In the face of such conclusive testimony as yours, I will believe that Mr. Lincoln is ignorant of many of its abominations. The disheartening effects which the course of Brig. Gen. Wood is having upon the brave man under his command is deplorable, and ought to be speedily and surely appreciated and the cause removed. Two men offered to awent that a man who came into our lines was exputain in the Confederate army on duty; but when Gen. Wood ascertained that the witness was "guilty of a skin not colored like; his own;" (the difference was very slight,) he discharged the accused, and abused the officer who interested himself in the arrest, for doing it upon the statement of men whose testimony Corner of First and Liberty streets, WAGONS, do., FOR SALE VERY

If that is not what Governor Andrew would denominate a tax upon my loyaity, then I know not how to tax it.

The three hundred thousand men called for by President Lincoln ought to be speedily raised, organized, and equipped by the States themselves. Then ought the Governor of the States to tall the President that these troops were raised "to conquer a peace," and organized and equipped to fight, rather than coar or guard rebels.

Our soldiers are exercised upon the subject of a more vigorous prosecution of the war. That feeling is unanimous among them. Another feeling, not entirely unanimous, but nearly so, and most intense, is that one which sees not less the absolute justice than the imperative necessity of emancipation.

This feeling is largely shared by the subordinate officers here, but that two or three Brigadier Generals and a score of Colonels only were appointed from that class. They are the salt of the earth. WOLK.
