It is not in the columns of a newspaper, it is only in the family circle or in the hush of solitude, that the emotions of a parent over such an event should have utterance. The tears of weeping eyes and fast-trickling drops of bleeding hearts are not for the public gaze. The deepest agoines should be content to fold their somber wings in the soul. Consolation could not come from the be content to fold their somber wings in the soul. Consolation could not come from the world saympathy; it can be looked for only from God and his angel Time. Nay, there are griefs that time itself has no power to allay or soothe, griefs that like running streams are deepening their channels for ever.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

GROVER AND BARRE'S SEWING MACRIFE, for

streams are despening their channels forever.

Wm. Courtland Prentice was no common young man. He was remarkable in his powers and in his temperament. A model of manly beauty, he had extraordinary intellectual energy, a strong thirst for strange and curious knowledge, and a deep passion for all that is sublime and breautiful in poetry and nature. He was generous, manly, high-hearted, and of a courage that no mortal peril, come in what form it might, could daunt. He exulted in looking destruction face to face in all its ways.
He loved wild and dangerous adventures for the very danger's sake. His eagle spirit lived among the mountain crags and shouted back, to the abouts of the storm. ted back to the shouts of the storm permitted nothing to state the state of the and the execution of his purposes.

This young man, if he had always directed his energies judiciously, could have made himself a distinguished ornament in any profession of life. He might have been an able and honored statesman in the been an able and honored statesman in the service of the republic. But an intense Southern sympathy, in spite of the arguments, the remonstrances, and the entreaties of those whe dearly loved him, made him an active rebel against his country, and, after a brief five weeks' service in the rebel ranks, he fell, soon to breathe out his flery life, receiving meanwhile, far away from his family, the kindly ministrations of those against whose cause his strong right arm had been raised. O, if istrations of those against whose cause his strong right arm had been raised. O, if he had fallen in his country's service, fallen with his burning eyes fixed in love and devotion upon the flag that for more than three-fourths of a century has been a star of worship to his ancestors, his early death; though still terrible, might have been born by a father's heart; but alas! the reflection that he fell in armed rebellion against that glorious old banner now the emblem of the greatest and holiest cause the world ever knew, is full of 'desolation and almost of depair. And yet we shall love to think of Court land Prentice, that brave and noble though miguided youth, during the little remnant of our lives. Our love for him, undimmed by tears and grief, is and will remain an amaranthine flower upon the grave of our buried years—Louisville Journal.
