Republicanism. As the time is approaching w people will meet together in pristry meet-ings, and in conventions, to cor ult on their ings, and in conventions, to cor alt on their present and future political well-being, and to adopt platforms, ad to select endidates for another congress, it is proper that one should examine into the present political position of the Republican party, and into the adications as to its future.

What B-publicanism was at Chicago, or what " was on the day of its national trinuch, when ABRAHAM LINCOLN was proslaimed as the chosen President of the American People, or what it would have been had there been no armed rebellion, it is not necessary now to consider. What we have to do with is the pregnant present and the stern solemnities of a future, which cannot be contemplated without anxiety

Republicanism has nothing now to do with the dead past, except to point to its own honorable history. Former platforms ter abolished all obligations contained in platforms constructed for times of passes, and -under wholly different circumstances. As a party we have had a new work to perform, a work motocontemplated—at Chicago. We have not contemplated—at Chicago. We have not accordance with a platform of principles, but we have had a new work to great in accordance with a platform of principles, but we have had a new work to perform, a work motocontemplated—at Chicago. We have not be contemplated—at Chicago. We have not contemplated—at Chic are nothing to her. The guns fired at Sumter abolished all obligations contained party is next to saving the country by putting down the rebellion, which is the first duty of all parties, and which the Republican party has pursued with a single eye-that of an earnest protest against the agatem of slavery which exists in this country. The mode of putting that protest into practical action, and the extent of that action, is a subject of a wide difference of opinion

There are leading and able minds in the party who think with Jone Quince Adams, that the War Power of a country is above all municipal and local institutions, slavery among the rest, and that the moment the slaveholding States become the theatre of war, that moment the war powers of Congress extend to interference with the instilution of slavery, in every way it can be interfered with. Even the commander o an army, if necessary in his opinion to the FESSENDEN'S speech on the political plattary district, can declare universal emancipation within its bounds. It is a War Pownot of the number to be bragged of as "doing the fighting." Some voting there has been, however, outside the precincts, which serves as an index to the composition of the army. It appeared that when the New Hampshire boys on the Potomac voted, three-fourths of them were Republicans,—and now we have a thorough test applied in the case of Connecticut. We quote the following from the New Louden Chronic II did not intend even to be drawn to this

Extracts from the Speech of Mr Fessenden. The following are the portions of Mr safety of the country, or of his own mili- form of the Republican party, which have created so much comment and sensation: pation within its bounds. It is a War Power, and it is to be used for the safety of the Congress to the effect, that the object and purpose of this war was not to affect elevery.

Ohio, Illinois and Wisconsin, have given the Democrats the lion's share in the list of regimental officers. We simply don't believe that the Democrats have furnished one half as many men in the ranks as the Republican, else why do the Democrats the Bepublican, else why do the Democrats barg so largely of their ability to carry elections?

This bragging is certainly a chronichabit of theirs,—and they have sometimes oven gained their point on the mere strength of it. But those who are at home to vote, are not of the number to be bragged of as "doining the fighting." Some voting there has

The New York Tribuna, of Thursday, had an estimate, vouched for as furnished on good authority, of the number of troops from each of the rebel States, forming the rebel armies. According to this the total 128 HALF BBLS. WHITE BASS, strength of the rebels is 265,934 men. The New York Times considers this an overestimate. It says:

"The highest reasonably authenticated estimate of the whole force of the rebels is about 230,000, or 350 regiments, of about 700 effective rank and file each." Consequently, the entire rebel force is less than one-half, and scarcely in excess of one-third, the grand total of the national

Gov. JOHNSON, we learn, has begun to not against the Nashville rebels. At first he spoke to them; now he goes beyond mere words. Still he only hints at stronger possibilities-as yet. He has arrested Mayor CHEATHAM, but has not held him in custodycontenting himself with accepting CHEAT-HAM'S parole. Well, if the Nashville rebels do not profit by such gentle hints, the Governor will soon show them that he has stones to throw at them as well as tufts of grass. It is
