Lexington, and men remember it; but, surely, we have "fallen on evil days"—days whose very bravest deeds no patriot will hereafter relate with exultation, no poet or historian will delight in as a theme, to the adornment of which he would invoke the epic or historic muse. In the glorious past of our country's history, both the poet and the historian have fondly dwelt on the memories which this word awakes,—

> "A word whose memories
> Are sacred as the treasured relic hid
> In shrine or temple,"—

and Massachusetts has written it on the brightest gem that flashes on her brow—and the patriot has spoken it to stir men's hearts in the crowded forum,—and the soldier has spoken it in the lone night by the watchfire, or as a watchword amid the forming lines on the battle-field;—for no shadow, no cloud, no darkness has, from the hour it was first spoken until now, ever rested upon it.

But does any rest upon it now? Had the Lexington of the West linked that time-honored name with aught dishonorable? God forbid!

Though on the one side it was a traitorous, wicked attack—armed rebels with parricidal hands striking at their country's life,—on the other side, it was patriotism, piety as of children defending that sacred life, so impiously, so unnaturally massed, plotted against, stricken at.

No shadow, then, will fall out of this dark passion into the future upon so ever-sacred, ever-memorable name. The story of the brave beleaguered men who defended themselves at the Lexington of the West against such fearful odds will switch with another legend of fidelity and heroism embracing the scroll that bears the name of Lexington, in all coming time. Never, never before, was a noble cause more nobly defended.

But spite of the devotion of these heroes, they were at length forced to yield to inexorable necessity. Not to the arms or prowess of their foes, but to a cruel fate.

We have no heart, after reading the sad details, long and anxiously waited for, and now at length come, like all bad news, soon enough,—we have no heart to enter into calculations of the results of this unfortunate affair. It may be, however, that a few days will bring us news which will amply compensate for the present distress.

Still, though we use this word in our bitterness, and feel in our hearts, as we write it, all that it means, it is rather because of our sympathy with brave men to whom Fortune has denied success, after they had so well deserved it, than because the great cause of our country has suffered any serious blow in the surrender of Colonel Mulligan and the heroic 3,000 who were beleaguered by Price and his 15,000 rebels at Lexington.

We have even good grounds for judging that Price and there with him are in a trap from which they cannot escape. But then, how much better had they been caught a few days sooner.

QUERY?—Can the Pittsburgh Post give us the name and address of a single Republican of any character, in any State of the Union, whose loyalty to the Government is now, or ever has been, a matter of doubt? If so, we shall take into consideration the propriety of seeking out a better union party than the Republican.

NOTICE.—In order to save the country, it is urgently recommended by the Pittsburgh Post that the voters of Allegheny county, without respect to party, shall vote for a Democratic Sheriff, Treasurer, two members of the State Legislature, one Judge, one Commissioner, and Coroner!

[For the Pittsburgh Gazette.]

MESSRS. EDITORS: Lest the silence of the Republicans throughout the county should be taken as an omen of the success of the recently nominated "Union ticket, so called from the supposed union of the Democrats and a portion of the Republican party, allow me to say a word about the probable result and success of this "Union" ticket at the approaching election. Great calculations are made by the Democrats that the success of their ticket is certain, as they allege that a large portion of the Republican party are entirely dissatisfied with the ticket first nominated and will vote for the "Union" ticket. If every Republican feels as I do about this matter the Democrats will find themselves sadly mistaken. Will it be possible that any sensible Republican will be deceived by this "Union" party, got up by no other persons under the heavens but those Democrats who have been heretofore suspected as the rankest secessionists of the country? Look at the leaders and wire-pullers of this party and tell me if it is not so? Are the good Republicans of Allegheny county to be led any further in this farce by such contemptible pretenders, who suppose, in the absence of so many Republican soldiers, by this scheme they can, with the assistance of part of the Republicans, very nicely shuffle themselves into office? Can the Republicans be so lost to every sense of duty as to assist in such an obvious absurdity?

Had they manifested any fairness in the Convention, in the distribution of offices, instead of appropriating to themselves the wolf's share, their ticket might have been supported by some of the honest yeomen of the county. But I hope it will be found, on the second Tuesday of October, that, instead of having stolen our guns and our thunder, by their cunning device of appropriating the title Union to their party, they will hear nothing but the re-echo of our Republican thunder on the discomfited ranks of Democracy.

If not the ticket nominated by the Republicans a sound enough Union ticket for any Republican to vote, without seeking in the fields of Democracy for a better one, where nothing but brambles and thistles grow? and instead of any solid substance being found in this Union ticket on the day of election, it will be found as light as chaff, and like the bloom of the thistle, it will be driven before the sweeping storm.

Gentlemen, the propriety of publishing the foregoing is freely submitted to your consideration. It is not for the success of party that I would labor, but for the good of the country. But it seemed to me that the public should know what the prevailing feeling is through the country in regard to the Union ticket. I was in favor of a union myself, and attended the primary meeting, but saw such a manifestation of unfairness, and such a palpable one-sided maneuvering, that I resolved to have no more to do with it. MOON.

A PROCLAMATION

By the President of the United States.

WHEREAS, a joint committee of both Houses of Congress has waited upon the President of the United States, and requested him to recommend a day of public humiliation, prayer and fasting, to be observed by the people of the United States with religious solemnities, and the offering of fervent supplications to Almighty God for the safety and welfare of these States, His blessing on their arms, and a speedy restoration of peace;

And whereas, it is fitting and becoming in all people at all times to acknowledge and revere the Supreme Government of God, to bow in humble submission to His chastisements, to confess and deplore their sins and transgressions in the full conviction that the fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom, and pray with all fervency and contrition for the pardon of their past offences, and for a blessing upon their present and prospective action;

And whereas, when our beloved country, once, by the blessing of God, united, prosperous and happy, is now afflicted by faction and civil war, it is peculiarly fit for us to recognise the hand of God in this visitation, and in a sorrowful remembrance of our own faults and crimes as a nation and as individuals, to humble ourselves before Him, and to pray for His mercy—to pray that we may be spared further punishment, though justly deserved; that our arms may be blessed and made effectual for the re-establishment of law, order and peace throughout our country, and that the inestimable boon of civil and religious liberty, earned, under His guidance and blessing, by the labor and sufferings of our fathers, may be restored to all its original excellence: Therefore I, Abraham Lincoln, President of the United States, do appoint the last Thursday in September next as a day of humiliation, prayer and fasting for all the people of the nation, and I do earnestly recommend to all people, and especially to all ministers and teachers of religion of all denominations, and to all heads of families, to observe and keep that day according to the end that the united prayer of the nation may ascend to the Throne of Grace, and bring down plentiful blessings upon our own country.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great seal of the United States to be affixed, this 12th day of August, A. D. 1861, and of the Independence of the United States of America the eighty-sixth.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

By the President,
WM. H. SEWARD, Secretary of State.

The Army at Washington.

A correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial thus writes:

"The steady agglomeration of forces here from Pennsylvania, New York, the New England and North Western States, goes on; but it has received a tremendous accessionary impulse in the last three or four days. I am literally afraid to state how many regiments have got in since last Saturday, last the statement, in the first place, should not be believed, and in the second place, should lay the pre-
