The entire army is now encamped on the same ground which they previously occupied. They are as comfortable for the present as they can be in shelter tentes.

The army has been considerably reinforced since the battle, and no danger whatsoeve is attached to their present position.

It is the opinion of military men that had we even succeeded in taking the front ridge of works, the opportunity for slaughter would have been far greater than previously.

Our men, it may be repeated, behaved with the greatest gallantry, but so troops in the world could withstand such a concentrated fire of heavy ordnance and murketry, under cover of their fortifications.

The Responsibility of the Advance Movement from Fredericksburg.

Naw Yoak, Dec. 17.—The New York Herald says it is but just, perhaps, to General Burnside, to say that the advance movement upon Fredericksburg was not undertaken in accordance with his own judgment, but was peremptorily ordered by the military authorities in Washington, who, of course, are alone responsible for the result.

It is stated upon reliable authority that the robels sent a notification to our army on Sunday that they intended to shell the town, and requested that our wounded should be removed.

[The Herald just states as facts its own inventions. Its malignant feelings towards General Halleck and Mr. STARTOR are well known, and we wonder that the Agent of the Associated Press thought it worth while-to send its statements through the country by tolegraph.]
