Abstract Slavery. The Boston Journal, speaking of the Proclamation of Emancipation, says:

"Neither the President's Proclamation nor any act of Congress can abolish the institution of slavery in any State where it legally exists without the concurrent action of the State itself. Thus, if by virtue of the proclamation all the existing slaves in South Carolina are emancipated, the right

We believe this proclamation, which protection of the mational flag, but shall receive such protection in all States of a state of as present. Colorado had $5,538 inhabitants two to titude of the protection of the national flag, but shall receive such protection in all States of a state of the Union. We have the state of the state of the Union as should refuse to come back prior to the first of January, nowithstanding the abstract right to held men in bondage might not be reached by it. Certain it is these State lave alluded to above, although not expressly mentioned, can neveragate be freed by the force of that proclamation, for it expressly declares that all persons held in such States as shall, on the first of January, 1803, be in a state of rebellion, shall be wifered freat "The total of these processing of the state of lows, Minister and visible by the eart of the very mention of the processing of the other constitution and put and void by the eart of the very mention and void by the eart of the very mention of course all called to the constitution and put in the latter, but a bill should be passed prevently considered that the state of lows, Minister and very state of the state of lows, Minister and the latter, but a bill should be passed prevently mentioned of course all called to the course of the course of

of South Carolina are no laws to us. They are in abeyance; and if, while that condition of things continues, certain persons shall gain, under the laws of the Union and the laws of war, rights which they did not possess under those laws, and other persons shall lose some rights, the restoration of those laws cannot have a retroactive operation, so as to reverse what was done while they were in abeyance. The restoration of those laws may restore the abstract right to hold slaves; but what slaves? Certainly not those who shall have been made free by a higher authority at a time when these laws had not shall have been made free by a higher authority. slaves? Certainly not those who shall have been made free by a higher authority st a time when those laws had no force under the national constitution. While, therefore, the abstract right to hold slaves may remain after the State shall be brought back into the Union, it can have no practical effect, unless a new set of admit the State in order to gain slave therefore, the abstract right to hold slaves may remain after the State shall be some action. A southern majority would as far as possible amportant on the force of the power of Democratic manual price in Congress to obstruct the admission of free States. Utah has an application pending for admission as a State. The thing is impossible, and yet on the face of affairs Utah has a case for complaint unless we take some action. A southern majority would as far as possible amportant on the force of the power of Democratic manual price states.

Manual no practical effect, unless a new set of slaves shall be brought in from Africa or elsewhere, a thing not very likely to happen. The rebels and their friends are welcome to all the comfort they can draw from this abstraction. But if they think, by some constitutional hocus pocus, that they can re-enslave those who shall be made from by re-enslave those who shall be made free by the proclamation, they will find themselves in a worse predicament than they are at present. The history of Saint Domingo might be studied with profit by men who are contemplating any such experiment.

A Warning from Parson Brownlow.

In a letter to the Philadelphia Press, Mr.

At the approaching session of Congress

It has long been notorious that when the Democrate hald a received. It has long been notorious that when the Democrats held possession of Congress no free State could get admitted into the Union unless it came with a Democratic organization, or was paired off with a slave State. With the prospect of a Democratic majority again in the House, we must look about us and protect the interests of the North while we have the power.

We have now attached to the Union the territories of Dacotah Nebraska, Caloredo.

Upon this the National Intelligencer remarks:

"That is, 'the right' to hold slaves being dependent wholly on State law, and the proclamation purporting only to compass the emancipation of the existing slaves in the Insurgent States, it is a postulate of the new policy that the privilege of enjoying this 'right' will revert to the people of any such State 'whenever that State is again in the Union.' We believe this is a correct statement of the theory underlying the proclamation, which proceeds on the assumption that slavery is not only entitled to the post of the new policy and the proclamation, which proceeds on the assumption that slavery is not only entitled to the proclamation of the emancipated, the right will rever the state in the following amount of population required by the ratio of the shape and Government, there could be no hope for a prompt restoration of peace in America.
