WEDNESDAY MORNING, JULY 80.

Gen. Halleck. The hopes of the country now rest mainly upon the wisdom and vigor which may be displayed by the new Commander-in-Chief. The people are patient and reliant, and are willing to give every man a chance. Gen HALLECK takes hold of the chief military reins at a time of great depression, and he will make himself a warm place in the hearts of his countrymen, if he shall by his skill

Let him adopt the earnest and vigorous policy which is contained in the what is far better, will save his country.

Recruiting.

We regret to learn, through the press, that recruiting is not going on as rapidly as the exigencies demand. The New York Times, on this subject, says:

been offered to volunteers in profusion.
Almost everywhere, a man is furnished with quite a small fortune before he enlists, and all his wants and the wants of his famwithout ally provided for thereafter. In this city it would be useless to offer any further inducement. The increased bounty profiered by Gov. Morgan has not produced an increase of volunteers. In fact, the propriety or value to the cause, of the great rewards offered in some quarters, may well be doubted. As the Boston Commercial Bulletin of last week remarked, in writing on this topic: "If this country is worth saving, it is worth saving upon its swn merit, not because so much will be paid for people to volunteer; and fight." We are almost ashamed to write in this way on this topic; for we all know that it is neither on account of lack of patriotism nor pluck that men do not come forward and join the ranks relevant or secondary at present. The fact that there is abundant peaceful employment for all—the fact that the crops must be gathered—the fact that some are not satisfied with the conduct of the war—all sink before the great fact of the country's peril. It will not do to let another month pass away with as meagre results as have been exhibited this month. If the present method of raising the armies needed prove unsatisfactory and slow there must be a draft. The Germans of there must be a draft. The Germans of the mountain region of Northern Alabama, and the readiness displayed for ensatisfactory and slow there must be a draft.

The Governors of Ohio and New York have ordered an enrollment of the ablebodied citizens of those States, preparatory to drafting, if it shall become necessary. We hope that Gov. CURTIN will take the same prudential step in this State immediately. Drafting may not be necessary; we hope it will not be; but we should be prepared for any exigency. The army must be reinforced, for the nation must be saved. Let us be prepared for all emergencies.

A Job to be Repudiated. A St. Louis letter to the New York Tribune contains the following paragraph. We think the writer must have been misinformed. We would fain hope so. This is west tranch of the Pacific Railroad. From Boils to Lebanon is confessedly one of the worst parts of the State, and the Company would not be able to build the troads without this assistance for ten years. The plea is "military necessity," but what necessity can there be for only building fifty-six miles of road when it cannot be finished in less than a year and a half, no matter how vigorously the work is pressed, and then stopping at Lebanon, a place of no "earthly importance as a military post, and which, when the road is finished to that point, will only become a rendezvous for teamsters loading their wagons for Spring field and other places in the South-West. The Administration has given its concent to a nice job for the benefit of the State of Missouri. The President, through the influence of the Attorney-General, has given an order to build a railroad from Rolla to Lebanon, additance of fifty-six miles, at an estimated cost of $2,000,0001 This road will be a continuation of the southwest transh of the Pacific Railroad. We think Gen. Haller, whatever may be his private opinions, will carry out the laws in relation to emandipation and confiscation. In a letter to Hon. Francis P. Blair, written some time since, he says:
