From Vicksburg---The Exploit of the Queen of the West.

A dispatch to the Chicago Tribune, dated "At the Mouth of Yazoo River, Feb. 3d, via Cairo, Feb. 8th, says:

This morning at five o'clock, the ram Queen of the West, commanded by Capt. Sutherland, with Col. Ellet, Commodore of the ram fleet, on board, left this river, and having passed down by the peninsula, in full sight of Vicksburg, rounded the point and was under full headway down towards the city before she was discovered. The rebels then opened fire upon her with a number of their heaviest guns, and kept up a brisk cannonade, while she ran in a zig-zag course, and fired shell into and twice severely battled the rebel steamer Vicksburg, moored to the bank, directly under the river batteries.

Besides the time occupied in running down towards the city, she was fully ten minutes detained in making her assaults upon the steamer. Notwithstanding all this opportunity, and the close proximity to the rebel batteries and fire from them of 100 of shot and shell, she was only hit twelve times, and in its said not a person was injured. She continued down the river, and landed at the lower end of the canal, when Captain Sutherland landed and crossed the peninsula back to the river.

Col. Ellet continued down the river, his destination being watched. This movement will be followed up to-night by an attempt by the ram Monarch to make the same trip. There rams will be able to keep open the river for some distance, with the assistance of one or two iron-clads, whose commanders are soliciting the same privilege, and may soon be granted permission to run the blockade.

A large body of troops might thus be landed from flatboats upon the south side of Vicksburg. If this can not at present be done, direct communication of the besieged city with Texas and Louisiana can be cut off, and transports on Red and Ouchita rivers can be captured or destroyed.

This will be a great gain, and the value of this pioneer achievement, therefore, relatively, as well as intrinsically, is very great.

—Another dispatch, of the same date, contains the following:

"There is a rumor that a corps has gone up to Mala Senney, with a prospect of cutting a canal through from Lake Providence to Lisbeshirn and Black rivers, thence to the Tensas river, which latter empties into Red river. The length of the canal would be 170 miles and would leave Vicksburg fifty miles from almost any place."

What We Have Done and What the Rebels Have Done.

The following exhibit of the successes gained in the present war by our armies and fleets over the rebels, shows that there is no cause for the gloom and dissatisfaction which secessionists are striving to shed over the land:

UNION VICTORIES.	REBEL VICTORIES.
Drainsville,	Newbern,
Mill Spring,	Roanoke Island,
Fort Henry,*	Norfolk,
Fort Donelson,*	Merrimac,

Fort Pulaski,	Antietam,
Fort Macon,	Arkansas Post,
Baton Rouge,	Foster's doings in North Carolina.
Port Royal,

*Styled "Gibraltars" by the rebels.

The rebels have been driven from Maryland, Kentucky, Western Virginia, Missouri, and nearly all Tennessee.

The blockade by land and sea has been so perfect that an egress for $7 a gallon, sugar $1 a pound, and boots $25 a pair in Richmond.

We have captured or destroyed as many as nine large iron-clads.

The Duke of Wellington never made such progress as this in his Peninsular campaign, and our operations compare favorably with those of the allies against Sebastopol, or of the English against the rebels in India.

REBEL VICTORIES.

Two battles at Bull Run. Big Bethel.
Ball's Bluff. Bolivar.
James Island. Vicksburg.
Cedar Mountain. Front Royal.
Harper's Ferry. McClellan driven from Fredericksburg. Richmond.
Clarksville taken, but lost again.
Recapture of Galveston, with the Harriet Lane.
Destruction of the Congress, Cumberland, and capture here and there of gunboats.
Fort Craig, New Mexico.
Incursions into Pennsylvania, Maryland, Kentucky, from which they were driven back.
Depredations on the high seas.

The Tide Turning.

"Q. W. Lee, General Commanding," is in trouble. It seems that this officer is in command of a Department in the South, with his headquarters at Dahlonega, and that among other things his duty is to suppress insurrections, "and generally to restore tranquility to this part of the country." It seems that a number of deserters, Lories, and conscripts are now in Georgia and North Carolina, resisting the laws of the Confederacy. These insurrectionary movements seem to have more than usual meaning, and to have been more than usually momentous, for Lee offers a full amnesty to those who surrender, while those who persist, will be tranquillized by the musket. "It will be a fruitless attempt," he says, "to war against the Government, and must result in the most disastrous defeat to all who may be so deluded as to attempt it." In this good work he is assisted by "Joseph E. Brown, Governor of Georgia."

In Alabama, we have another appeal from the Governor, who is afraid that the enforcement of the conscript act will lead to a popular commotion. "Alabama," he says, "must be true to herself, and do her duty in the emergency." He regrets to find many patriots lingering about their homes, and he calls upon them not to let their brothers bear the burden of an unequal contest, and he implores the people to give aid to the conscription officers "in arresting and coercing those who yield to no gentler means."

In North Carolina there is a grievous complaint from Governor Vance, commanding the stragglers to return to their colors. These declarations appearing at the same time indicate great changes in the South. The tide is turning, and the men who have ridden upon it seem likely to drift into infamy. Perhaps the proclamations of Lee, Shorter and Vance are the answers of the Cotton States to the President's proclamation. They show distrust and demoralization in the South, and seem to indicate a counter revolution of a formidable character. Now, when the South is reeling and tottering, let us strike the blow it so sincerely dreads, and the rebellion will be at an end.—Philadelphia Press.

A CITIZEN of New York, who has taken the pains to examine the record of deeds, claims, &c., through the Evening Post, states that the Herald's story of the gift of a splendid residence to Mrs. McClellan, by the admirers of the General, is a hoax.

THE REBELS IN ARKANSAS.—Hindman's forces are utterly demoralized and scattered. He cannot collect over 8,000 men. Hundreds of his conscripts have come into our lines and been paroled, many volunteering to take the oath and expressing their willingness to enlist.

Marmaduke, who had 2,000 men when he unsuccessfully attacked Hartsville, cannot now muster over 700.

The people on the Southwestern border of Missouri are reduced almost to starvation, the opposing armies having stripped the country of everything eatable.

LETTERS lately received from our Consulates at Monterey and Matamoras, confirm the report that there are large numbers of Union refugees near the border, waiting for an invasion of Texas to join the Federal army. There are one thousand near the border, reported by the Vice Consul at Monterey, and accessions are being made daily, in consequence of the brutal treatment practiced on the Unionists by the Confederate officers. Up the river from Matamoras the force of refugees is very large, thirteen hundred of whom are well armed and mounted.

THE Copperheads of the Illinois Senate having passed a resolution declaring the Legislature adjourned until June, in order to give the projected Peace Convention at Louisville time to take action in favor of an armistice, and report to the Legislature, the Republican members agreed that there should be no more Legislation until the Copperheads withdrew the above resolution, and pledged themselves not again to prevent them. In consequence, the Republican Senators left Springfield on Friday night, and the Legislature is virtually dissolved.

THE CATCH OF REBEL STEAMERS ON THE YAZOO.—A correspondent at Vicksburg writes to a western paper that when Gen. Sherman retired from Vicksburg, supposing the expedition had been abandoned, the rebels sent eleven steamers up the Yazoo for supplies, and our fleet having returned in the nick of time, they are now blocked in; and the rebels have only two lines of steamers between Vicksburg and Port Hudson, and one of these has been crippled by the Queen of the West.

A LETTER from Baton Rouge, dated January 19th, says: "The forces here have been increased to almost 25,000 men.

FROM HARRISBURG.

Special Dispatch to the Pittsburgh Gazette.

HARRISBURG, Feb. 10, 1863.

PENNSYLVANIA LEGISLATURE.
