"The returns from some of the border districts show large enlistments of men in regiments of other States." As these men are not surclied in any way to enable the National Government. to credit the State with such volunteers on our quota, the credit cannot be allowed so as to reduce the quots called for.

"If your returns show men in any of your districts to be enlisted in foreign regiments, you will credit such districts with the number of such enlistments, but not reduce the gross quots of the county thereby. Instead of requiring such districts to rates their full quota in addition to the foreign enlistments, you will require the other districts of the county to contribute their full share in accordance with the enrollment, and thus ratio the full quota of the county and equalize the draft practically upon all the districts.

Respectfully Yours.

The question was finally put, and the meeting decided that the reports should be made to the Hon. Thomas M. Hows.

Several gentlemen were present with muster rolls, and all those who wished to enlist for the defense of the State were requested to put down their names.

Perhaps a majority of those present had already enrolled their names in their ward or ready enrolled their names in their ward or reganizations, but some who had not done so stopped forward and signed the roll.

The meeting then adjourned, having, as we stated in the outset, failed to accomplish any good result. The scattering policy whip the rebel armies. The scattering policy has been played out on our side. If the rebels are not bagged in Kentocky, it will not be the fault of the generalship in this Department.

Never was such an army concentrated, and such preparations made, as have been accomplished here within a week. One week ago last Monday, there was not a gun mounted, or a regiment on hand to defend this city.

Now, you would be surprised if I could tell you our strength.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12-The Sear, of this At an early hour yesterday morning, a portion of a division of U. S. troops drove the rebels out of Sugar Loar Mountain, in Frederick county, Maryland, a point of much military importance, commanding the view of a large scope of country in all directions. The rebels posted there made some resistance, which was overcome in a few moments, with the loss of not more than a dozen killed and wounded on our side. We do not know the rebel loss in the affair.
