Gen. Negley.

In every dispatch from the battle field which we have seen, one Pennsylvania General and one Pennsylvania regiment have received honorable mention. General Negley, who commanded a division, bore himself with great skill and bravery, and did much to secure the glorious result. The regiment of which we speak, the 78th, formed a part of Negley: A first of Negley in the formed a part of Negley: A first of Negley in the latter which we give to-day.

Banks has received anonymous feature of gen. McCook had trough that is parting with his commander was deeply impressive. With the blessing of God, General," said McCook, "I will whip my friend Hardee to morrow." "God bless you!" echoed the General, and a moment later our cavalcade was sweeping down the pike through darks as sweeping down the pike through darks are seemed a mass of shapeless indistinctness. Some other time I may describe that harrassing and adventurous ride through that regged and deventurous ride through that regged and through the bewildering with first through the bewildering with first through that regged and deventurous ride through that regged and d Coal and Contrabands.

SKIRMISHING.
Gen. Crittenden had advanced to Lavergne without opposition, the rebels re-ceding rapidly before his advanced skir-mishers. Battle on Saturday was promised, and dispositions were made for it. At dayfour cents per bushel is of itself bad refuse to be be be compared by the bear of the break of thousands engaged in our manufacturing establishments, as well as the widow and the orphan who must have fuel. It has been suggested that the "Iron Association" as well as the "Glass Manufacturers" should send for and smally compared to the control of the clation" as well as the "Glass Manufacturers" should send for and employ contrabounds to mine coal. I am informed they can be secured at reasonable rates, and thus relieve an immense interest now dependent upon cheap fuel. Will the Iron Association particularly make a note of this?

This is a serious matter, and the suggestion is a good one; for there is no form of oppression or wrong more atrogious and pike, and prevented them from destroying pike, and prevented them from destroying oppression or wrong more atrocious and pike, and prevented them from destroying unendurable than these lawless, selfish, brutal combinations, or rather conspiracies; Kentineky, had also driven the enemy under brutal combinations, or rather conspiracies; yet many a reader will smile at seeing such a suggestion in the Post, which last fall howled so lustily about negroes coming here and competing with white men in the various departments of labor.

BEFORE THE BATTLE.

Kenticky, had also driven the enemy under Gen. Maney across the bridge over the stand creek on Murfreesboro pike, so rapidly that Maney was unable to destroy that structure, so that the bridges, both highly important, were in eur possession. Our cavalry under Col. John Kennett likewise succeeded in cutting off and capturing thirty-six of John Morgan's Ahabama cavalry, killing and wounding several. The merriment, "Bully" McCook's blue eyes twinkled until he relieved himself by the facetious suggestion, that "he would be under the painful necessity of whipping my friend Hardee." Crittenden, proud and atately, said but little, but was emphatic enough in the conviction that there would be described by the facetions and stately, and fightling if the snewly spickets appeared numerously on the my friend Hardee." Crittenden, proud and staiely, said but little, but was emphaticenough in the conviction that there would be d—hard fighting if the enemy stood at all. Negley, full of martial arder, expressed himself in complete readines to move with all vigor, and quiet Sheridan, in his conclusive, undemonstrative way, sitelantly considered the subject under discussion, apparently sequescing in the settled plan, thinking it not worth while, doubtless, to occupy time with expression of any particular epinions.

At dawn of the 20th, our gallant troops broke up camp with wild shouts and streamed along the highways in magnificent panoply. It needed only sunshine to burnish their polished steel. A strong and steedy rain poured down upon them; but not furious enough to quench their arder. It was not long before they pressed upon the enemy. First, a sombre horseman was disturbed; then groupe of fleet steeds, scur-
