They possess the capital of labor, and on that capital the first labor will be in demand, and will fetch a good price in the market, for labor is cotton, and sugar, and rice, and tobacco, and corn. The emancipated slave will be fit too lasy to work, let him suffer. We har hothing on that score.

The Projected State of Western Vir-

The Wheeling Press is quite indignant at our protest against a new Slave State being carried out of the Old Dominion. It says that Congress has no right to dictate as to the institutions a state may see proper to establish. We shall not stop to argue so abourd a statement. But suppose Congress claims the right to dictate, and exercises it, what then? Will the editor's opinions on the subject give existence to the new State? We have nothing to do with abstract quesference what the editor thinks. The trick of remaining silent on the subject; will not answer. We understand that game. The that after much deliberation he had come to answer. We understand that game. The inskeam State will never be a State de facto, unless slavery is forever prohibited in its fundamental law. The only chance the project has for a decent show in Congress, is from the republican majority, and we can tell the editor and the Convention, that their labor is lost, unless they agree to come square out on the principles of human freedom. Shams will not answer in these LOTAL BLACES HELPING OUR SOLDIERS. We learn from Hatteras that loyal blacks from North Carolina help to man the fleet of Flag-Officer Goldsborough, and to serve the guns which have sunk Lynch's boats and compelled the surrender of Roanoke Island. The navy, although a large proportion of its highest offi-cers are from the Slave States, has not been in the habit of examining a seaman's complexion before shipping him. "Can you fight?" is the only question. Experience has shown that becomes territory, to be governed by and of negroes may be excellent naval artillerists, and there is no reason to doubt that they can also load and fire arms on shore.

Transportation of Troops.-River versus Rail. The Cincinnati Commercial makes the following suggestion, which, we think, is worthy of favorable consideration:

of favorable sonsideration:

If the military authorities propess to send an army, of fifty thousand men from the Potoman to Cairo, it does not seem worth while to wagage railway transportation for it along the whole route. When the troops are at Pittshungh, they should be transported by way, of the Ohio river. They would travel in much more comfort from Pittshungh to Cairo, by steamer than by rail. They would travel to the Mississippi, while by descending the Ohio, they could be landed at their destination in good condition.

with the Sherman's Vailey Railroad, projected via Bedford to Harrisburg, it forms with the excellent Allentown routs a continuous line of rail from Pittsburgh to New York, thus avoiding the changes and delays incident to the route through Philadelphia. The importance to New York of an independent railway connection with the Ohio river will, of course, be appreciated by all intelligent commercial men. This is one reason why the business men of Pittsburgh are so active in supporting the present movement. With such an addition to their shipping facilities, heavy freights would go forward much more speedily and cheaply than at present. The subject is well worth the careful consideration of New York capitalists.

If the Tribune is correct in its views of the President's opinion and policy on the momentum and policy on the momentous subject in question, Mr. Sum-NEE may expect his cordial approbation of the grand measure of reducing all the States to the condition of territories, by which State rights, slavery among them, fall of course. It is the simplest, as well as the grandest, and we think the wisest way, out of the difficulties which environ us, growing out of this huge rebellion. Parental and conjugal relations remain; the obligations of honesty, of truth, of justice, remain; but wicked laws and institutions of violence and fraud, resting heretofore; solely, upon the State's authority, exist no longer. No loyal man may any longer recognize the local authority of any government in South Carolina, save the exclusive authority of Congress acting under the Constitution, for the purpose of establishing there those republican forms of government which it is solemnly bound forever to maintain within each State.
