TUESDAY MORNING, SEPT. 16.

THE news from the West is gratifying. Not only are the rebels driven back from the Ohio River, which they had audaciously approached on their success over NELSON at Richmond, Ky., but the immense army of volunteers, now in the front of Cincinnati, give us promise that they will do much more than protect that city and repel an invasion of their State. They are rousing enthusiasm, the consciousness of strength, in the loyal men of the whole Northwest, and it is everywhere beginning to be felt, that, in any event of disaster, from the incompetence, or treachery, of those now in command of our armies, the FREE, LOYAL PEOPLE of the country, even after a declination from the war as conducted by BUELL, and other generals, for more than a year past, can put their own hands to the work and retrieve all, spite of evil-forebodings and even of the abundant works of the prophets of evil.

—But the report of Gen. MORGAN having made a successful dash upon a provision train, capturing it and taking a number of prisoners, in connection with the retreat of the rebels under KIRBY SMITH, gives us assurance that if a sufficient degree of energy be infused into our generals to follow up their advantage, Gen. MORGAN will be relieved before his beleaguerers can have forced him to surrender, and that important point, Cumberland Gap, will be retained in our possession.

We wish we could look with more hopefulness in the direction of Nashville; but with BUELL in command, who has already wasted everything and obstructed everything, there is hardly a foothold for the most forlorn of hopes, in that quarter, so far as generalship is concerned.

Our Own Defences.

We expressed the opinion on Saturday that there was no absolute necessity for the militia called out in this region, for the emergency, by Gov. CURTIN, to go to Harrisburg. Our opinion then expressed is borne out by the news received and published this morning. We believe that Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania are really in more danger from an inroad of the enemy than Harrisburg and Cumberland Valley. The rebels may possibly strike for Harrisburg, but we do not think it probable, because they would be in danger of having their retreat cut off by McCLELLAN. They may mass themselves for another attack on Washington, or a large detachment, under an enterprising general, may press on to Cumberland, and take the National road to Pittsburgh, or enter Pennsylvania at a point further down the railroad, through Fayette or Greene counties. We esteem our danger as equal to that of Harrisburg, because we have no adequate preparations for defence, no large army near us, and we have been sending off our best men to the east.

We have much confidence in the wisdom and prudence of A. A. A. General Howe, and we commend to his consideration the condition of our own defences. We hope that no stop will be put to arming and disciplining the militia. We ought to have twenty thousand men in this region, fully prepared, and ready to march at the first tap of the drum, to defend our western border.

The Capture of Garibaldi—The Rebel Steamer "No. 290" at Sea.

The steamer Edinburgh, which left Liverpool on the 3d instant and Queenstown on the 4th, passed Cape Race yesterday. Her news is four days later than previous advices.

Additional particulars of the defeat and capture of Garibaldi are received by this arrival. He was wounded in the thigh and foot by a bayonet, his retreat cut off, and unconditional surrender inevitable. The resistance, nevertheless, was desperate. He has arrived at Spezzia. It is reported that his wounds are not dangerous, and are progressing favorably. It is presumed he will be tried and sentenced, but pardoned on account of past services. One rumor says the government contemplates sending him to America.

Popular demonstrations in favor of Garibaldi had occurred at several places but had been put down.

The newspapers generally think the event must hasten the solution of the Roman question, and cause the French to withdraw from Rome.

The blockade of Sicily has been raised and the state of siege removed.

The rebel pirate steamer "290" is reported to have received from the steamer Bahama off the Western Isles, iron plates, munitions of war, &c., to enable her to intercept Northern vessels as they approach the coast, and in the absence of any port to go into, to take and destroy all ships and cargoes. She is commanded by the pirate Semmes, late of the Sumter, and is now called the Alabama.

The Liverpool Telegraph, on the authority of a pilot, gives a circumstantial account of a desperate naval engagement on the night of the 20th, between two vessels, supposed to be Federal and rebel, two hundred and fifty miles south of Holyhead.

The Mercury asserts that the story is destitute of truth, and is probably founded on gun-practice between two British war vessels.

Pearson Hall, a ship owner, who has been active in running the American blockade, has suspended payment in consequence of difficulties in realising returns from the "cavalry."

Queen Victoria has gone to Germany.

THE St. Louis Republican says affairs again look threatening in Southwest Missouri. For a short period there has been a respite from guerrilla raids, but these bands now come swarming forth from Arkansas, where they had retreated to recruit and perfect what little organization may be made to exist among lawless desperadoes. Advices state that they are now out again, and threatening the whole Southwest. The leaders are Raine, Hindman, McBride, and other equally notable bushwhackers, who have amassed a total force of about 16,000 men. Having numbers, the only thing they lack is arms and ammunition. In this they are positively known to be most fortunately deficient. Opposed to them are several thousand National troops, well armed and equipped, and under good officers. More are being sent, and it is thought that the guerrilla movement will not only be instantly checked but severely punished. Stirring news may be instantly expected from the Southwest.

FATAL ILLNESS OF KOSSUTH.—A Scottish newspaper states that "poor Kossuth, the Hungarian patriot, is in the final stage of consumption, and that probably before many weeks pass away, a noble country will have to weep for the loss of one of her noblest and most gifted men."

NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL.

Correspondence of the Pittsburgh Gazette.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12, 1862.

The battle expected ere this, still hangs on the hooks and may be looked for any moment. Meantime the insolent foe pushes his columns towards our own State, with the declared intention of seizing our archives, and dictating a peace in Philadelphia. After what he has done, it is difficult to be surprised at anything. They are ragged! yes, but they fight without clothes. They are barefoot! yes, but that is their fighting trim! They are hungry, and therefore fight for something to eat. They put an ear of unripe corn or a green apple in their haversacks and travel on their muscle, fighting as they go, a week or an empty stomach. Gen. McClellan's army, with its wardrobe on its back and a train of wagons at its heels, is out-traveled and sometimes out-generaled.

OBITUARY.

W. J. Marks, First Lieutenant of Co. E, 63d regiment, died at Armory Hospital on Thursday, from a wound in the knee, received in one of the late battles. He is cousin to Rev. J. J. Marks, Chaplain of the same regiment. Capt. Danks was originally in command of the company, but was wounded at Fair Oaks. I believe he has just returned to his command. Lieut. Marks commanded the respect of his fellow officers and of all who knew him. He unselfishly gave his life for his country, and his memory shall be green with that list of heroes who have gone forth to brave all in this contest for the national life. Peace to his ashes.

EDWARD J. ALLEN'S

Regiment, recruited in and about Pittsburgh, has arrived here, and is stationed at Fort Craig. It is a fine body of men, and the Colonel is well known as a brave and true man. He has campaigned with the Pathfinder—the glorious Fremont—the soul of honor and manly worth. When shall we look upon his like again! The new regiments are under active drill, and will, it is hoped, soon be prepared to assume an offensive attitude.

GEN. POPE'S REPORT.

You will have seen that and noticed the very serious charge it contains against Porter and Franklin. The question is indeed an important one—how are all the questions therein raised, disposed of? Porter and Franklin in the field; Gen. McClellan lately with a mere nominal command, again at the head of affairs, and Pope placed in another command! It is a question on which time will shed a light by which it may be read. We think you will do so. Do you consider Pope's report as a mere empty charge, so empty as not even to demand notice? If so, he should be disposed of summarily and sent to repose on laurels he should have won. If not, and the report we make to be worthy of credence, why are the men against whom it is levelled still in command? It is perhaps not well to discuss this now—the war, and the hope of success therein, seals the lips of every patriot—but the day cannot be distant when, come weal, come woe, the impartial hand of history will deal out to all the parties named his due meed of praise or blame. God save the Republic!

The penny Star of this city, which blows hot or cold as the wind chills or the sun shines, characterises the "Report" as a "Mischievous Publication." Mischievous to or for whom, or what! Mark what the Herald and the Journal of Commerce will say of it! As to it, there is here a little muffled discussion, but the onward tread of marching squadrons, the roll of drums and the distant thud of hostile cannon fill all ears. The soldier girds anew for the conflict, or marches wearily from disastrous to hopeful fields; the civilian labors in behalf of the sick, the wounded and the sorrowing; the Government strives to marshal new forces; and events which in ordinary times would shake society to its centre, glide by and are forgotten. So of Gen. Pope and his report; but mark you, it has its place in history and must be met. The facts are all written out.

WILLIAMSBURG.

The secession forces made a dive at Williamsburg one day this week. I cannot say whether they caught our forces there napping or not, but it seems they made quite a serious inroad before our troops rallied and drove them back. I am informed that Col. David Campbell, of Pittsburgh, in command of the 5th cavalry at that point, was taken prisoner.

The 4th cavalry, Col. Childs, of Pittsburgh, or a portion of it, passed through here en route for some place on Tuesday. They were in pretty good plight. Their Colonel is a man of nerve, endurance and discretion, and has held his regiment up to a pretty good fighting condition. I did not see the troop, but state what I learned touching it.

THE SITUATION.

Our forces on the Upper Potomac are said to be well disposed. They are in a condition to give a good account of themselves. During the past week, the different corps have been graciously getting into positions which must finally bring them to the high and cool ground. Whether they will fight as courageously, if not as systematically, as those who have been in the service for a year or more.

We labor under one great—great I say—disadvantage, which the enemy has all along been benefitted by. The rebels are constantly advised of all our movements, our strength, and positions. There is little use in establishing a censorship over the press. The rebels are advised of our doings long before the press. Treason lurks in every house almost. Our men have seen men assemble at midnight, under circumstances so evidently suspicious that they could not be mistaken when they concluded that to plot treason called them together. Yet we are not permitted to arrest them.

We may boast as we please about the sagacity or penetration, or whatever else it may be termed, of our generals; but they do not know half as much about the rebels as they ought to. The rose-water policy which has already laid one hundred thousand men in their graves, and which will yet, perhaps, blast the hopes of every lover of liberty throughout the world, is still the policy of the Government. A change of opinion, which will startle the slave-propagandists of the North when they know it has come to pass in our army. Men, who a year ago abhorred the idea of making use of slaves in prosecuting the war, now urge the necessity of using all the means which God has given us to crush the rebellion. The most sacred rights of property have vanished before the stern requirements of necessity. It has become evident that the rebels regard every one who is not for them as against them. And they act on this principle. Would to God the mighty North were imbued with the same idea.

Regiment after regiment is coming into Washington. No lack of confidence in our ability to defend the capital successfully is manifested. We apprehend, however, with anxiety, the dangers which threaten our own homes. Jackson was driven into Maryland and Pennsylvania for food. He brought no supply, probably because he hadn't it, as many think; but because it would have impeded his march, is to my mind the most likely reason. TOURS.

The Satanic Temptation.

The New York Evening Post, after quoting the devilish advice of the New York Herald to McCLELLAN, says:

We will not believe that any General in our armies is fool or traitor enough to attempt the role which the Herald insults General McClellan by suggesting to him; but the fact that men are found ready instantly to avail themselves of a period of public excitement to propose measures which could only be carried into effect by a traitor and brigand, and which would overthrow the government and produce a commotion in the North which could be favorable only to the rebels, should put us on our guard how we suffer our minds to wander from the one object which all patriots have at heart, the defeat of the enemy. We must be calm; we must be patient, too, and watchful of the malignants who endeavor to mislead public opinion by artful cries, and in a hundred ways try to draw away the mind and heart of the nation from the one object which it wants to accomplish, and which now tries all its power.

We, too, have a word for Gen. McClellan. We do not urge him to the treasonable work of snatching at supreme power; but we urge him to beat the enemy, and to do it quickly; to prove himself what his friends claim him to be, and what the whole country would rejoice to see him, a commander capable of driving the enemy from the field. There lies his duty, not, as northern traitors suggest, in reconstructing cabinets, or dictating terms to the civil power.

The reckless rogues who at a time like this are ready to countenance the subversion of civil government and the substitution of a military dictatorship seek only the country's defeat, humiliation and ruin. We cannot believe that the President would tolerate the slightest interference of his military servants with the civil authority. The first hint of any
