FRIDAY MORNING, MARCH 6.

Neville B. Craig.

Whose death was mentioned yesterday, died at noon on Tuesday, the 3d inst., from an attack of bronchial catarrh, with which he had suffered occasionally for the last few years. He died tranquilly—with a self control which showed his constitutional courage and christian resignation.

Mr. CRAIG was born on the 29th of March, 1787, in one of the Redoubts of Fort Pitt. He was the eldest son of ISAAC CRAIG and AMELIA NEVILLE. His father, Major CRAIG, began his revolutionary services as a mariner. He served afterwards, with great credit, as an officer of artillery.

The mother of NEVILLE B. CRAIG was the daughter of Gen. JOHN NEVILLE, an officer of the Virginia line. Mr. CRAIG was educated at Princeton, N. J. He read law with Judge ADDISON; was at one time Deputy Attorney General for Allegheny. At another period he represented this county in the State Legislature. As the editor, for some years, of the PITTSBURGH GAZETTE, his opinions had much weight with the yeomanry of Allegheny county, who confided in the accuracy of his information, his sincerity and honor.

As the chronicler of Olden Time, he made invaluable contributions to history. As a writer he was only studious, to say plainly what he thought, which he did with great clearness and force.

It was in his domestic life, those who knew him best appreciated him most—the loyal son—the attached brother, the true friend; above all, the kindest and most affectionate husband and father. D.

General Sigel in New York.

This gallant soldier paid a visit to his family in New York a few days ago. He declined public demonstrations in his honor, but at the Turner's Hall made a few remarks, and a few from the window of his house in response to a serenade. We have only room for a brief extract. He said:

It has ever been the German's lot to be mixed more or less in all the struggles for liberty, but never before did any concern them more than the one this country is engaged in now. You must sustain the arm of the best Government on earth, for its interests are your interests, and its success that of universal liberty. [Cheers.] Those who are unable to go forth to the tented field ought to do their best at home, and no matter how dark the present aspect of affairs may be, ultimate success must crown our efforts. [Cheers.] Words are not battles, but words are good in their place, and I wish to put on record in words as the sentiment of my heart, that as we are protected, cherished, nurtured, by the beneficent institutions of this Heaven-blessed nation, so are we bound in common gratitude and by every sentiment of honor and fealty to truth, to stand equally by it in its hour of trial, to assist in crushing its enemies, to uphold untarnished the purity of its honor, and to restore to its pristine glory the majesty of its flag. [Tremendous and long-continued cheering.]

It is a most extraordinary thing that such a man as SIGEL, a soldier so brave, so skilful, so well tried, and so ready to fight on for his adopted country, should be constrained to place his resignation in the hands of the President; yet it has just been stated in the telegraphic dispatches that he has done so—"insuperable difficulties in his intercourse with the Commander-in-Chief" being assigned as the cause. Of the nature of the difficulty between him and Gen. HALLECK we cannot pretend to speak, for we know nothing; but the President might profitably ponder the question, whether the country could not better dispense with the services of the latter than of the former. If the service must lose one of the men, perhaps the loss of HALLECK might be a smaller loss than that of SIGEL, although he is not a graduate of West Point.

Mr. Hutchman's Specialty.

Our member from the North side of the Allegheny, like many other distinguished men, has his specialty. Disregarding the variety of engrossing subjects connected with the war, the National and the State Governments, with revenue and finance, which have presented themselves in his two sessions, he devotes himself with untiring zeal and an eye single to the one great subject of relieving farmers from penalties and fines for selling hay in Allegheny city, without having the same weighed on the city scales. This is the point to him, beyond which there is nothing—and to this he adheres, against the unanimous views of his colleagues in both Houses, against the earnest remonstrances and arguments of his friends, and against the protest of both branches of the Councils of that city. He forgets or refuses to recognise the fact that the citizens of Allegheny are also his constituents, while he is endeavoring to legislate for the interest of a particular class of which he is a member—and strives to take away an important revenue from the city, to save for himself and other farmers a quarter of a dollar a load, which he and they are particularly careful the consumer shall pay. He cannot see that an honest farmer desires pay for the exact amount of hay in his load, and, therefore, neither gains nor loses by submitting to weight; that a dishonest farmer desires pay for more hay than he has, and, therefore, would lose his chance of extortion by submitting to weight; that, in short, his pet measure is of advantage not to the honest, but to the dishonest farmer only. He fails to see any reason why farmers should contribute to the support of a municipal government which furnishes them with paved streets and lighted thoroughfares, with market houses and the protection of police regulations.

We all are compelled to submit to this intrusion of municipal corporations between the producer and consumer. Our flour and salt are inspected, our whisky and oil are gauged and tested, our weights and measures are submitted to a suspicious official; we cannot huckster, nor expose short weight butter, or tainted meat, or unwholesome poultry to sale; and this, too, notwithstanding the purchasing community are supplied with eyes to see with, and noses to smell, and hands to handle with. Why not strike at the principle, Mr. HUTCHMAN, and relieve us all, instead of legislating for your own business interests?

We are very sorry Mr. HUTCHMAN has chosen to make his record up on this pitiful legislation. It is, however, his glorious privilege so to do, if he sees proper. We hope and believe, however, the House, when the bill is presented, will show it but little consideration.

Stopping the Gold Speculation.

The House of Representatives yesterday, by a vote of sixty-four against thirty-three, concurred in the Senate's amendment to the Tax bill, imposing a tax upon transactions in gold and silver. The fourth section, as amended, provides as follows:

"All contracts for the purchase or sale of gold and silver, coin or bullion, secured by pledge or deposit, or other disposition of gold or silver coin of the United States, if to be performed after a period exceeding three days, shall be in writing or printed, and signed by the parties, or their agents or attorneys, and shall have one or more adhesive stamps, as provided in the act to which this is an amendment, equal in amount to one-half of one per centum, and interest at the rate of six per centum per annum on the amount so loaned, pledged or deposited; and if any such loan, pledge or deposit, made for a period not exceeding three days, shall be renewed or in any way extended, for any time whatever, said loan, pledge or deposit shall be subject to the duty imposed on loans exceeding three days; and no loan of currency or money on the security of gold or silver coin of the United States as aforesaid, shall be made exceeding in amount the par value of the coin pledged or deposited as security; and any loan so made, or attempted to be made, shall be utterly void."

The speculation in gold is thus reduced within the limits of a regular mercantile transaction, and its extravagant inflation will necessarily subside. From the beginning the gold speculation, confined to a few dozens of Shylocks, has given a wholly fictitious value to the specie currency, and has in no way represented the true condition of the money market. It has disturbed the course of trade, appreciated prices and enriched a few dealers at the expense of the whole community. Now it have its evils stopped here, for the rapid rise in the price of gold has created in Europe a false and injurious impression of the degree of the depreciation of government currency and the croakers at home have gladly echoed the tory cry of imminent bankruptcy and ultimate repudiation. All these causes have produced most mischievous effects.

The legislation of Congress, making these speculations, if still carried on, contribute to the receipts of the Treasury, and reducing transactions in gold to the level of ordinary business operations, liable to taxation under the regulations of the Internal Revenue act, removes a fruitful source of financial and commercial embarrassment. Its immediate results will probably affect the current speculation unfavorably, while the restoration of true values will tend in in time, to restore the balance which has been overthrown by a long course of extravagant and needless inflation.—N. Y. Evening Post of Wednesday.

CHARLESTON.—The stories told by the officers of the British ship Petrel are not credited. While the Petrel lay at Charleston, her officers openly showed their sympathy with the rebels. Of course it would only be in order for these officers to circulate any story, or number of stories, that would be likely to benefit their friends. But well informed parties understand this game. The N. Y. Evening Post says:

"Of the speedy capture of Charleston we entertain no doubt whatever. The stories about obstructions in the approach to that city are not true. The waters have been reconnoitered by daring men despatched from our squadron, who approached so near to Fort Sumter that they could hear the sentry crying "all's well," little dreaming that hostile ears were listening at so short a distance. The channel was found entirely free and open. Naval officers who understand the situation of Charleston and the nature and extent of the preparations for the attack upon that focus of treason, are as confident that it must fall into our hands as if the history of its capture were already recorded."

NOBLE LIBERALITY.—The Hon. HARRY WHITE, of Indiana, the Senator from the Armstrong and Indiana district, has placed his check for $350 in the hands of the Treasurer of Armstrong county, and another for the same amount in the hands of the Treasurer of Indiana county—being the full amount of his salary for the session—for the benefit of the Soldiers' Relief Fund of those counties. We like to make such records as this.

The French Reverses in Mexico.

The latest news from Mexico indicates that the French forces are getting into trouble in all directions. The Mexican guerrillas continue to intercept convoys, carry off mulesters, capture mules in great numbers, and virtually stop the supplies for the French army. A report received by way of Havana says that Gen. Forey has been forced to issue bills in sums of five dollars, and it is thought that owing to the continued decrease in specie circulation, he will have to issue them as low as one dollar, in order to make necessary purchases. These bills are drawn on the Imperial Treasury.

Scarcely was Jalapa evacuated by the French forces when it was occupied by the Mexican troops, and now the French have an enemy in front, on the flanks and in the rear—everywhere, in fact. Tampico is again in the hands of Garza, who took possession of the Plaza as the French troops evacuated, scarcely giving them an opportunity to embark on their transports. The Mexican artillery opened upon the vessels in the harbor, and a brisk engagement ensued, which resulted in the destruction of a French war vessel which had grounded on the bar, and the driving away of the fleet.

The evacuation of Tampico became necessary, because the climate was destroying the French forces, without benting the cause.

Puebla is defended by one hundred and eighty-seven pieces of artillery, of the heaviest calibre. Its fortifications are pronounced impregnable, and its garrison is over thirty thousand strong. The greatest enthusiasm animates the defenders, and its commander, Gonzales Ortega, is convinced that it cannot be taken.

The French were completely repulsed at Acapulco, on the Pacific, after several days' bombardment of the forts, and serious injury was inflicted on several of their vessels.

Comonfort remains in Tacubaya with his troops, and the enthusiasm for the cause in the city of Mexico is represented as beyond all description.

Everywhere in the republic the utmost confidence prevails of their ability to defeat the French whenever and wherever they may offer battle. And all anxiously await the grand advance of General Forey upon Puebla, which is now the Mexican Sebastopol.

TRADING WITH THE ENEMY.—In conversation with the rebel prisoners captured in Red river, they told me that nearly all of last year's cotton crop in Texas had been hauled in wagons a distance, in some cases of four hundred miles to Matamoras, where the Southerners found a ready market for it at large prices in exchange for merchandise or gold. The purchasers of the staple were invariably Eastern men. A Texas lieutenant assured me that arms and munitions of war had been freely tendered to the people of the Lone Star State in exchange for cotton, and that, too, by men from New York, Philadelphia and Boston. —Cor. Cin. Com.

EXEMPTION OF QUAKERS.—The amount of money to be paid into the United States Treasury, for exemption from military duty, by the Quakers of Indiana, it is said, will amount to about two hundred and fifty-three thousand dollars.
