The operations of the past year are then compared with those of former years, in an elaborate manner, exhibiting the prospects of the road in a very encouraging light.

The President concludes by alluding to his appointment by the General Government, in connection with the management of railways, his acceptance of the position, and thanks the stockholders for their kindness and confidence exhibited on all occasions.

The report was listened to with interest, and accepted by the meeting.

An election was then gone into for President and Managers, but up till three o'clock the result had not been announced. There are several tickets, upon two of which the voting is quite spirited. One of these is supported by the old managers of the road, and the other is sustained by those favorable to a change of management. The adherents of the first, named party contend that a large amount of stock has been purchased by a banker in the interest of the other party, and parceled out so as to secure a large number of votes; while on the other hand it is claimed by the old managers of the first, named party contend fairly, and fally entitles the holder to a vote. Motwith-standing this, over one hundred shares had been rejected by the Judges up till 2 o'clock, who are charged with partinity towards the following are the two tickets slinded to:
