THE LITTER WITTER

TO THE CONTROL OF of the dudgary usually imposed upon soldiers in the field. The beats will be their homes, and after an excursion in the country, or a day's chase after the enemy, or a hard fought bettle, the soldiers return to their best, to eat a good warm supper, prepared for them, and to obtain a comfortable night's sleep, unexposed to the inclemency of the westher. So much for the comforts of this command. Let no man, however, enlist with the impression that he is to have nothing to do. Gen. Ellett's reputation was gained by the brilliant whotery obtained opposite Memphis. His successful effort to open communication with Commodors Farragut, below Vicksburg one hundred miles, in advance of our gun boats; his daring raid up the Yasoo river, where the anomy was frightened into burning three of his heavy-armed ganboats, to prevent them falling into Gen, Ellett's hands; and, finally, his attempt to run down the enemy's ram, Arkansas, under the batteries at Vicksburg, the thrilling narrative of which is fresh in the minds of asall—gives assurance that, sithough he may provide well for the comforts of his men, yet they will be sure to have pleary of work to do. It strikes us that this is exactly the service for our drafted men to choose. The General has suthority to senter from them for three years. It is extramely doubtful if such snother opportunity is offered during the war, for enlisting is so agreeable a service in every respect. We say to our drafted men, and those wishing yet to serve their country, "now is your time."
