Napoleon and Mediation. The circular note of DROUXE DE L'HUXS; will she reserve to herself other measures for aiding in bringing this war to a close?"

We are inclined to look at Napoleon's anxiety to interpose in this great struggle in the light of recent revelations made in the intercepted correspondence of his secret which we cave in the GAZETTE of Thursthreatening and grossly offensive expressions mean, if the Emperor has nothing in view other than is avowed in his honeyed

note to the courts of England and Bussia? But in that note he speaks, in the second paragraph, of "the apprehension of servile war, which would be the culminating point of many irreparable disasters." Does Napoleon contemplate the arrest of the execution of the President's Proplamation, and 25th inst: the bestowment of new "guarantees" upon All the signs and omens, therefore, prom-

Here is an unmistakable squint at the late democratic victories in some of the northern states, which are interpreted by Napoleon as adverse to any further prosecution of the war, and in favor of yielding to the demands of the perjured traitors who are at war with the government. What say the great body of the men who gave those votes that indicate "the favorable disposition towards peace" of which Napoleon speaks? Was that their intention? Did they vote that they considered their country beaten, and that it is time to stop fighting and sue for peace? But here is an unmistakable squint at the late of the farful was a long as possible; occupy the remaining fine weather in secondary operations; throw us into the bad weather; put sixty miles of hideous road and all the fearful work is to be in command has expressed the opinion that with ten thousand armed colonists he can dispense with a wery large portion of the solders originally destined to take part in this engagement, and the fearful mortality of transportation and the fearful mortality that must result among the troops, it is an enterprise full of peril, and he must be sanguine indeed that would see in it only the chances of success.

The formation of Florida will soon be practically tested. The scheme for the armed, scionisation of Florida will soon be practically tested. The counter under Burnside. But their suppressage of the Happahannock is, of course, to delay very large portion of the solders originally destined to take part in this engagement, and the fearful mortality of transportation and the fearful mortality of transportation and the fearful mortality already made application to ealist as armed colonists he can dispense with a sort that the execution of this scheme will and the fearful mortality of transportation and the mortality

"The favorable disposition towards peace which are beginning to manifest themselves is the North, as well as the South, might, on the Other hand, second steps that might be made to recommend the idea of truce."

Here is an unmistakable squint at the northern states, which are interpreted by the rebell at the possession of Fredericksburg is that the possession of Fredericksburg will be vigorously disputed, surply, and from the present outlook it is not at all impossible that the neessons why they should make a stand here. Other thing being equal, they are very anxious to fight as far away as possible from Richmond, and they are eager to take advantage of supposed demoralisation of the commander, and defeat us in the first encounter under Burnside. But their supreme notion in deposing our passage of the present and the possession of Fredericksburg will be vigorously disputed in the time that the possession of Fredericksburg is the time possession of Fredericksburg will be vigorously disputed to the vigorously disputed that the possession of Fredericksburg will be vigorously disputed that the present outlook it is not at all impossible that the present outlook it is not at all impossible that the present outlook it is not at all impossible that the present outlook it is not at all impossible that the present outlook it is not at all impossible that the present outlook it is not at all impossible that the present outlook it is not at all impossible that the present outlook it is not at all impossible that the present outlook it is not at all impossible that the present outlook it is not at all impossible that the present outlook it is not at all impossible that the present outlook it is not at all impossible that the present outlook it is not at all impossible that the present outlook it is not at all impossible that the present outlook it is not to stop fighting and sue for peace? But be their intention what it might, certain it is their votes gave much aid to the rebel cause on both sides of the Atlantic.

If we interpret Nanoleon aright in the note ander consideration, together with the vague threats quoted above, we think it is clear that he is not the friend of this government in its great struggle for life and expression in its great struggle for life and principle, but that he is laboring and in-The position which the Confederates have selected at Fredericksburg is an admirable they are able to get admirable enflading fires from each side.
