Important from Island No. 10. Carso, April 5.—The firing at Island No. 10, last night, disabled the floating battery of the rebels. One shell struck directly in it, killing three men, and disabling it so that it floated down towards the feet of the island. The firing te-day has been more active, and

The firing to-day has been more active, and has done good execution.

A messenger from New Madrid, this evening, reports that the rebels erected a battery, last night, opposite Point Pleasant. This morning they opened fiercely on our works. After firing for some time the battery was silenced by our guns, and a warehouse on the Kentucky shore fired by our shells; its contents were consumed. No casualties on our side are reported. Their loss is not known, but several must have been killed. All is quiet here.

will be organized and equipped immediately, as well here as in other divisions.

The position where the advance batteries now rest, commanding all the elevations beyond Stony creek, were selected by General Banks, amid the hottest of the enemy's fire, or Tuesday, and are unassailable by the rebels.

Washington, April 6.—We are authorized by the War Department to say that dispatches from Fortress Monroe, dated 3 o'clook Sunday afternoon, have been received by the Department.

A reconnoissance have been made toward Yorktown.

The headquarters of our army are about five miles from Yorktown.

There had been some cannonading, but apparently without injury on either side, and no ongagement had, up to that time, taken place.

A dispatch to the Secretary of War, dated New Madrid, April 5, states that last night Captain Naugh, with the gumboat Carondelet the rebel floating hattery to a point where it could command our mortar boats. A brisk fire was opened by the mortars, and in the course of half an hour the battery was struck several times, splinters being thrown in all directions, and several beam displaced. One shell exploded directly inside the battery, when it was immediately submerged to the waterstedge, and town out of range.
