danger of collision, and we pray the Government to be on its guard. Exclusive Privileges. There was considerable discussion in the House of Representatives on the bill to enable the Government to accept troops in Kentucky for one year's service. It passed, however, and is now before the Senate. Whether the Senate will concur in the views therein, of the expediency of conceding a privilege to Kentucky which is denied to Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, and all the other States, is not yet of course ascertained. True, we have several intimations from correspondents of the press, that the Senate is not expected to prove so docile in yielding this and some other demands to estain influences, as the House has been. For our own part, we shall rejoice if the event shall prove this anticipation to be correct. It has been asked, without any Kentucky for one year's service. It passed, correct. It has been asked, without any good answer being found-why put the Kentucky troops on any different footing from those raised in other States, for the | York Times says: defense of the Government? If it has been deemed prudent to require so prolonged a term of enlistment as three years, in the rest of the States, why is the name of common justice, privilege the State of Kentucky and administration of the samy are urging an advance upon that point, and arguing learnedly to show that the repolicy is to strike the enemy where he is exponent to strike defense of the Government? If it has been the State of Kentucky, exclusively, with a shorter term of enlistment? Why should the loyal sons of Ohio, Iadiana and Pennsylvania be required to pledge their services to the Government, in bearing arms against the enemies of their country, for three years, if the war should continue so long—while Kentuckians, professing to be equally loyal, and whose own borders are now actually invaded by the traitor hordes of Buckner, Marshall and Zollicoffer, wish to shrink from the fatigues, dangers and

But, be this as it may, we agree with a contemporary, who save of the contemporary with a contemporary, who save of the contemporary with a contemporary.

"It is difficult to see any good reason for putting the Kentucky troops on any different footing from those raised in other States for the defense of the Government. As against treason and civil war should rather raise the standard of loyalty than lower it. But Kentucky is not truly represented, who hope and believe, by the man who are asking, this miserable privilege in her name. We trust there are tens of thousands in Kentucky who will feel humiliated and mortified, as good and true men ought to ale, when they learn that such a demand has been made on Congress and the Government by Kentuckians. Will they not now, at once, indignantly demand that the progress of this measure shall be arrested in Congress and save themselves and their children the shame and repreach which the Fort Pick-ens, below the city, is of no strength. One can form some idea from these de tails, and by looking at the map, what an amount of work has to be done before our Western boys can reach Memphis by the Mississippi. But yetour Western Generals and soldiers, who know all these things and sordiers, who know all these things thoroughly, say that they expect to spend their New Year's day in Momphis. And if we may judge of the plan of attack from certain recent movements in Kentucky, we should not wonder if they did.

Action of Congress Needed.

The eurious proclamation of Gen. Phelps, in command at Ship Island, shows once more the absolute necessity for the government to adopt and carry out some general plan of action in this war. Gen. Phelps occupies the old abolition stand-ground; General Halleck acts on the equally old pro-slavery principles; General Sherman wastes property of the government for fear of employing negroes; and in place of marchings; under the principles of action; the public mind is confused by a variety of contradictory proclamations, and our Generals, instead of co-operating to one end, are permitted to bring their personal views into the war, and in fact seem to carry it on, each for his own ends and in his own ways.

The only remedy for this very serious soil is the passage of an act by Congress definitely instructing all military officers that war must be carried out on war principles; that all reserves of the enemy must ciples; that all property of the enemy must be confiscated, all slaves of the enemy freed, and every means used to put an end

Tybee Island is occupied by a considerable force, estimated at one thousand mon, who are to throw up batteries with which to operate against Fort Pulsaki, if they should ever be needed; but we have a telegraphic report to day of the evacuation of that post by the rebels. It is understood that Pulsaki and Savannah will not be approached in this direction. The details of the operations around Charleston have not been so fully developed. The war steamer Savannah and three or four gunboats lay off Tybee, within two miles of Pulsaki, when 'the Connecticut' was off Tybee. EXPEDITION AGAINST FERNANDINA.
