Destroy its fib and sophistry—in vain! The breature's at its dirty work again."

The Pittsburgh Post, of Monday, contains

What a brazen and deceptive set of gamesters these Abolition leaders are? How fondly and effectively they used to talk about the dignity of free white labor, the independence and intelligence of the American mechanic over all others on the globe.

If the editor of the Post means that we have ever advocated or do now advocate the "political equality" of blacks with the whites, he states a falsehood. We have no wish to raise men who have spent several generations in slavery at once to political rights; although they great mass of the poor degraded whites of the South, whom slavery has so terribly cursed. We believe every man has an "infavor of imparting to every human being as soon as it can be done consistent with the welfare of the whole people, white and black. Slavery having waged an unprovoked war against the life of the nation, we desire that it may meet the natural conseonences of its great crime,-that is destruction-and this we believe is necessary for the safety, honor, and future well-being of the Union.

The Post further says: Now, instead of attention being paid to the interests of white labor, we are invited to be taxed for the purchase of innumerabic slaves, to bring them here amongst us, and bestow upon them "natural and politi-cal equality," which the Gazette informs us is the definition of true Democracy.

President to assist the slave States to manamit their slaves, and thus remove a curse which has so ruined and degraded Southern society, and caused the present unholy civil war. The Post has pretended to support the President and his administration but its covert stabs have been frequent of late, and hardly an opportunity is suffered to pass without an indirect attack upon the men, by threatening them with the competition of the labor of manumitted slaves.

The baseness of such conduct cannot be too strongly characterized. There is no probability, whatever that the freed blacks the fluore prompt looking after by probability, whatever that the freed blacks the fluore transport of the Associated Press. will come North. They will stay where they are needed. Their labor is not needed here, but is needed in the South: in fact it cannot be dispensed with there, and such inducements will be held out to them that they will stay there. In fact, the free sured of safety, will all go South. It is astonishing with what pertinacity attempts to ameliorate the condition of the enslaved blacks, and to remove from our country a curse which is fast destroying the whole South. Political partizanship to destroy all sense of honor, justice and decency. See how glibly the term abolition in all conceivable ways. This is common yesterday, from a speech of Col. METCALF, of Kentucky, and in the following extrac from a correspondent of the Cincinnat

There is eng sign by which you can invariably know a secret traitor and a Secsision sympathiser; The word abolitionist is always upon his tongue. He dare no enter within the military lines of the Federal army, avow his treasen and shout for Jeff, Lavis; but he gives vent to the disloyaity pent up within him by continual-ly belohing forth curses and denunciations against Abolitionists, and uttering his de-sires for the extermination of this class. abolitionist also he does not mean merely those who favor unconditional and immediate emancipation, but all, who would like Mr. Lincoln encourage gradual eman-cipation in the States, or who would prepose to restrict slavery to its present limits, and resist its spread, are just as odious in his eyes as Wendell Phillips or Gerritt Smith.

All who do not reverence Slavery, and-worship it as the most sacred household good, belong to the detestable Abolitionists, good, belong to the detestable Abolitionists and he will exhaust all the billingsgat the secsion sympathiers. Danville. This is the town to which JEFF. DAVIS' achman says the rebels are fleeing to.

The following letter from Danville published in the Richmond Dispatch, of April 27th, shows that the hegira had commenced: The present appearance of Danville reminds one very forcibly of the cities of refige spoken of in the Old Testament Scriptures. From all parts of the frontier and sea-cost. of this State refugees are flocking to this point. Already the hotels and private boarding houses are crowded.

Not having anticipated such an accession to their population, the resident citizens had not laid in such a supply of provisions as would be sufficient in order that all may have enough. Thus eatables sell very These dulcet notes have all been sung; no more talk of tariffs of protection and "land for the landless;" it is now, according to the Gasette, an effort to not only free four millions of debased slaves but to a newered all purposes with the Gasette. the Gazette, an effort to not only free four answered all purposes with the farmers, millions of debased slaves, but to give them what that paper terms 'natural and political and other articles more easily digested than the weed.

Danville is a small village in Pittsylvania county, Virginia, just on the North Carolina line, about one hundred and thirty miles, in a south-west direction, from Richmond. It is the terminus of the Richmond and Danville Railroad. Davis is constructing a railroad at this time, to connect with Greensboro, North Carolina, a distance of about forty miles. This line is not yet completed, if we may believe the Bichmond journals, and until it is, the robels have really no way of retreat open blanks or rilled, and all other written or prisided and where of each copy shall not exceed eight cancer with the robels have really no way of retreat open blanks or rilled, and all other large Hardburg and the robels have really no way of retreat open blanks or rilled, and all others are large. suit of happiness," and this right we are in to them, out of Virginia, for their army, which they can move only by railroad; Burnsides having cut them off from the sea-board lines through North Carolina, while Mitchel and our Generals in East Tennessee make the retreat westward if not impossible, yet exceedingly hazardous. No doubt these considerations aggravate the panic among the civilians at Richmond, who are the more inclined to run off, just because all the avenues are stopped, as the panic-stricken savings bank depositor explained that if he could get his money he did not want it but if the bank could not pay him, he must have it at once.

What effect this state of things may have on the rebel army in Virginia, it is not Here the same falsehood noticed above is easy to know. The distrust of the people repeated. But we let that pass to notice at Richmond shows sufficiently that not the attack made upon the proposition of the much confidence is there felt in the army; and the violent and repeated assertions of the journals that is the duty and interest of the rebel leaders to defend Virginia to 31 the last, and stake their fate upon the bat tle at Yorktown, would seem to show that Davis and his fellows are about to abandon "poor old Virginia," and, as the Richmond Examiner says, "attempt to prolong a nomadic existence at Montgomery.

WE wish to call the attention of the At When the Post asserts, as it does in the above extract, that the are invited to be taxed for the purchase of innumerable slaves, to bring them hers amongst us," it utters an untruth of the most audacious character. Mr. Lincoln had no such design, neither had any who supported a measure so generous to the Post's Southern friends. The Post is trying to create an opposition to the President, and to any opposition to the President, and to any soheme to promote the amelioration of the condition of the slaves, among working men, by threatening them with the compenne, by threatening them with the compenne with the compenn

Skulking Rebels.

The Springfield, (Ill.) Journal, speaking of the plot for a siamped of robel prisoners at Camp Douglas, says that a similar stamped of incomers was balked, the other night at Camp Bailer. They were to rush upon the guard, and having subdued them, take the risk of being shet down by chance marksmen, if discovered. Whatever the details of the plas, were, Col. Morrison discovered them, and, by greatly strengthening the guard, prevented its execution. The fence is now about completed around the quarters, and the secesh prisoners will not now find it as easy to elude the vigilance of the sentries.

The rebel prisoners of war, now held in turance at Camp Douglas, near Chicago, and Camp Butler, near Springfield, have been unquestionably, in these attempts to escape acting in concert with rebels and traitors who phrases in the language to show his con-tempt for them. The proposition to confis-cate the property of rebels, and free their slaves, throws him at once into a frenzy. Wherever I have gone I have been able at once, by these indications, to recognize are at large. Ever since these prisoners were sent to the places mentioned, there have been who have ever given it a trial. Over four hundred enough of men and women, particularly the excitates of remarkable curse performed by it with showing that the pro-slavery sympathisers of those parts are as well effected towards their brethren of the South, as present dircum render it safe to avow. So much as $2,00 have been received on one day; at Camp Dougand in the stage coach from Warsaw to las, for distribution among the rebel prison ers there. By combining the amounts thus received they were able to get together a large nul of this secession talk.
