Lieut. Col. Purviance, of the Stih, late editer of the Washington (Pa.) Republican, wounded in the leg, but not dangerous.
The 63d regiment, Col. Hays, was also in the thick of the fight. The Colonel was not, as I am informed, in the fight of Saturday, having been employed on some other duty.
Lieut. Col. Morgan bravely led his men to the work on that day, and was wounded in the hip. He was got off the field and was conveyed to White House, where he arrived on Sunday night. I hope he is at home with you by this time. I saw his colored servant this evening at Gen. Moorhead's. The Surgeon General refused to let him go from Fortress Monroe with Col. Morgan, so Gen. M. kindly brought him hither, and will, if the importance of his case, he being a colored boy, will permit, get him a pass over the road and through Battimore. Such persons are still dangerous, you
