we are sorry to hear, that are doing but little; and we cannot think of them but with soorn and contempt. The day will some when a man will be ashamed to have come when a man will be ashamed to have oen born in such and such a district. The country can get along without these men. but we shall be glad to see the draft swoop up some of them, and compel them to act as patriots whether they will or not.

But to come back. We hope the call of our laborious and noble Executive Committee, for funds, will be responded to atonce. A good prospect looms up before us. Le us not be weary in well doing, with a glorious end so nearly in view.

The Battle of Baton Rouge. This was one of the most gallantly con-the present, because one of the several reconnoitering parties sent out this morning, and which has returned, reports five abandoned caissons on the Greenwell Springs road. We have sent out to bring them in. This indicates a hasty retreat on the part of the enemy. Our forces could not pursue. One half of the men who left the hospitals to fight, could not march a mile. The conduct of these men was magnificently glorious. The attack was undoubtedly made upon representations of rebels within our lines that our troops were nearly all sick and denoralized, and Gen. Breckinridge undoubtedly expected, in conjunction with the ram Arkansas, to make a successful dash it was a complete failure. The ram is blown up. Their troops were repulsed. "Gen. Williams disposed his forces as follows, viz: The 4th Wisconsin on the extreme left on the right bank of Bayou Groess, with two pieces of Manning's battery in treme left on the right bank of Bayou Gross, with two pieces of Manning's battery in the Arsenal grounds, on the left bank of Bayon-tross, to sweep the ground on the left of the Wisconsin 4th. The 9th Connecticuit was posted on the right of the 4th Wisconsin, with two pieces in rear of centre, and two pieces in rear of the right. All of these pieces were of Manning's bat-

"You will, therefore, see that the disposition (with the slight exception hinted at) and the manœuvering were faultiess.

"The brave General Williams fell in front of the Sixth Michigan towards the end of the conflict, while giving his men a noble example of reckless and daring bravery. He was killed by a rifle ball in the chest.

"The enemy's forces consisted of two The enemy's forces consisted of two Louislans regiments (the Fourth and Thir-tieth), two Mississippi, the Third, Fourth Fifth, Sixth, Seventh and Eighth Kentucky, two Tennessee, one. An Appeal to be Heeded.

The appeal of our Executive Committee to the people, to furnish twenty-five thousand dollars more to pay bounties, and thus by inducing volunteering to save this county from drafting, we believe will be cheerfully responded to by our large hearted and patriotic citizens.

If the present call for .600,000 men is filled, we have no fears that any further call will be necessary. This number, with the old armies, will be sufficient to end the war, and crush out the rebellien.

Young men, who are thinking of enlisting should consider this. The last opportunity of taking an active part in the field.

You say, for the President, that "the two races cannot exist in freedom together." I might answer this assertion in saying, ou he contrary, that the two races can ine contrary, that in two races cannot exist in slavery together. It is slavery which has brought on the war, not liberty. The two races exist in freedom together in Russia, in France and in England, the most powerful and the most refined nations on This was one of the most gallantly contested fights of the war. Our brave troops were out numbered by more than two to one, and yet they drave the enemy back, and defeated him with great slaughter. Lieut. Weitzel, at the request of Gen. Butler, paid a visit to the scene of the conflict, and makes the following report to Gen. Butler:

The right flank depends upon gunboat support. The only fault of disposition—perhaps rendered unavoidable by the formation of the ground—was that the camps of the Fourteenth Maine and Twenty-first Indians were pitched in front of their position in line of battle and consequently came into the possession of the enemy for a short time.

"The enemy formed line of battle on the open grounds, bordering on the Greenwell Springs road, and attempted to draw our forces out. Falling in this, they advanced rapidly on the ground between the Clinton and Clay Cut roads. The whole brunt of the attack, consequently, fell upon the Fourteenth Maine, Twenty-first Indians and Sixth Michigan. As soon as it became apparent that this was the real point of attack, General Williams ordered up the Ninth Connectiont, Fourth Wisconsin, and one section of Manning's battery, to support the loft, and the Thirteenth Massachuscits and two sections of Nim's battery to support the loft, and the Thirteenth Massachuscits and two sections of Nim's battery to support the loft, and the Thirteenth Massachuscits and two sections of Nim's
