RAILROADS. OILS, Ac. I have often, in former years, observed the curious unwillinguess shown by the public (that is the newspapers.) to acknowledge the unpleasant feet of a dedictent harvest. Our summer throughout England has been cold and wet. The consequence, namely a dedicate harvest, is as certain as the two perhetron in inserting nonsensical paragraphs as the probability of an average produce, which one should think the alightest consideration would show to be now impossible.

The following is the tabular epitome of the returns, and it entirely bears out the above prediction of "Common Sense:"

The particulars of this case are briefly these: The deceased, Charles Haney, had been employed, during a portion of the summer, in watching the peach orchard of Mr. George Chivers, in Lewer St. Clair township, near Mount Washington. On the evening of the 6th of September, after leaving the orchard, he started on his way home, and on reaching Mount Washington stopped at the tavern of Frederick Kauf, to get a glass of beer. He had with him a loaded gun, which he placed by the table. Waken Haney entered the house, the defendant, Eudolph Weil, was in the bar room, together with others. Some of the men took the gan and began to "fool" with it, when Haney told him it was loaded. After a while, Haney attempted to take the gun from Weil, when the latter demanded $5 for his "hold." This made Haney angry, when he pulled out a pistol. Well sized the pistol, and in the scuffle which ensued the barrel was separated from the stock, when it is alleged that Weil struck Haney over the head with the barrel. At all events his skull was fractured, and he died the ensuing day. The deceased left a wife, but no children. Weil is easel digger, and resides in the vicinty.

She had on her person, when searched, fully one hundred yards of goods. She begged piteously on her kness not to be exposed, but the officer was inexorable, and took her, with the goods, to the tombe. Some of the goods have already been identified by the parties from whom they were taken, Messra. Easton, Macrum & On. W. & D. Hugus and H. J. Lynch. The rest remains at the officer of the family was respectable. She married, some years ago, a Mr. Butler, druggist, of Chiesgo, who subsequently died. His wife, after, as she asserts, being swindled out of her money by a lawyer of that city, opened a millinery establishment, but did not succeed, and returning to Pittaburgh in reduced pireumstances, resorted to shoplifting for a livelihood. packages. The Wheat Grof for 1862—As to the present crop in the United States there is but one voice—it is unasually aboutdnt. Our overflowing granaties would aimost feed the world. In Europe they have not-been thus favored—England's crop is probably much below the severes; France is better off but not enough so to supply her own wants; while low-ing from the Gardier's Chronicle and Agricultural Gazotte, will give a fair idea of England's creation. There can be no doubt that the wheat off re conjugates. There has always hitch when years. There has always hitch when on the occasion of these annual returns, been, among two hards of these manual returns, been, among two hards. QUGAR AND MULASSES. UCAR AND MULASSES.
