In a letter from Port Royal, written some weeks since, I stated that a negro-preacher at that place, named Abram Murchison, possessing great influence among the blacks, had been summoned before General Hunter, who desired to obtain from him some important information. One of the ubjects on which he was questioned was the feeling of the blacks in regard to mili-tary organization. The conversation was deemed of sufficient importance by General Hunter to warrant further proceedings, on was | but wholesome work is accomplished, and and Abram was directed to call a meeting of all the male blacks at Hilton Head with view of ascertaining their disposition and in command his successor, CAPTAIN PEN.

the slightest degree to be coerced into this military measure. All who chose to enroll themselves must do so voluniarily and with a full knowledge of the consequences. Each man who chose was permitted to come fornations realize, very uncomfortably for some of them, the magnitude of the interests involved in the relations she sustains towards them, both commercially and paliward and have his name entered on the ward and have his name entered on the list, as a voluncer soldier, in case the Gov-ernment chose to accept his services. Every man in the room came forward. A few old men and boys were rejected on the ground of age, and the refusal seemed to inspire them with the most gennine regret. They were then told that Government had promised arms and equipments, and urged to give the matter the most serious reflection. With a coution arginst nublic tically. Look at the case with reference to England alone. The Chancellor of the Exchequer, in his recent speech on the Budget, states that the dispatch of troops to America, in view of a possible war with the United States, cost $4,250,000. Besides this loss to Great Britain, resulting from our urged to give the matter the most serious reflection. With a caution against public conversation on the subject the meeting was dismissed, and each one left, all ex-cited to enthusiasm, and apparently re-joicing in the opportunity that was about to be realized, of, exercising the right of defence of himself and his family, and of offering his life in defence of the Govern-mant whose protection he enjoyed. The number envilled that examing we civil war, it may be stated that in 1860 the exports to the United States amounted to $108,835,000; in 1861 they fell to $45,290,-000-diminution in one year $63,045,000.
