Pacific Railroad Bill.

We are indebted to Hon. Jas. H. Carrival Bill to aid arms any extend in this Department, which we do not enterly like generally called Campbell's bill, as it passed the House, entitled—"A Bill to aid in constructing a railroad and telegraph like from the Missourity iver to the Facific cean, and to secure to the Government the use of the same for postal, military and other purposes." The names of the corporation, Joseph Harrison, Geörge W. Casa, Jan. H. Bryantand Daniel J. Morrell. The bill will most probably pass the Seinste. The road will commence some ward, take my word for it the bill from the State of Missouri, and run to the Pacific. It was a steward particular to ward putting down this word of the role of invaluable advantage to the contry, and will bind the Atlantic and Pacific States in a lasting union. The bill is virtually a contract on the part of the Government, and, take my word for it that the state of the contract, and allows the General to more forward, there will be foundation, for the purpose of making a opporation, for the purpose of making a opporation, for the purpose of making a military rand across the plains of the West. The Government is only asked to advance a certain mount of gnoney to enable these grattemen to complete their project. They pledge themselves to return that money to the Government it only asked to advance a certain mount of gnoney to enable these grattemen to complete their project. They pledge themselves to return that money to the Government it is only asked to advance a certain mount of gnoney to enable these contract, and allows the General will be contract, and allows the General will be contract, and allows the General will be contracted in the Government to the course of a very five years; and at all times, even whe and other articles of war. The effect of this will be to strengthen the Executive, and by entwining the distant States of the West with the Capital of the country, to more closely cement the bonds of allegiance and power existing between them, and prevent in any of those vast and un-

Its dominant all-powerful principles, is the preservation Visit of the President to Fortress of slavery. Although it takes as its motto the "Constitution as it is, and the Union as it was," yet it complains most bitterly of consent to an amendment of the Constitution, giving new guarantees to slavery! a pro-slavery could do well enough before ness. Why, even some of the slave States themselves are taking measures preparatory to emancipation.
