For Hotel Arrivals see fourth page. Compromising with the Owners o

Railroad Bonds. We are pleased to learn that there is growing sentiment in the cities and county, in favor of some compromise with the Railroad bondholders, which will forever remove this disagreeable matter from litigation and politics. We have no doubt that if the bondholders, will evince a liberal spirit, that such a compromise can be effected, and that all parties will be greatly the gainers thereby. If, on the contrary, the bondholders are contumncious, and re Quire a submission which the people consider unjust, viewing the case in all its mspects, that it will be long before they see annoy us and put us to great trouble and expense, and cause immense irritation, but it is impossible to coarce two hundred thousand people to submit to what they believe to be unjust. We most earnestly advise both parties to approach the subject in a spirit of candor, forbearance and conciliation By so doing we have not the least doubt that an arrangement can be made, which, while it will be immensely better for the Bondolders than to attempt to wrench the pound of flesh from the people, will at the same time inflict no hardship upon the tax-payers which cannot be borne by a prosperous and enterprising community. To the tax-most disagreeable controversy will be ended There will be discontents on both sides. Some Bondholders will demand the last farthing; and some tax-payers will not consent to pay one cent. If the authorities, however, make an equitable arrangement only postpone a realization of their money to their heirs. Let us then have an equitable compromise immediately.

The Associated Press Is a great monopoly, and we are but one new: paper; it is a combination of the principal New York dailies, who have formed a corporate association, in order to facilitate and cheaper the cost of collecting and transmitting news by Islegraph. When Secretary Comeron endorsed the sentiments of Colonel Cochrane's address, he did so understanding fully its import. There was no mental reservation in his expension of approval. The same views, I understand he put forth in an official and partisan trade on the part of the amendant servation of approval. The same views, I understand he put forth in an official and partisan trade on the part of the aminages of one of our Eastern lines. We are not so well assured that the superintendent here has preserved that impartial and the policy of the emancipation of altraight-forward course, which we should like to commend. If important news for which we have a contract, and pay a double share, is hereafter to be offered for alies as a "monoproly," we should like to have notice of the fact, that we might become a purchaser.

Matters and Things in Washington.

We are yel-without the Reports of the Departments and can only conjecture the policy they may recommend. It has been very evident for some days, that there was some hitch in the Cabinet machinery, that the parts did not run smoothly together, and that the Chief Engineer was going to take the matter in hand. We think this has delayed the reception of the Reports of the Departments. We know it has in relation to the Report of the Secretary of War, for we received a package containing this report, direct from the War Office, on Tuesday morning, and should have given it to our readers this morning, but it was reclaimed by the Postmaster, in pursuance to alternate from the Postmaster, in pursuance to a time to carry into operation tile to carry into operation tile sentiments of Cameron with rof. There is much speculation in regard to the recalling of advanced copies of the re-ports of the War and Navy Departments, which were sent to the northern cities for publication; but it is believed that this fact ndicates no alteration of them, and is only intended to prevent their premature publication: It is now fully understood here that both Secretaries Cameron and Welles naintain the same doctrine in their reports that has been evinced in their letters to Generals Butler and Sherman, and other ocuments, so far as they relate

We have no doubt the writer of the dis patch was mistaken. It is very evident from the following dispatch to the New payers, therefore, we say, meet the crisis York Times, that there was a struggle, and like nien, take up the burden and bear it, that it lasted until Monday afternoon or and it will grow lighter every day; and the night, and that the copies of the reports were reclaimed after the struggle had ended :

The he cannot be driven to the wall. The crack writer, the North American says, is a man f singular powers of intellect, and is gifted with originality in thought, style and diction. His object in submitting his reflections on the crisis to his fellow country men is to prove the absolute necessity there is of proclaiming the immediate emancipa tion of the slave throughout the length and breadth of the land; that the present contest is the legitimate result of previous legislation and compromises; that the South is consistently adhering to its old tre ditions and feelings and working out its destiny; and that the North is now in an essentially false position. We think this a good time to present such glorious thoughts on a question of such immense importance, written doubtless, by a man who has felt the iron enter his soul.
