BELLINGHAM'S CELEBRATED
STIMULATING ONGUENT
For the Whiskers and Hair.

The subscribers take pleasure in announcing to the Citizens of the United States, that they have obtained the Agency for, and are now enabled to offer to the American public, the above justly celebrated and world renowned article.

THE STIMULATING ONGUENT is prepared by DR. C. F. BELLINGHAM, an eminent physician of Lc idon, and is warranted to bring out a thick set of in from three to six weeks. This article is the only one of the kind used by the French, and in London and Paris it is in universal use.

It is a beautiful, economical, soothing, yet stimulating compound, acting as if by magic upon the roots, causing a beautiful growth of luxuriant hair. If applied to the scalp, it will cure BALDNESS, and cause to spring up in place of the bald spots a fine growth of new hair. Applied according to directions, it will force red or tawy hair dark, and restore grey hair to its original color, leaving it soft, smooth and flexible. The "ONGUENT" is an indispensable article in every gentleman's toilet, and after one week's use they would not for any consideration be without it.

The subscribers are the only Agents for the article in the United States, to whom all orders must be addressed.

Price One Dollar a box---for sale by all Druggists and Dealers; or a box of the "Ongueni," (warranted to have the desired effect,) will be sent to any who desire it, by mail (direct,) securely packed, on receipt of price and postage, $1 00. Apply to our address:

SQUAPI SOAP!! SQUAPI!!---THE CHEMICAL OLIVE BRAIVE SOAP, manufactured by B. C. & J. H. SAWYER, is acknowledged to be the most serviceable of any kind yet offered to the public. Its superior advantages are found in its cheapness saving of labor, and its efficacy in removing grease paint, tar and without injuring the skin, or in the least wise damaging the finest quality of goods. It can be used with all kinds of water.

Reference is made with pleasure to the subjoined certificate, emanating from gentlemen well known in this community, and who had every facility afforded of seeing it fully and fairly tested:

Quartermaster's Department of the Twelfth, Thirteenth and Fourteenth Regiments Pa. Vols.

"Sawyer's Chemical Olive Brative Soap," having been used very extensively in our Regiments, we have no hesitation in certifying that it was found admirably adapted to the use of the soldiers, and decidedly the most superior Soap which could be procured for the service.

PITTSBURGH:
TUESDAY MORNING, NOV. 12, 1861.

LATEST FROM WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9, 1861.

Gen. McClellan and his Movements.

There is as much secrecy observed now as to the future movements of the commander of the army of the Potomac, as there was in fitting out the armada, and withholding from the public its place of destination. Gen. McClellan's plan of operations is not known beyond his immediate circle of advisers, and is most successfully preserved by them from all outside inquiry. Officers high in rank do not know anything of the future movements of the army.

Escape of the Rebel Steamer Geo. Page.

Secretary Welles received a dispatch at two o'clock this morning from Commodore Craven, of the Potomac flotilla, stating that the Rebels at and below Shipping Point were on the move, apparently going southward, and that the George Page had managed to get out of Quantico Creek, and steer along shore down stream. Gen. McClellan received similar information. It is believed that the Rebels are frightened by Gen. Hooker's growing intrenchments, and mean to take up new positions further down stream, very likely at Mathias Point. The Page was enabled to escape by the flood, which raised the water so that she could go close in shore.

Hon. Owen Lovejoy.

The fact that this distinguished Republican, known for his ultra opinions on the subject of slavery, remains in the service of the United States, in the army of Missouri, notwithstanding the displacement of General Fremont, is an eloquent answer to those who are attempting to make political use of this displacement.

Treason and Other Rascality.

The disclosures made by the intercepted correspondence which comes to the State Department, are startling in other respects as well as the treason shown. The letters directed to suspected parties are opened to find evidences of treasonable purposes and acts. In the cases where sympathizers are found they generally afford proofs of rascality, in other regards, and that with those who have had charge of this part of the State service it has come to be considered that a Northern traitor is equivalent to being anywhere in the category of criminals, from thieves down to peculators.

Movements of the Rebel Army.

Beauregard has gone South to receive the naval fleet. In future, his attentions will be directed more to the seaboard. For this purpose he was relieved some weeks ago from the command of the army, and Gen. Johnston was appointed in his place.

Report from Richmond.

A private of the 2d Michigan, wounded and captured at Bull Run, and returned because of permanent disability is on a visit to his regiment. He says that one fortification on the north side of Richmond, when he left, was more than three-fourths of a mile in length. Our soldiers in the hospital with him were well treated. Those confined in the tobacco-house were generally absent. The Georgia troops at Richmond were greatly dissatisfied and anxious to return home.

Visiting the Pennsylvania Reserves.

Senators John P. Penney, of Allegheny county, George K. Smith, of Philadelphia, Gen. Bartram A. Schaeffer, of Lancaster, and several other gentlemen of note from Pennsylvania, visited the encampment of the Reserves yesterday.

An Indignant Denial.

The article in The Independent, commented on by the Tribune, is regarded in high quarters here as a charge of treason against the Government. The stock-jobber who penned it littled dreamed he was writing his own passport to Fort Lafayette.

Investigation of the Special's nate Committee.

The Special Senate Committee have examined Commander Faulding and Paymaster Bradford, and will to-morrow examine Commodore Pendergrast. They will inquire into the destruction and surrender of the Norfolk and Pensacola Navy Yards and Harper's Ferry Armory. They will probe these matters to the bottom.

Knights of the Golden Circle in Washington.

It is probable that there is a secret lodge of the K. G. C.'s in active operation here, of course for disloyal purposes. Through its agency, no doubt, the rebels obtain important information.

Members of Congress in the Army.

Among the members of the present Congress now in the active service of the United States, against the rebels, are Hon. John H. McClernand and Hon. Owen Lovejoy, of Illinois; Kellog, of Michigan; Senator Wilson, of Massachusetts; Senator Sherman, of Ohio; Hon. John S. Phelps, of Missouri; Hon. James S. Jackson, of Kentucky; Hon. McKee Dunn, of Indiana; Senator Lane, of Kansas. Col. Baker, of Iowa, resigned his seat to accept the appointment of Brigadier General.

Visitors to Europe.

Archbishop Hughes left New York for Europe on Wednesday. Mr. Thurlow Weed leaves by the steamer to-day. It is understood that they will be followed in a few days by Bishop McIlvaine, of Ohio, and Hon. Edward Everett, of Massachusetts. The simultaneous visit of these gentlemen to Europe seems to be made with the approval of the Government, as they all have recently been here in consultation with the President and the Cabinet.

Thurlow Weed's Visit to Europe.

The Washington scandal in regard to Thurlow Weed is that he has not gone to Europe to procure the intervention of England to stop the war, but to avoid being summoned to testify before the Congressional Committee in regard to army contracts.

Gen. Buel Assigned to Kentucky.

Gen. D. C. Buel has positively been assigned to the command of the Department of Kentucky, and he will proceed to that State in a few days. The appointment of Gen. Buel to this springs from Gen. McClellan's high appreciation of military ability, regarding him as second to no man in the United States Army. It was first proposed to send Gen. Buel to the Western Military Department; but the purpose was changed, because Kentucky is now regarded as a more important field. Gen. Buel has the widest range of authority, and is promised the fullest support of the Government. Gen. Sherman may or may not remain in a command under him.

Treasury Department.

The Treasury Department clerks are very busily engaged in preparing the statistical tables which will accompany Secretary Chase's forthcoming report.

The Department has suspended the printing of the three years' bonds of the date of 19th of August, and directed the plates to be altered to-the first of October, fifty millions having been printed.

The Department this week have been paying, with the greatest possible expedition, the accounts of the army and navy, these being considered the most urgent and important. Other accounts are all necessarily suspended until that branch of the business shall be completed, when they will be acted upon in the order that they are audited and presented to the Secretary.

Reinforcement of Hatteras.

The Government has decided to hold the position now occupied at Hatteras. Reinforcements will probably be sent at once, including a regiment to replace the Indiana troops, who have suffered severely.

Another Expedition that went from Cairo

Since the disaster at Belmont, we dread to hear of the remainder of the expedition. We violate no confidence and give, at this late day, no information to the enemy, when we say that the movement southward was made, or was to be made, in two columns---one that attacked at Belmont, and was repulsed, and the other designed for New Madrid by the ridge-road, in the rear of Bird's Point. This last column, under command of Col. Oglesby, consisted of about 3,000 men---the 9th, 11th, 12th, 29th regiments of Illinois troops, Captain Noleman's cavalry, and Capt. Schwartz's Missouri artillery. We learn that they would proceed southward, and, passing the other column, make their way to New Madrid, and there wait for McClernand's men after their victory to come up! This was the plan. It may not have been carried out. But if an attempt has been made in that direction, and Oglesby has pushed on toward New Madrid, he is in great danger, and we are not without the most serious apprehension that he has been attacked in the rear, and destroyed by the regiments that cut up our boys at Belmont. At any rate, we dread to hear; though we hope that since we had reliable advices from the seat of war, the plans have been changed and Oglesby is safe!

LATER.---There is a rumor given in our Cairo dispatches, this morning, that Oglesby has fallen upon Jeff. Thompson's gang, and has routed them with heavy loss. It occurred some where on the back-road leading from Commerce to New Madrid. So far so good, if the rumor be true.---Chicago Tribune.

LATEST FROM KENTUCKY.

The Fight at Morgantown.

On Thursday last, the rebel forces, to the number of three or four hundred, swam the river below Morgantown, a village on Green river, about fifteen miles from Bowling Green. Col. McHenry was encamped with his regiment in the vicinity. On learning the intelligence he at once advanced with the force he had, and after a sharp conflict, drove back the confederates, killing many and pretty effectually dispersing them. The Evansville (Ind.) Journal says that the rebels, it is believed, had sent off for reinforcements, with the determination of making another assault. Col. McHenry dispatched messengers to different points for reinforcements, intending to give them battle. It is thought by this time he has 3,000 or 4,000 troops collected under his command. The messenger from the camp arrived just before the boat left, and the Journal's informant did not learn the number of killed and wounded, though it is believed to have been very severe on the part of the confederates, as they were compelled to cross the river in retreat. We may soon expect news of a battle, as the enquiet answer to those who are attempting to make political use of this displacement.

Rebel Movements and Reinforcements.

A correspondent of the Cincinnati Gazette writes from Camp Nollin on the 7th Nov.:

There has been some change in Buckner's programme. A week ago he had near three thousand troops at Munfordsville, and the fords on the Green river were all guarded as far up as Greensburg. Within the week all have been removed, and there are now no rebel forces whatever near Munfordsville or the Green river bridge. The reported advance of Gen. Sherman's flanking force from Henderson would solve the mystery, if the report were correct.

Recent information confirms the statements I made yesterday, concerning the increased rebel force at Bowling Green. Careful estimates, made by intelligent parties who have recently passed through their camps, fix their number at about thirty-five thousand. Figures, however, have an irresistible tendency to expansion, and I still suspect that the estimate given yesterday (twenty-five thousand) is more likely to be near the truth.

Contrabands.

The same correspondent gives the following account of the progress of events as affecting this element of the "social compact:"

A batch of eight slaves arrived in camp yesterday from the Green River country, or beyond. The party, with one or two who had been here before, were all turned over to the Provost Marshal, who is as yet sorely puzzled to know what to do with them. If our Administration were not sometimes given to the habit of having two or three different policies on the same subject, in operation in different parts of the country at the same time, there could be no hesitation. Secretary Cameron's recent instructions to Gen. Sherman would seem to leave no doubt that the negroes are to be set to work, whenever, they come to camp.

It is interesting to notice the terror the arrival of these slaves strikes into the Secessionists and semi-Secessionists of the country. So long as the army was occupied half the time in defending itself against the rebels, the other half in guarding and returning the rebel property to them, treason was rather a safe and pleasant game to play at. Now, when the idea begins to be hinted that while rebels are doing their utmost to destroy the Government, they need not in the meantime expect the Government to keep zealous watch over their property for them, they are horror-struck alike at the audacity of the Abolition Administration, and at the mortal dangers which it threatens. Hitherto rebellion has been a pastime; a common sense treatment of the contraband question will soon teach the lesson that rebellion is but a synonym for beggary; and the murder of "gardent sass of the South, who are eager to battle for their rights," will be wonderfully diminished.

A Daring Reconnaissance.

A correspondent of the Louisville Journal writes from Camp Nollin, on the 7th Inst.:

"On Sunday night, Capt. John D. Drent, of Company K., Louisville Legion, penetrated more than ten miles beyond Green river. He gives the most satisfactory and complete account we have yet received of matters and things in that region. His unexampled daring came near losing him his life or his liberty. Four hundred rebels beat the woods on all sides in search of him; but knowing every part of the country, and being determined not to return until he had accomplished what he went for, he managed to elude them, spent several hours in their very midst, and did not start back till they had performed the duty he went upon. He reports that in the direction of Glasgow there is no large body of rebels this side of Rocky Hill. The old camp at Horse Cave is entirely deserted. Roving parties fill the whole country as far as Green river, but as they did the strip between Green river and Bacon creek before our late advance to Nollin. They are plundering and laying waste every homestead between the pickets of their advance guard and Green river, as a while since they did those between their position at Woodsonville and Bacon creek."

Sleeping on a Post.

This crime of a soldier sleeping while on guard duty, has been so frequently punished so lightly as to call for a reprimand from the Commander-in-Chief. In general order 15, reviewing some light sentences for this offence, this leniency is spoken of as follows:

The conviction is forced upon the Major-General Commanding that the laxity of the sentences pronounced by the Court in the three cases above enumerated, is mainly due to the opinion entertained by the Court---in which the Major-General Commanding shares ---that the officers of the guard are largely partakers of the blame chargeable on the sentinels for sleeping on their posts. Nothing but the suggestion of a totally imperfect presentment to the mind of the soldier of the solemnity of his duties, while guarding a slumbering camp, could have prompted a punishment so very disproportioned to the crime of sleeping while clothed with such a trust, as a short confinement and a trifling suspension of pay. The punishment denounced against the offence by the Articles of War is Death, and it is not possible to name any military crime which more loudly calls for the infliction of this extreme penalty. Few things can be more subversive of discipline than mistaken lenity to flagrant offences. The Major-General Commanding is resolved to spare the gallant army he has the honor to command the risk of becoming demoralized by any such feebleness.

But let none fail to take warning for the future. All excuses for this most pernicious and unmilitary offense have been heard for the last time. Upon the regimental and company officers is enjoined the duty of impressing on those under their charge the flagrant nature of the offence of want of vigilance by sentinels, and the tremendous calamities which may ensue to the army from a neglect of this duty. No future want of such vigilance need hope to escape the extreme penalty denounced against the offence by the Articles of War.

We hope no stern a warning will not go unheeded.
