and children to Philadelphia. I had given what I thought right from the Society, and as much as I could myself, yet they were not nearly fit to undertake the journey unless better provided with clothing. I could not ask those who had always been so ready with willing hears to contribute of their substance to the cause of benevolence, for they had already given to the extent of their shifty to the soldiers and their families, but "he who hearth the cry of the poor is not limited." I minitioned the case of this family to two of three, and God put it into their hearts to give what made them quite comfortable in their increase." what made them quite comfortable in the joarnoy. It is only one out of many instances where the mangers of this Association have been enabled to seek out and relieve the sufferings of "God's poor." They might full pages with an account of what they have seen and what they have done. They might tell of children gathered up and sent to the Sabbath school, of counsel and encouragement to the ignorant and wavering, of hopes planted in the hearts of the dispairing, of prayers offered up at the bedside of the sick and suffering, and of directions to the word of the suffering, and of directions to the word and suffering, and of directions to the word of God, and satvation by Christ to those who are without hope in the world. But the tecord is on high. Christ has said, inasmuch as yo have done it unto one of the least of these my breulren, yo have done it unto me," and the managers of this association are still ready to dispense, in His name, the means placed to their hand, to these who are poor and needy.

The Society has postponed its operations for hor munth on account of the pleasant weather. It is now cold, and many are in waste. They would carnestly entreat their friends to give their donations, in whatever form is most convenient. The high prices of all necessary articles of family consumption make it capacially hard for the poor. Some in business are prospering well; but this is not a time to accumulate riches. It should be dispensed with a liberal hand, and God, who loves a cheering giver, will send down His heavanly blessings on the faithful stowards of His bounty.

FOR FALL ARD WINTER WEAR.—The winter is upon us, and we must provide ourselves with the material to keep us comfortable. A good and well-made overcoat is the very article, and we don't know of any piace where our readers can get one that will look as well, and at the same time withstand the most severe, weather, as at W. H. McGee & Co.*s, corner of Federal street and Diamond Squate, A liegheny. Their stock of overcoating business and dress clothing, pantaleons of all descriptions, are well assorted, and of the listst style. Gentlemen defining a neat fitting garment, and at prices lower than at any other tailoring establishment in the city, would do well to give him an early cail.
