Incandiantsu. On last Monday morning about two o'clock, the dwelling house of Geo. Harter, near Lumberport, Harrison county, Va., was destroyed by fire. The family, part va., was destroyed by fire. Incisamly, part of which was sick with sore throat, narrowly escaped with their lives. Nothing was raved, except a few chars and a table or two. The fire is believed to have been the work of an incendiary. On the Friday night preceding the foregoing, the still-house of a Mr. Hawker, at Messville, in the same county, was set fire and burned to the ground.

At the 8th street branch of Ascension Hospital; I saw Frederick Deirst, 102nd Regiment Ponnsylvania Volunteers, Co. M. He is entirely recovered from fever and ague, and expects to go to his regiment this week.

The above are all the Pittshurghers that I could find in the hospitals which I visited. There may be others in the same places, but it is not my fault that I did not find them out, as I made every effort in my power to see them.

On Bolivar Heights I encamped with the worthy chaplain of the 109th regiment Pennsylvanis Volunteers, (Curtin Light Guards,) Hev. John Moddillan, of Allegheny city. Here I found Hampton's and Knapy's batteries stationed, and had the pleasure of visiting the headquarters of both. I was sorry that I was not able to avail myself of the hespitalities, so kindly tendered, of my generous young friend, Lieut. Atwell. I had scarcely seated myself in Captain Hampton's tent till he placed a horse and an escort at my service. These I gratefully accepted, and with Sergit Joseph Todd as my pilot, ascended Louden and Maryland. Heights, yesterday, whence I had another view of the battefield of Antietam. The prospect from any of the heights in the neighborhood of the Ferry is sublimely grand. That from the Maryland heights is the most aplendid. Here you have rebeidden completely under your feet. Your vision reveals in delight as the boautiful valley of the Shenandosh burst upon it. But your heart grows sick when you reflect that that magnifeont valley has been drenched with the warm blood of many a generous and noble boy, and is now the theatre of a most unholy and unnecessary war!

The descent from Maryland Heights forms an item in my life not to be forgotten. The brave and chivalrous Sergeant did not take one county.

brave and chivalrous Sergeant did not take the long and circuitous road by which we ascended, but plungedright down the precipitous and almost perpendicular side in an air line, both horses and men keeping their feet with astonishing accuracy. Even at the risk of being called devious in my way, I never desire to take a more perpendicular path.

As I studied the strength of the position I was fully convinced that no man but a traitor, even with three thousand men, would ever have surrendered it, in the face of 100,000, and that having it to fail back upon no really loyal man would ever have hatted in his pursuit of, a so called, defeated enemy.

layat man would ever have haited in his pursuit of, a so; called, defeated enemy.

I see by this morning's papers that the dispatches of the Associated Fress states that rebels were visible from the Maryland height yesterday. None could be seen at half-past eleven, A. M. yesterday, when I was at the signal station. The evening before, one of the "look outs" on Bolivar told me he saw a rebel mounted vidette in the plane below, but I was not able to recognize him with a fieldwas not able to recognize him with a field-glass. The pickets who returned from duty yesterday, informed me that they believed the pickets of the enemy had fallen back. I have conversed with a discharged soldier of the regular army who left Snicker's Gap-yesterday. He says Fitz John Porter holds he Gap, and that on Monday evening, the l4th and 5th regular infantry having advanred through it, were severely cut up by nasked battery. Rebeluom, and pandemonium too, I have no tions. Papers were excerly sought after yes-terday and to-day by the robels, and they chuckled no little over the result of the New York election. I think I am no partisen in the common acceptation of the term. I can-nut pray for the success of any party but the one that is opposed to the rebellion. From the manner in which the rebells have received the success of the anti-administration candi-dates, I cannot believe that their party is un-conditionally anti-rebellion. As I was walk-ing through the streets of "alexandria, a few days since, with a merchant of Newcastle, Lawrence county, Pennsylvania, he pointed out a house to me at which he had lodged for a night. He informed me that he had cancoly taken his seat until the landlady
