THE OCTOBER ELECTION. An Address to the Republicans

It is unnecessary to say, that the approaching election is probably the most important which has ever yet been held. A United States Senator is to be elected, whose politics may depend upon the votes of the Representatives from this county. The candidates for Senate and Representives, as well as the several county officers. sives, as well as the several county officers, are sufficiently known to you all, and there-fore requires no additional endorsement at our hands.

As a national Representative, he will undoubtedly be equally vigilent in protecting his constituents against corbitant bur-called upon to blush with shame for his want of either; but, on the contrary, our district will be pointed to as pro-eminently honest, intelligent and patriotic.

Although our choice was one of our own young and talented citizens now engaged in the service of his country, in the field, the duly constituted nominating convention has thought proper to set aside his claims for the present, and give us Mr. Williams as our candidate. As friends of Col. Thompson, we cheerfully bow to this decision, because it comes from an authorecision, because it comes from an author ity we are compelled to reapect. Col. Thompson being much the younger man, can afford to defer his claims to those of tored in this great crisis, but let every Re-publican manfully do his duty to the Pres-ident of his own choice, to his friends and relatives who are in the service of the relatives who are in the service of the country, and, which is still more important to his own convictions of what is right.
