This is an would seem, by the frenzied owners, to fall Pleas Court, by acclamation. This is an endorsement of his character as a man, and of his official acts as a judge, of which any man might be proud.

Mr. Lanberr was also nominated by accounts. The second of the clamation for the office of County Controller. The ability he has displayed in organizing the office and his sterling honesty, and impartiality in the discharge

In its last issue, by just quoting enough of Gen. Rousseau's speech to suit its purposes, it endeavors to pervert that noble and rigorous assault upon the treason of slave lders, into an attack upon Abolitionists Gen. Rousseau, after stating the forbearance which had been exercised by the army towards slaveholders, adds, "but the negro is in the way, in spite of all that can be done and said." The Post quotes thus far, and says, "the chief obstacle, it will be seen, to a restoration of the Union is the negro question," and then proceeds with

"I have warned our southern triends of the danger of continuing it much longer; and I tell you to night that if this war conti-nues a year from this day; there will not be a slave on this continent. The great revolution will take care of itself—the dead will bury its dead—and those who are causing all the bloodshed and desolation around us, under the false pretense that we desire to free their negroes, will, if they persist, one day find slavery snuffed out as you snuff out a candle. Slavery is not worth our out a candle. Slavery is not worth our government. It is not worth our liberty. It is not worth all the precious blood now being poured out for freedom.
