Pittsburgh Gazette.

PITTSBURGH:

THURSDAY MORNING, OCT. 3, 1861.

Success of the Republican Ticket.

We have seen many friends from all parts of the county, during the present week, and all of them give the most encouraging accounts concerning the success of the Republican county ticket. The Republicans of the country districts are standing up, almost as one man, for their ticket, and will most undoubtedly elect it.

Even the leaders in the bogus "Union" movement confess this, and those of them who have been through the county admit it freely. It is now generally conceded, even by those who got up the "Union" movement, that the Republican ticket will be elected.

It remains, however, for the Republicans of the two cities and the adjacent boroughs to second, handsomely, the united, energetic effort of the country districts in behalf of the ticket. Let them not subside into an inglorious quiet, and so let the country bear off the palm from the town. A little determined work upon the part of our city friends will secure to our nominees an old-fashioned Republican majority.

The "Union" movement was entirely unnecessary, so far as the interests of the country are concerned. Every Republican in the country is a friend of the Union, and the Union, every one knows, could not be in better hands than in the hands of Republicans. To get up a "Union" ticket, therefore, in opposition to the Republican ticket, which is and must of necessity be unalterably committed to the cause of the "Union," was the baldest of political tricks.

It was got up solely to engineer Democrats into office, and the sterling Republicans of this county are too wide awake to be caught aiding and assisting in any such game.

We are, as we have said, to have a victory; but let us make it complete and overwhelming. The tricks of the democratic managers deserve to be rebuked, and a rousing Republican majority will do it effectually.

William Hutchman.

This gentleman, nominated upon our ticket for Assembly, is not, perhaps, as well known as his colleagues, and we take pleasure, therefore, in singling him out in order the better to commend him to the confidence and support of our party friends.

Mr. Hutchman is a quiet, undemonstrative man, but intelligent, well educated, honest, upright, and of unbending integrity. These are not the mere idle words, issued of course in all heated political contests, but words sincerely uttered and well deserved. We can certify to the solid worth and ability of Mr. Hutchman, and promise, without a doubt, that he will do no discredit to himself, the county, or his party friends, in the Legislature. He will make a valuable and useful Representative, and we feel well assured that he will establish a creditable reputation for himself.

We commend him, therefore, to the hearty support of our friends, and we trust that none of them will feel tempted to scratch his name from the ticket because they may not happen to know him.

Mr. Carlisle, the person put up by the "Union" Convention in opposition to him, was a delegate in the Convention which nominated Mr. Hutchman, and was in honor bound by the action of that Convention. It has never been considered the clean thing, in politics, to take part in the proceedings of one Convention and then seek a nomination from a Convention of its opponents.

Independent of this, however, Mr. Hutchman is, in all respects, the superior of Mr. Carlisle. We do not wish to be understood as disparaging the latter gentleman, but any one who knows the two men will bear us out in saying that Mr. Hutchman is much the best man of the two. If Mr. Hutchman had been beaten in our Convention, he would have submitted, like a man; and the fact that his competitor did not do so, gives an infinite advantage to the Republican candidate.

In making up your tickets, therefore, watch and see that Mr. Hutchman's name is not overlooked.

SHOOTING FRIENDS INSTEAD OF ENEMIES.—There are a few soft heads (including a few sore heads) who have been proposing to loyal Republican voters that they should turn the approaching election day into a kind of Great (or Little) Bethel affair. That is to say, that they should go out in motley uniform and mistaking their friends for the enemy, fire their deadliest volleys into their ranks. Old Locofoco drill-masters have indeed been wont to chuckle time and again at what they had been able to do by mere force of drill. Such men naturally enough would suggest such a system of tactics as that by which it is hoped to subvert the Republican ascendency in this county. Moreover, they would enjoy a Bethel affair, if they could get such a one arranged to come off here, with a most complacently malign satisfaction.

But much as the managers of the Union swindle may flatter themselves in the "promising looks" that their skilful dodges have put on at times, it will only require the experience of next Tuesday to prove that "promising looks" are very deceiving things. The qualities of superior drill may be allowed to have a high value, but when the rank and file are wanting, even those qualities are at a discount; hence there is no marshaling of the forces of the Democracy of the ancient and usual style; on the contrary, it is now the strategy of combinations—a kind of political shoddy called Unionism. But after all, we incline to think that however deficient in drill, the Republicans in this county will not gratify these gentry by making a Bethel fight next Tuesday for their amusement.

MORE RECRUITS WANTED.—As the government is hunting for the graduates it has educated in its schools for the army and navy, in order to turn their experience to good use, we commend its attention to an ex-midshipman in this city (lately serving as City Solicitor) who is now flourishing in spinning sailors' yarns, and manufacturing "Union" tickets. He is a young gentleman of great prowess, and might be entrusted with the command of that luckless vessel, the R. B. Forbes. He could not possibly do worse than the late commander of that craft, and as he has proven himself able to manage a new party, he could doubtless catch the Sumter, if he would only try. His martial bearing would strike terror into the commander of that piratical vessel. Let Mr. Secretary Wallen think of it. He is just the man for the Post.

Something About Contractors.

Bayard Taylor, after five months' absence, makes a visit to Washington, and finds the "locks of things" there greatly improved. The swarm of Southern spies has wholly disappeared. At Willard's he found a much purer and healthier atmosphere. The army of office hunters, ravenous even in that time of peril, is scattered to the winds, and their place is supplied with officers, duly furnished with passes, patriotic lookers-on, and shrewd-visaged contractors or applicants for contracts.

"These latter belong to an indispensables, and if they were all honest, an honorable class; but one cannot help feeling, after the revelations that have been made, that they now necessarily subject themselves to suspicion. The contractor-face (which one soon learns to distinguish) does not always inspire confidence. It is hard, keen, unrefined—suggesting the lines of Hebel, the German Burns:

> "Twice two is four, if stocks 'll rise.
> I see the figures in your eyes!"

Few persons have an idea how manifold have been the attempts to prey upon the necessities of the Government. I am glad to know, however, that very effective measures have been taken to compel honesty, and that the vampyres will be deprived of their expected gorge. There is one measure, which may be adopted when all others fail. Three years ago, Alexander of Russia, at a council of his Ministers, demanded some plan for the prevention of venality among the Russian officials. After various measures had been proposed and rejected, the Emperor, getting impatient, said: "Gentlemen, I know one effectual cure, which I may be forced to use—Publicity! A free Press!" Let every instance of dishonesty or extortion be officially published, without regard to name or position, and shame on one side and execration on the other will do the rest. On the other hand, there are a few noble examples of patriotism and principle among those who supply the Government. Let us know them also."

[For the Pittsburgh Gazette.]

That Packed Convention, Again.

Messrs. Editors: There has been a great deal of squirming, among the managers of the late "Union" Convention, at the exposures made in my former communication. They have blamed this man and that for writing it, without once suspecting the right one, and by their attempts to parry the force of what I said, acknowledge that I had, really and truly, an "inside view" of the entire management of that Convention.

The card of Mr. Bayne comes in, too, as a confirmation. He went into that Convention like Mr. Fleeson and several others, in good faith; but soon saw that the whole thing was packed and arranged by the Democratic managers, and that the delegates were expected merely to register the decrees of the managers. Mr. Fleeson, disgusted with the whole affair, with that manly frankness which characterizes him got up and left the Convention; and if the others who agreed with him had followed his example, the scheme of the tricksters would have fallen, then, as flat as a pancake—as flat, in fact, as it has fallen now.

The one sole object of that Convention was to nominate Joshua Rhodes for Sheriff. All the rest was mere incident. To accomplish this it became necessary to throw overboard the Democratic aspirants for Prothonotary and to nominate my worthy friend who presided with so much grace over the Convention. It became necessary, also to slaughter the various candidates for Treasurer, including the editor of the Post, whose acquiescence in the scheme of the managers had been gained by the glittering bait of that office which they held up before him. That they promised to nominate him is not and cannot be questioned, and it went very hard—with him, indeed, when they thrust him aside without ceremony, after they had got his aid in nominating Rhodes. It was rough treatment, I know, but they knew they could work him round, and so, after letting him sulk for a couple of days, they compelled him to swallow the affront.

I have no doubt they thought, at the time, they had done it very adroitly; but their failure to impose upon the people with their transparent humbug has compelled them since to acknowledge that it was badly managed. Having arrived at this conclusion, themselves, in common with the public, the best thing they can do is to hurry their dead bantling out of sight and bury it, before the election.

INSIDE VIEW.

Important from Frankfort.

FRANKFORT, Sept. 30.—The Governor sent in his veto of the Military Bill to-day, assigning, as his reason, that it was unconstitutional, because it limited his power as commander-in-chief of the Kentucky forces. The bill passed, his objections to the contrary notwithstanding.

A supplemental bill was also passed, transfarying the State troops to be raised to the U. S. Government. Pay and subsistence will be furnished by the Government.

A resolution was adopted requesting the Governor to inform the Legislature of the conduct and whereabouts of his Secretary, T. B. Monroe, and one requesting Senators Brecktridge and Powell to resign their seats in the United States Senate.

A bill passed the Senate, and is before the House, outlawing Kentuckians who invade their State as soldiers.

We have news that Zollicoffer has occupied London, Laurel county, about fifteen miles from the Union forces under Col. Garrard. Preparations are being made to resist his movements, which I cannot mention.

The Rebels in Kentucky.

Gen. O. M. Mitchel stated at the Barnet House, last evening, in a brief address to the Thirty-first Ohio Regiment, which was on the way to Kentucky, that he had news of the passage of heavy reinforcements for Gen. Zollicoffer through Cumberland Gap, and the movement of the rebel army towards Central Kentucky. Ohio troops are being thrown forward with all possible expedition, to reinforce Gen. Thomas, at Camp Dick Robinson, and a battle is expected in that quarter directly. Cincinnati is profoundly interested in military operations in that direction, for if Zollicoffer should prove victorious he might be expected to advance upon us, with the design of moving the seat of war into Northern Kentucky, and, if possible, carrying it to the banks of the Ohio. But we think he will be well whipped, and that the seat of war will be moved further South.—Cin. Com.

THE EXPLOIT AT PENSACOLA.—The daring expedition from the frigate Colorado, which has just resulted in the destruction of a privateer and the spiking of a columbiad under the guns of the Pensacola Navy Yard, is an incident which will figure prominently among the naval exploits of the war. While showing that the same courage and stamina which gave us so many triumphs in the war of 1812 still exist in our navy, it suggests the feasibility of capturing, with properly organized expeditions, not only Pensacola itself, but all the Southern ports of importance, and we trust it will not be long before the Administration is in a position to carry out this design for obtaining possession of these rebel strongholds.—N. Y. Herald.

"FOR GOD'S SAKE try to wake up your Northern people. You all seem to us to be half asleep. You say, 'We can put two soldiers into the field to their one.' You say it, and they do it. You are contending with a maniac, and you measure your efforts by the strength of a half-grown boy."—Private Letter.

So writes a correspondent in a border state, where the government is now grappling with rebellion. More men are wanted. We must put forth all our power, and do it soon, or we had better have conceded all that the insolence of secession has ever demanded.—N. Y. World.

ARREST EXTRAORDINARY.—We learn that William H. Russell, Ll. D., the correspondent of the London Times, who is spending a few days in Illinois shooting prairie game, was yesterday arrested near Wilmington, in Will county, at the instance of residents in the vicinity, for shooting on the Sabbath.

We are not in possession of the particulars of the arrest, but learn that he was to have an examination at Wilmington to-day.—Chicago Tribune.

PRIVATEERS IN CHARLESTON HARBOR.—Mr. Haley, who escaped from Charleston to Washington a few days since, reports that there are five piratical vessels now in the port of Charleston—the Gordon, Dixie, Sallust and two more, names not recollected. The vessels remain in port because they dare not attempt to run the blockade. Four of the crew of the Jeff. Davis are in jail for mutiny. They are charged with attempting to sink her.

FROM COLUMBUS.—Columbus, Sept. 30.—Four additional regiments of infantry from Ohio go into Kentucky immediately. Also three batteries of artillery.
