They openly charged the Administration with having overruled Gen Burnside and his subordinate commanders, and rushed the army upon impregnable batteries in defiance of all military opinion. And, though these calumnies have since been thoroughly disproved by the emphatic and circumstantial testimony of Gens. Burnside, Halled, Meigs, Summer, Hooker, San, they have not yet been retracted, and are to this hour implicitly believed by hundreds of thousands. What must be their effect upon the army in which those journals are widely circulated? Can men be in good condition for further efforts involving peril and sacrifice who haye been made to believe that their Ilves are simply thrown away, by incapable and blundering civilians, who overrule the judgment and direct the movements of the effect produced in the army by these deliberately prepared weapons of falsehood and treason, the following extract from the letter of an army chaplain to the Amsterdam more about the general movements of the grand army or its intentions from this region. You cannot expect any news with regentral movements of the grand army or its intentions from this region.
