

Letter from the Archbishop of Dublin

The following letter from Archbishop Weaver of Dublin, to Mrs. Brown, was written in response to that lady's letter to the women of England in reply to their address to the women of America some years ago.

Our correspondents' mind seems to be exercised, as the minds of very sensible people are; for on no principle, at all consistent with common sense, can any reason be given why negroes should not help to fight in this great war.

Those who are the least favorable to the Northern cause are not so far from an approximation of truth as to say that the only way to end the war is to give the colored man the right to vote.

Many of our great abolitionists to-day hold that the colored man should have as much right to vote as the white man.

There are many, also, who consider that the present state of things cannot continue much longer if the Confederates continue to hold their own as they have done hitherto.

Moreover, there are many who say that the negroes and people of color are far from being kindly or justly treated in the Northern States.

With best wishes for the new year's return, dear Madam, yours truly, Archbishop Weaver.

Colored Soldiers

Why is it that the traitors to the Democratic party endeavor to create a public opinion antagonistic to the colored man to help put down this colored rebellion?
