the first impulse to this movement, which above remarks, it will be remembered that by the passage of resolutions inviting the and these terms of course are to be con-Louis Democrat sets forth the programme as | holding cruelty ;-it was the "tender me follows:

"A well-digested plan is prepared by the Democratic leaders in the Western and Easiern States. That plan; though revolutionary in its end, is its needed not to be so in its means, up to a certain point, if possible. As many Legislatures of the Free States as can be prevailed on are to be got to send Commissioners from the Berder and as many of the Slave States as possible. If the Republicans, especially the New England States, do not send Commissioners from the Berder and as many of the Slave States as possible. If the Republicans, especially the New England States, do not send Commissioners, they are to be left out. If they do, no master; a plan of compromise is to be offered which will force them out of the Union, thus putting them into the attitude of rebellion. They are not wanted. The Confederacy is to comprise the Western States, and Ohio, New York, New York, New York, and Ontone such that the New York, and on the south transvery the send of the possibility of the States, and the New York, and on the south transvery the send of the States, and Ohio, New York, New Eastern States. That plan, though revolu-tionary in its and, is intended not to be so made to carry out this programme there in its service. standing JEFF. can be no doubt, notwiths Davis' solemn declaration in his message that under no possible circumstances, will the Confederates agree to a reconstruction But the "democracy" can urge the humble plea that their plan does not contemplate reconstruction—that they do not ask the that the South will graciously permit the broken fragments of the North, or a part of them, to put themselves under the wing of the South-that they will agree to anything no matter how humiliating, so that they shall not be left alone to contend with those who have no love either for them or their only remaining principle, slavery. We think it likely that JEFF. DAVIS might be mollified so far as to receive these States on probation; and then after the "demooracy" shall have crushed out all freedom of speech on the subject of slavery, and given a reasonable assurance of their ability to keep down the Republicans and utterly extinguish abolitionism, admit them to a full communion. It is unfortunate for the plotters that they are, as a body, a set of cowards, as all might have some chance of success; but about the time their traitorous schemes shall begin to take practical form, a storm of honest indignation will burst upon the that will sweep them and their plots to a political perdition deeper and darker than anything ever before known in this country; and none will be harder upon them

Now let us see what prospect there is of getting this revolutionary m. In New Jersey, Delaware, Indiana and Illinois only are the "democracy" the democrats are all "secoch" those four States may appoint delegates to the proposed National Convention. Perhaps Kentucky may condescend to ge in, as the convention is be held on her soil, and will of other States by some authority unknown to their constitutions. Governor Sermous might appoint for New York; but there is the end even of that string. But in a cause so secred perhaps a democratic conyention might do the work well enough, or even a Legislative caucus. We admit that these would be sorry credentials to lay before their Southern masters; and we have waty grave doubts whether the Autocrat of the South would have any thing to do with such a meb. Hewever, it may be well enough to try. Something must be done, or the party, as constituted, is "gone up."

The Endurance of the Rebels. Already, so frequently, since the commencement of the rebellion, have false and delusive views of the resources and means of resistance within the reach of the conspirators of the slaveholding Confederacy, been set forth by writers and speaker South to come back to the North; but only in the Northern States, that we hardly care o take up any argument, with favor, which tends to prove that the rebels are at length reduced to such extremities that they must succumb. Such prophétic anticipations of a speedy end of the war having only led all who indulged in them into a success of disappointments, discouraging, disheart ening and demoralising, we should prefer even to err on the other side, if error must needs be involved in our speculations, and exaggerate the various resources and means of resistance of the Southern leaders even to the full inclusion of that desperation which they have succeeded in exciting among the people of the slaveholding States. Still, while we incline to this safer side of speculation on the future of the rebellion. we may nevertheless take note of the fact that many indications of exhaustion of redemagogues are. If lew cunning and bel resources continue to manifest themtrickery could accomplish their object, they selves, from time to time, in the rebel newspapers, though the greatest care is taken in that quarter, to suppress everything cal-

Not the least significant among these indications of coming events, are the market questions in the Southern cities. But that is the past, so far as we know what History of pressure on the people as one that may all, unless delegates can be appointed in testifies, leads us to regard such a condition be endured for any considerable time. And no appeals that may be made to their passions, to maintain that tension of spiri needful for the reiterated efforts and unfaltoring resistance of an indefinitely prolonged struggle, can long avail among the suffering masses, thus sternly beset by adverse circumstances, and far from being in a mood to enjoy the glowing words of de- OCTOBER -The October List, United
