Our Special Dispatches. We are happy to inform the readers the Gazerre that we have lately perfected Narrangements by which we can place Pittsburgh on the same footing as the "most favored cities," as regards the latest and most direct news from Washington and other important central points of interest east and west. Our special dispatches from Washington, direct, commenced yesterday, and a reference to them any day, we venture to promise, will show that our correspondent has access to the very best and most reliable sources of information in Washington, and that the readers of the GATETTE are apprised of every import ant fact as early as the people of New York or Philadelphia who read the morning and evening journals of those cities. We are securing equally favorable arrangements in the chief western cities-and w intend that the GAZETTE, in both its edi-

Messrs. Wilmot and Cowan. Among all the members of the large Convention of Republicans, which met in this city on Monday, there was not one man who had a word to say in defense, or exulpation, or in extenuation of the course of EDGAR A. COWAN, in the Senate of the United States. There was a universal feeling of execration of the ingrate who had so

Whileadvancing slowly, the rebels opened tions. Some doubts were expressed as to his reliability, but they were pooh-poohed down by his friends, who vouched for him that he was a Republican of the true Antislavery type, and withal a man of marked abilities. In an evil hour his election was conceded, without much opposition, but with very little warmth. A fear pervaded many minds that a mistake had been made, but no one dreamed that it was of so fatal a character. He knew, when he was elected, the views of his political friends who raised him to his high seat, and what was expected of him, and as an honest man he ought to have undeceived them. If he had been an honest man, he would have done so; but he kept silent until the goal was reached, when he displayed his principles in their true colors. His political friends, of the Republican party, have been basely betrayed, and they scora the traitor, and repudiate his acts. Semi-secession Democratic, papers and conventions are now his defenders and friends, while Republicans despise the man who could stoop so low for office. Let Cowan go.

In Hon, David Wilmor we have a Senminds that a mistake had been made, but of experience in public life, and amidst opposition and obliquy has he maintained his integrity. He has graven his name on the history of his country, and stands forth to-day as the honest and honored son of Pennsylvahia, whose integrity has never been successfully assailed, whose patriotism is unquestioned, whose ability is undoubted, and who possesses the respect and admiration of the people of all the loyal States. The Republicans of this city and county see in him their ture representative in the Senate, and nothing will give them greater pleasure than to see him re-elected by the next Legislature; to a place he so ably fills, and so much adorns.
