Refusing to concede anything themselves, too many of the Border State leaders, and too many Democrates who are anxious to be classistated and the control of a large shall be accepted, and that nearly everything else is revolutionary and cruel. Has the Rebellion made alarcery stronger and more sacred in their eyes? Shall every ether description of property be depreciated and destroyed by the rebell, leaving inviolable the very initiation upon which they subsist? Are the Republicans to be ruled out of power, to be assisted and misrepresented, to be muxiled and threatened, when they propose to do that in the District of Columbia, the justice and policy of which have been frequently admitted by Democrate themselves? There should be at least as much generosity on the part of the Republican leaders, or the country will relapse into the very hands from which we are trying to rescue it. The example set by man like Ressenden must be followed the part of the Republican leaders, or their constituents.

The weather is sultry; delightful mornings and versings, but decidedly too hor for North error constitutions at noon. The roads are constitutions at noon. The roads are admirable, and the country their costs of the rest wooded, through which there are faw obstacles to the easy movement of a large barmy.

Some cotten is being brought in from the easy movement of a large samp.

Some cotten is being brought in from the case came in that way yasterday.

Briefly, that's all the news that ought to get into print. Fire sent it all by telegraph, but think it as likely as not the dispatches are still floating around in Government steamble by Democrate the politicians of the very hands from which we are trying to rescue it. The example set by men like Ressenden must be followed to the part of the Republican leaders, or their way to Cairo. The President's War Power.

There was a very interesting debate in the House this morning on a Senate joint resolution giving the President the power, when two or more officers are in the field, to appoint to service without reference to their rank. Much speculation was indulged in as to the particular necessity of the bill at this time. It was stated on the floor that the passage of the resolution would permit General McClellan to command at Purtress Monroe over Wool, and in case any dispute should arise between McClellan and Fremont hereafter, the President could instantly settle it.
