sors i We will hold their very means of living in our hands. Lower our tariff and they will sink—raise it, and they will lick the dust beneath our feet. Then we will lick the dust beneath our feet. Then we will hold them in bonds to keep the peace, to catch our slaves, to bend before our word, the dependents and feudatories of the true men of America. At every session they will fill the lobbies of our Congress with committees to beg for mercy in the adjustment of the details of our tariff—begging for the bread which we will give them, because we love mankind. At each returning session of our Congress you will see them favning around the throne they will scknowledge, returning to us our fugitives, and in every way endeavoring to propitiate the people they so insolently attempted in the old Union to enslave—the last instance in history of the members rebelling against the dealist.

agine that we can live together as one peois over with all the other added causes of remember that the punishment of treason discord. It is egregious folly, it is sheer madness to entertain such a vain, most preposterous hope. There can be no peace in the country until slavery is destroyed. As long as it remains there will be an apple of discord which will provoke continual and financial ruin. A way with it. Root it out. Then will permanent peace, complete union, eminent prosperity to all the land, be our happy lot, and not till then. God speed the happy day when the foot of a single slave shall no longer pollute our soil!

A Voucere for There—The President of Congress from New York, in a letter published in the N. Y. Times, says: that the President stated the other day in his presence that there was probably but one made in the country more anxious for a battle them himself, and that man was McClellan.

"The President repudiated, in words of withering rebuke, the charge that he, or "Identify days length of the delight would run through the country, to hear Kansas declare that neither is not a little colony planted here the withering rebuke, the charge that he, or "Identify days length of delight would run through the country, to hear Kansas declare that neither is a thrill of delight would run through the country, to hear Kansas declare that neither is a thrill of delight. That liftle colony planted here the country represented the declaration, to fight it through. That liftle colony planted here the country represented the charge that he, or "Identify days hence."

I believe it is the business of Kansas occlusively, with the gallant assistance of Wisconsin, Illinois, Ohio and other States soon to be represented the shall be country, to hear Kansas declare that neither the country of the delight would run through the country the delight would run through the country t discord. "The President repudiated, in words of withering rebuke, the charge that he, or Mr. Seward, or Gen. McClellan, were tampering or delaying, out of any consideration for rebels or rebel institutions, or that the Mississippi. That's the business of Kansas, assisted by the gallant West. I am authorized by the Gavernment to say to every officer and private that I will feel a slave for each one of you, and I don't care how soon you catch him.

They will be our white dependents—a superior kind of slaves—living by bounty, and dependent on our will, and crouching beneath the shadow of our empire. Blessed by a kind Providence, we will pour forth for mankind the means of life out of the exceeding, abundance of our unrivaled suntry. Nature has made all nations dependent on us for cotton, and with it, we can and ultimately will command a universal brotherhood and universal peace.

Now let the reader who has read this precious bit of Southern bombast inquire whether it is worth while to bolster up alsvery for the sake of educating men to such ideas and feelings as are here displayed. Is any man so foolish as to imagine that we can live together as one peoenemy than a mule. sgine that we can live together as one people, even if the rebellion can be put down without destroying slavery, while that delectable institution exists to divide us.
