

Published by R. H. Hiddle & Co., Publishers, 11th Street, near Smithfield.

THURSDAY MORNING, NOV. 7, 1861.

FRONT'S REMOVAL.

The official intelligence of the removal of Gen. Fremont, which was published in our telegraphic column yesterday morning, produced most intense excitement in this city.

It is very difficult to say how far the removal of Gen. Fremont is a blow to the administration in the present aspect of the war.

It has been a wonderment with many how Fremont obtained such a hold upon the public mind, especially in the West.

But we repeat again, we hope the people will wait calmly the results. This is no time for excitement and rash measures.

Suppose for an instant that our armies were to be sent to the front, and that we were to be met by a Southern army, and that we were to be met by a Southern army, and that we were to be met by a Southern army.

It is not the first time that we have seen a general who has been removed from command, and that we have seen a general who has been removed from command.

It is not the first time that we have seen a general who has been removed from command, and that we have seen a general who has been removed from command.

It is not the first time that we have seen a general who has been removed from command, and that we have seen a general who has been removed from command.

THE GREAT EXPEDITION.

A letter from Fort Monroe, dated Nov. 4, to the Baltimore American, says: "The expedition to the coast of Virginia, which was organized by the United States Government, arrived from the North, having been delayed by the blockade of the Chesapeake Bay."

"As to the destination of the expedition being Fort Monroe, it is a matter of course that the expedition will be directed to that point."

"The expedition will be directed to that point, and it is a matter of course that the expedition will be directed to that point."

"The expedition will be directed to that point, and it is a matter of course that the expedition will be directed to that point."

"The expedition will be directed to that point, and it is a matter of course that the expedition will be directed to that point."

"The expedition will be directed to that point, and it is a matter of course that the expedition will be directed to that point."

"The expedition will be directed to that point, and it is a matter of course that the expedition will be directed to that point."

"The expedition will be directed to that point, and it is a matter of course that the expedition will be directed to that point."

"The expedition will be directed to that point, and it is a matter of course that the expedition will be directed to that point."

THE GREAT EXPEDITION.

A letter from Fort Monroe, dated Nov. 4, to the Baltimore American, says: "The expedition to the coast of Virginia, which was organized by the United States Government, arrived from the North, having been delayed by the blockade of the Chesapeake Bay."

"As to the destination of the expedition being Fort Monroe, it is a matter of course that the expedition will be directed to that point."

"The expedition will be directed to that point, and it is a matter of course that the expedition will be directed to that point."

"The expedition will be directed to that point, and it is a matter of course that the expedition will be directed to that point."

"The expedition will be directed to that point, and it is a matter of course that the expedition will be directed to that point."

"The expedition will be directed to that point, and it is a matter of course that the expedition will be directed to that point."

"The expedition will be directed to that point, and it is a matter of course that the expedition will be directed to that point."

"The expedition will be directed to that point, and it is a matter of course that the expedition will be directed to that point."

"The expedition will be directed to that point, and it is a matter of course that the expedition will be directed to that point."

THE GREAT EXPEDITION.

A letter from Fort Monroe, dated Nov. 4, to the Baltimore American, says: "The expedition to the coast of Virginia, which was organized by the United States Government, arrived from the North, having been delayed by the blockade of the Chesapeake Bay."

"As to the destination of the expedition being Fort Monroe, it is a matter of course that the expedition will be directed to that point."

"The expedition will be directed to that point, and it is a matter of course that the expedition will be directed to that point."

"The expedition will be directed to that point, and it is a matter of course that the expedition will be directed to that point."

"The expedition will be directed to that point, and it is a matter of course that the expedition will be directed to that point."

"The expedition will be directed to that point, and it is a matter of course that the expedition will be directed to that point."

"The expedition will be directed to that point, and it is a matter of course that the expedition will be directed to that point."

"The expedition will be directed to that point, and it is a matter of course that the expedition will be directed to that point."

"The expedition will be directed to that point, and it is a matter of course that the expedition will be directed to that point."

THE GREAT EXPEDITION.

A letter from Fort Monroe, dated Nov. 4, to the Baltimore American, says: "The expedition to the coast of Virginia, which was organized by the United States Government, arrived from the North, having been delayed by the blockade of the Chesapeake Bay."

"As to the destination of the expedition being Fort Monroe, it is a matter of course that the expedition will be directed to that point."

"The expedition will be directed to that point, and it is a matter of course that the expedition will be directed to that point."

"The expedition will be directed to that point, and it is a matter of course that the expedition will be directed to that point."

"The expedition will be directed to that point, and it is a matter of course that the expedition will be directed to that point."

"The expedition will be directed to that point, and it is a matter of course that the expedition will be directed to that point."

"The expedition will be directed to that point, and it is a matter of course that the expedition will be directed to that point."

"The expedition will be directed to that point, and it is a matter of course that the expedition will be directed to that point."

"The expedition will be directed to that point, and it is a matter of course that the expedition will be directed to that point."

THE GREAT EXPEDITION.

A letter from Fort Monroe, dated Nov. 4, to the Baltimore American, says: "The expedition to the coast of Virginia, which was organized by the United States Government, arrived from the North, having been delayed by the blockade of the Chesapeake Bay."

"As to the destination of the expedition being Fort Monroe, it is a matter of course that the expedition will be directed to that point."

"The expedition will be directed to that point, and it is a matter of course that the expedition will be directed to that point."

"The expedition will be directed to that point, and it is a matter of course that the expedition will be directed to that point."

"The expedition will be directed to that point, and it is a matter of course that the expedition will be directed to that point."

"The expedition will be directed to that point, and it is a matter of course that the expedition will be directed to that point."

"The expedition will be directed to that point, and it is a matter of course that the expedition will be directed to that point."

"The expedition will be directed to that point, and it is a matter of course that the expedition will be directed to that point."

"The expedition will be directed to that point, and it is a matter of course that the expedition will be directed to that point."

AMUSEMENTS.

PITTSBURGH THEATRE. Fourth Night of the re-enactment of the Great American Army.

CONCERT HALL. Thursday Evening, Nov. 7th, 1861. GRAND OPERA, BALLAD AND INSTRUMENTAL CONCERT.

SAVED MUSIC BOOKS. A NEW BARBARIAN SCHOOL SINGING BOOK. A LARGER STOCK OF PIANOS.

EDUCATIONAL NORMAL SCHOOL. H. WILLIAMS. A NEW METHOD OF TEACHING.

DEHAVEN & SON. MANUFACTURERS OF STOVES. WAREHOUSES, Federal Street, near New Market.

FALL GOODS JUST RECEIVED. We are now opening a choice stock of FALL GOODS.

FALL GOODS JUST RECEIVED. We are now opening a choice stock of FALL GOODS.

FALL GOODS JUST RECEIVED. We are now opening a choice stock of FALL GOODS.

FALL GOODS JUST RECEIVED. We are now opening a choice stock of FALL GOODS.

FALL GOODS JUST RECEIVED. We are now opening a choice stock of FALL GOODS.

Published by R. H. Hiddle & Co., Publishers, 11th Street, near Smithfield.

Published by R. H. Hiddle & Co., Publishers, 11th Street, near Smithfield.

Published by R. H. Hiddle & Co., Publishers, 11th Street, near Smithfield.

Published by R. H. Hiddle & Co., Publishers, 11th Street, near Smithfield.

Published by R. H. Hiddle & Co., Publishers, 11th Street, near Smithfield.

Published by R. H. Hiddle & Co., Publishers, 11th Street, near Smithfield.

Published by R. H. Hiddle & Co., Publishers, 11th Street, near Smithfield.