

Pittsburgh Gazette.

TUESDAY MORNING, DEC. 23.

Napoleon's Movements and Schemes

We said some time ago, and we repeat the opinion, that this country had no more dangerous enemy than Louis Napoleon. He has his feet now hovering about the mouth of the Mississippi, awaiting a pretext to interfere with the affairs of Louisiana and Texas. The news from Europe now is that France and Spain have entered into a treaty of co-operation in American affairs, and the fact that Napoleon has ordered supplies to Mexico for two years proves that his occupation of that country is not intended to be a temporary matter.

That Texas was filibustered from Mexico is a fact which every candid man must admit; and it is not unlikely that Napoleon will make an attempt to "re-anthr" it.

He comes in possession of the state of the Montezumas. California, New Mexico, and Arizona did belong to the same state, and if he can, it is likely that he may attempt to re-unite them again.

We spoke a few days ago of these infamously French, and we may characterize them as so mild a term—but we had not then the facts so fully stated.

Gen. Butler and Earl Russell's Com-

By the last mail Gen. Butler received from the State Department copies of letters from Mr. Thomas C. Donaldson, and Rev. John Lingham, rector of Lambeth, both of London, to Earl Russell, in which they set forth their views of the war, and every arrangement will be made to secure their safe delivery to the British Ambassador, settling the holder to Dishes or Supper, and also to the Ambassador's Agents.

The Thamee, condemned at Port Royal.

The news from Europe

now is that France and Spain have entered into a treaty of co-operation in American affairs, and the fact that Napoleon has or-dered supplies to Mexico for two years

proves that his occupation of that country

is not intended to be a temporary matter.

That Texas was filibustered from Mexico

is a fact which every candid man must admit; and it is not unlikely that Napoleon will make an attempt to "re-anthr" it.

He comes in possession of the state of the Montezumas. California, New Mexico, and Arizona did belong to the same state,

and if he can, it is likely that he may

attempt to re-unite them again.

We spoke a few days ago of these infamously French, and we may characterize them as so mild a term—but we had

not then the facts so fully stated.

Gen. Butler and Earl Russell's Com-

By the last mail Gen. Butler received from the State Department copies of letters from Mr. Thomas C. Donaldson, and

Rev. John Lingham, rector of Lambeth, both of London, to Earl Russell, in which they set forth their views of the war, and every arrangement will be made to secure

their safe delivery to the British Ambassador, settling the holder to Dishes or Supper,

and also to the Ambassador's Agents.

The Thamee, condemned at Port Royal.

The news from Europe

now is that France and Spain have entered into a treaty of co-operation in American affairs, and the fact that Napoleon has or-dered supplies to Mexico for two years

proves that his occupation of that country

is not intended to be a temporary matter.

That Texas was filibustered from Mexico

is a fact which every candid man must admit; and it is not unlikely that Napoleon will make an attempt to "re-anthr" it.

He comes in possession of the state of the Montezumas. California, New Mexico, and Arizona did belong to the same state,

and if he can, it is likely that he may

attempt to re-unite them again.

We spoke a few days ago of these infamously French, and we may characterize them as so mild a term—but we had

not then the facts so fully stated.

Gen. Butler and Earl Russell's Com-

By the last mail Gen. Butler received

from the State Department copies of letters

from Mr. Thomas C. Donaldson, and

Rev. John Lingham, rector of Lambeth,

both of London, to Earl Russell, in which

they set forth their views of the war, and

every arrangement will be made to secure

their safe delivery to the British Ambassador,

settling the holder to Dishes or Supper,

and also to the Ambassador's Agents.

The Thamee, condemned at Port Royal.

The news from Europe

now is that France and Spain have entered into a treaty of co-operation in American affairs, and the fact that Napoleon has or-dered supplies to Mexico for two years

proves that his occupation of that country

is not intended to be a temporary matter.

That Texas was filibustered from Mexico

is a fact which every candid man must admit; and it is not unlikely that Napoleon will make an attempt to "re-anthr" it.

He comes in possession of the state of the Montezumas. California, New Mexico, and Arizona did belong to the same state,

and if he can, it is likely that he may

attempt to re-unite them again.

We spoke a few days ago of these infamously French, and we may characterize them as so mild a term—but we had

not then the facts so fully stated.

Gen. Butler and Earl Russell's Com-

By the last mail Gen. Butler received

from the State Department copies of letters

from Mr. Thomas C. Donaldson, and

Rev. John Lingham, rector of Lambeth,

both of London, to Earl Russell, in which

they set forth their views of the war, and

every arrangement will be made to secure

their safe delivery to the British Ambassador,

settling the holder to Dishes or Supper,

and also to the Ambassador's Agents.

The Thamee, condemned at Port Royal.

The news from Europe

now is that France and Spain have entered into a treaty of co-operation in American affairs, and the fact that Napoleon has or-dered supplies to Mexico for two years

proves that his occupation of that country

is not intended to be a temporary matter.

That Texas was filibustered from Mexico

is a fact which every candid man must admit; and it is not unlikely that Napoleon will make an attempt to "re-anthr" it.

He comes in possession of the state of the Montezumas. California, New Mexico, and Arizona did belong to the same state,

and if he can, it is likely that he may

attempt to re-unite them again.

We spoke a few days ago of these infamously French, and we may characterize them as so mild a term—but we had

not then the facts so fully stated.

Gen. Butler and Earl Russell's Com-

By the last mail Gen. Butler received

from the State Department copies of letters

from Mr. Thomas C. Donaldson, and

Rev. John Lingham, rector of Lambeth,

both of London, to Earl Russell, in which

they set forth their views of the war, and

every arrangement will be made to secure

their safe delivery to the British Ambassador,

settling the holder to Dishes or Supper,

and also to the Ambassador's Agents.

The Thamee, condemned at Port Royal.

The news from Europe

now is that France and Spain have entered

into a treaty of co-operation in American affairs, and the fact that Napoleon has or-dered supplies to Mexico for two years

proves that his occupation of that country

is not intended to be a temporary matter.

That Texas was filibustered from Mexico

is a fact which every candid man must admit; and it is not unlikely that Napoleon will make an attempt to "re-anthr" it.

He comes in possession of the state of the Montezumas. California, New Mexico, and Arizona did belong to the same state,

and if he can, it is likely that he may

attempt to re-unite them again.

We spoke a few days ago of these infamously French, and we may characterize them as so mild a term—but we had

not then the facts so fully stated.

Gen. Butler and Earl Russell's Com-

By the last mail Gen. Butler received

from the State Department copies of letters

from Mr. Thomas C. Donaldson, and

Rev. John Lingham, rector of Lambeth,

both of London, to Earl Russell, in which

they set forth their views of the war, and

every arrangement will be made to secure

their safe delivery to the British Ambassador,

settling the holder to Dishes or Supper,

and also to the Ambassador's Agents.

The Thamee, condemned at Port Royal.

The news from Europe

now is that France and Spain have entered

into a treaty of co-operation in American affairs, and the fact that Napoleon has or-dered supplies to Mexico for two years

proves that his occupation of that country

is not intended to be a temporary matter.

That Texas was filibustered from Mexico

is a fact which every candid man must admit; and it is not unlikely that Napoleon will make an attempt to "re-anthr" it.

He comes in possession of the state of the Montezumas. California, New Mexico, and Arizona did belong to the same state,

and if he can, it is likely that he may

attempt to re-unite them again.

We spoke a few days ago of these infamously French, and we may characterize them as so mild a term—but we had

not then the facts so fully stated.

Gen. Butler and Earl Russell's Com-

By the last mail Gen. Butler received

from the State Department copies of letters

from Mr. Thomas C. Donaldson, and

Rev. John Lingham, rector of Lambeth,

both of London, to Earl Russell, in which

they set forth their views of the war, and

every arrangement will be made to secure

their safe delivery to the British Ambassador,

settling the holder to Dishes or Supper,

and also to the Ambassador's Agents.

The Thamee, condemned at Port Royal.

The news from Europe

now is that France and Spain have entered

into a treaty of co-operation in American affairs, and the fact that Napoleon has or-dered supplies to Mexico for two years

proves that his occupation of that country

is not intended to be a temporary matter.