

The Principles and Policy of the Administration.

There has been an effort, by a certain class of politicians and press, ever since Mr. Lincoln's election was officially announced, to endeavor to separate him from the party which elected him.

The most important assault of this kind, from a respectable paper, we have lately seen, is by the Baltimore American. That paper, in a recent article, of the "crack of the lash" style, speaking of the commencement of the administration, says:

"With the great body of the conservative of the nation, we are not in sympathy with his views, and not in his confidence, the Executive appeared compelled to trust the ultra Union party."

That the President was compelled, from the necessities of the case, in a time of great danger, to choose his advisers from the party that elected him!

But the party, which elected him! That is something in favor of the patriotism of the Black Republicans; they could be trusted in time of danger.

The American says: "That infernal question of slavery is made, as of old, the issue in the journals of Congress, not one wait less distant country."

Just what was so distasteful to these folks during the Presidential canvass, and the American made the most of it, by denouncing Mr. Lincoln as an Abolitionist, as the Black Republican candidate.

No doubt the infernal question of slavery is detested to those who have made their last throw in its behalf, and now find it a losing game.

The safety of the British steamer Raleigh, with her cargo of rebels, is beginning to be a matter of doubt.

We are weary of this everlasting denunciation of every man, however able, pure and patriotic, who is not willing to degrade his manhood by mingling words about the great crimes of the age.

Quarterly Review, entitled "The Struggle of the Nation for Life."

Quarterly Review, entitled "The Struggle of the Nation for Life." "Dr. Watson seems to be devoting his learning and genius to the welfare of his country, in this time of peril, and we feel sure our readers will find it well worth their while to read the following extracts from another article in the same number of his Review, as by accurately does pertain."

"We tell the President, and we desire to do so with all possible respect, that even the restoration of the Union on a policy shaped expressly to conciliate the ultra Union, or the slaveholding interest of any of the Border States, would now, if possible, not be worth fighting. Why have we of the loyal States placed him in his present elevated position? No man better than himself knew that we voted for him at the risk of civil war and the dissolution of the Union, because we were determined that the slave interest should no longer shape the policy and govern the councils of the nation.

General Smith is strictly a soldier, and he, therefore, does not care to notice the attacks made upon him by ignorant editors and mischievous politicians. He has had no time to be disturbed by the clamor which is going on in the ultra Union States, and he has had to attend to his duties as a soldier.

Slaves of the House. Senators Douglas, Breckinridge and Rice built in Washington city, two or three years ago, for the sake of bringing the Union again to the dominion of Southern slaveholders, and of exposing ourselves to the reproaches of the ultra Union States.
